The Houses Dropped Into Nowhere

ST. JEAN VIANNEY, Que. (AP) — Many of St. Jean Vianney's 1,300 people were watching the Stanley Cup hockey finals on television when the ground began giving way, tumbling houses into a sea of mud.

Forty-two cottages crashed down into the crater that widened out late Tuesday night. Today five bodies had been recovered and no hope was held for 26 missing persons.

Francois Richard was watching the hockey game when he heard shouting and ran 700 yards down the street. He saw houses falling one by one, dropping "150 feet into nowhere."

"I just got the kids and wife out of the house in time," he said.

An entire street and part of another were pulled into the grayish mud pit 700 feet wide and more than 100 feet deep.

A government geologist, Jean-Yves Chagnon, said the cave-in may have been caused by erosion of sandy soil at the base of the bluff on which the town was built, or by an earth tremor Tuesday believed centered in the area 116 miles north of Quebec City. He said he didn't expect any more slides.

"But if it rains for two days, it could mean trouble," Chagnon said. He explained that a lot of rain could start sludge flowing down the new canyon and undercut the river banks elsewhere.

The small river which runs through the crater swept most of the houses down the valley to where it joins the Saguenay River. There rescue workers probed the debris with long metal poles in search of bodies

Moncalm Laforge, his pregnant wife and their three children were in one of the first houses to slide into the pit.

Their bungalow dropped more than 100 feet and landed on a floating mound of earth.

Republic Steel Hikes Price Too

Most Producers Now Expected to Raise Their Rates

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Republic Steel Corp. today matched U.S. Steel Corp.'s 6¼ per cent price increase on items used in autos and appliances, but the rest of the industry was "still looking."

Republic made the announcement from its Cleveland, Ohio, headquarters. A spokesman said the price hikes and effective dates matched those announced Wednesday by U.S. Steel on products that comprise about one-third of shipments industrywide. He said the Republic increases also include electrogalvanized sheets, which U.S. Steel doesn't handle.

Other large steel corporations, including Jones & Laughlin, National, Armco and Wheeling-Pittsburgh, continued to review their price structures.

A spokesman for Wheeling Pittsburgh said it was doing some "new figuring" since it, too, makes electrogalvanized sheets.

Only Bethlehem Steel Corp., the No. 2 producer, declined immediate comment on the move by U.S. Steel. Sources at Bethlehem said, however, that the company probably was waiting to see what, if anything, was done by the White House.

Bethlehem drew the ire of President Nixon last January when it announced price hikes of 12.5 per cent. Bethlehem rolled back the prices to an average 6.8 per cent after the President raised a threat of permitting more steel imports. Nixon had termed the Bethlehem price hikes "enormous."

But a White House spokesman said Wednesday no attempt would be made to roll back the price boost, while expressing administration disappointment in the hike.

UW Protest Most Violent Of Those on State Campuses

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A moratorium on antiwar rallies was declared Wednesday at the University of Wisconsin as hundreds of students gathered for a second consecutive night of vandalism.

Police and their tear gas equipment saturated the 33,000-student campus in Madison under a directive from Chancellor H. Edwin Young, who ordered police to disperse any unauthorized student assembly.

The UW demonstrators' hit-and-run tactics, designed to create disruption but avoid arrest, were criticized by some observers as aimless vandalism.

"There's a better way of doing it," student Irvin Drach Jr. of Marshfield remarked. "You should organize people into an antiwar movement that is a day-to-day operation."

Playing a Game

Roberta Schwartz, a freshman from Auburn, Maine, described police as abusive in dealing with thousands of demonstrators during the day. But she similarly expressed the futility of sidewalk protest.

"We got shoved right into the street" by police who later "pushed us back onto the sidewalk," the coed said. "We pay to come to the university; we ought to be able to go to classes."

About 5,000 demonstrators covered a three-block area of a UW campus mall during what had been intended as a noon speech-making rally. Police dispersed the crowd to keep auto traffic moving.

100 Persons

A mile away, outside Madison's Federal Building an angry passerby quarreled with a placard carrier during a memorial for slain Kent State students, attended by about 100 persons. Some state government employes joined the protesters.

About 100 students occupied a Selective Service office near Stevens Point State University, but abandoned their sit-in when requested by Stevens Point police.

Only 100 persons assembled at Oshkosh State University for antiwar speeches. But the crowd swelled to 200 during a folk singer's performance.

In Madison, authorities said the day-night disorders had led to at least 15 arrests. At least six persons were treated for the affects of tear gas.

An estimated 700 young demonstrators clogged main thoroughfares in Milwaukee's business district after a comparably calm protest march by 2,000 persons. Police said six persons were arrested during efforts to get traffic moving again.

After the noon campus rally and Federal Building incidents in Madison, UW students called for an evening rally on the same dormitory plaza where Tuesday's disorders had begun.

Nixon Disappointed

Wholesale Prices Go Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rise in wholesale prices accelerated in April, handing the Nixon administration a setback in its effort to control inflation, the Labor Department reported today.

The department said its wholesale price index advanced by three-tenths of one per cent in April, with its key industrial commodities index going up by four-tenths of one per cent.

The increase was even larger on a seasonally adjusted basis, with the over-all index increasing by five-tenths of one per cent and industrial prices by the same amount.

The April increase followed a slackening in wholesale prices in March, when the index advanced by only two-tenths of one per cent on both an unadjusted and seasonally adjusted basis.

The department said farm products showed no change in April, while prices of processed foods and feeds actually declined by two-tenths of one per cent. But on a seasonally adjusted basis, prices of farm products increased by 1.4 per cent, with the cost of processed foods and feeds unchanged.

The department said the April advance brought the index to 113.3 per cent of the 1967 average, 3.1 per cent higher than the same month a year ago. This meant that it cost $113.30 to purchase the same amount of wholesale goods that $100 bought in 1967.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics blamed the increase in the industrials index on "renewed strength in prices of metals and metal products." Prices of these products had leveled off in recent months.

Fox-Winnebago Cleanup Forum Set

A public forum to organize local forces in the quest of federal funds for a Lower Fox River-Lake Winnebago management cleanup project is being sponsored May 27 at The Pioneer Inn, Oshkosh, by The Post-Crescent, in conjunction with station WLUK-TV.

Editor John Torinus said the one-day session will bring together local, state and federal officials and technicians, and provide a clearer view of what has been done and what can — and should — be done for the lake and river.

A major goal of the forum, Torinus said, will be the formation of local officials — probably top county officials in the Fox Valley — into a committee to put together a water management organization. This is essential if the area is to qualify for federal funds which may be available for anticipated federal management programs.

Initiate Program

The immediate goal is getting about $200,000 in federal Environmental Protection Agency funds of $800,000 made available to the Upper Great Lakes Basin. This money would be sought before the end of the fiscal year and would be used to initiate the management program.

Torinus has met in recent weeks with several Valley Technicians and officials in organizing the forum. A specific proposal outlining management procedures for the project also is being prepared.

The forum is in the final stages of preparation. Among the speakers will be Thomas Frangos, acting administrator of the State Department of Natural Resources environmental protection division; Dr. H. J. Day, professor of environmental control at the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay, and luncheon speaker Dr. Irving Fox, associate director of the Water Resource Research Center, University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Torinus said the afternoon session will include a panel discussion and open question-and-answer period, with emphasis on organizing for the management project.

The forum will be called "Water Pollution Management — A New Concept: Can the Fox River and Lake Winnebago Really Be Cleaned Up?"

Torinus said the management project probably would be handled by the five counties surrounding the surface water: Winnebago, Fond du Lac, Outagamie, Calumet and Brown. Officials from these counties, including county board members, municipal leaders and industrial and civic leaders, will be invited to the forum.

The state will be applying for the federal funds for this area, he said, but it will be essential

Dollar Crisis Could Affect U.S. Consumer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American consumer, traveler and businessman have a stake in the flurry of monetary speculation threatening the stability of European currency.

But experts foresee little immediate impact on Americans as a result of trading by speculators hoping for an increase in the value of the West German mark.

The long-term results—if German or other European currencies are revalued upward as the speculators hope—could affect U.S. foreign trade by encouraging exports and—through higher consumer prices on foreign products in U.S. stores—discouraging imports. And it could weaken international confidence in the dollar, the most serious possible result.

Following are some questions and answers to explain how the crisis developed, what the U.S. moves mean, and what the probable outcome will be:

Q. Why did the German, Swiss, Netherlands, Austrian and Belgian banks suspend trading in dollars?

A. Because they were hit with a flood of dollars which speculators wanted to change into West German Deutschmarks and—to a much lesser extent—other European currencies.

Q. Why do the speculators want marks?

A. They believe the mark soon may be revalued upward—that its value will be increased in terms of dollars. They think that the mark, now worth something over 27 cents, will soon be worth more.

Q. How could the value be changed?

A. The German government could declare a new and higher value for its currency, after consulting with international monetary authorities. Or it could let the mark "float"; that is, it could cut the mark loose from any stated value temporarily and let dealings in the world money markets decide what the new value would finally be.

Q. What would happen then?

A. Presumably, either way, the mark would wind up at some higher figure; the dollar would be worth less when used to buy marks or to buy German goods. The speculators who had got rid of dollars and obtained marks would chalk up a profit

Q. Why is the dollar less valuable in Europe?

A. Because Europe is over-

Speculation Catches Pound

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar rebounded on European exchanges today, but the respite seemed temporary as the international monetary crisis continued.

American money was in short supply as speculators rushed to cover the dollars they had been selling for over a week without owning them.

The British pound was caught in the rush. A wave of selling sent the rate for sterling down 41 points, to $2.4155 during the first hour of trading in London.

The official rate of the pound is $2.40, but it has been above that on the exchange markets. The crisis dropped it 41 decimal points from $2.4191 or close to $2.42, on Wednesday. Exchange houses use decimal points to give them a more accurate quotation.

Major dollar trading remained all but suspended in West Germany, Austria, Belgium, Finland, the Netherlands, Portugal and Switzerland as the national banks of those countries still refused to buy dollars.

Spain joined those countries today in suspending foreign currency dealings. But tourists were not immediately affected. Financial sources said tourists were having their currencies changed into Spanish pesetas but with some limitations.

Led by West Germany, the central banks stopped buying Wednesday after two days of hectic selling by speculators switching to West German marks in anticipation that the German currency would be revalued upward.

The dollar gained strength on the open market in West Germany today after rumors that the government would postpone its decision to revalue until after a meeting of Common Market finance and economic ministers Saturday.

The West German Economics Ministry confirmed the rumor shortly before noon. But already on the strength of the rumors the dollar had risen to 3.59-3.61 marks on the open market after opening at 3.56. The official floor price is 3.63.

The West German Cabinet is meeting Friday to discuss the mounting pressure for revaluation of the mark to check inflation in Germany. But a decision was put off after the scheduling of the Common Market meeting in Brussels.

At it the ministers of the six nations—West Germany, France, Italy, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg—will try to work out a cohesive policy to follow in this first major international monetary crisis since the mark was last revalued in September 1969.

A German government spokesman said a special Cabinet meeting would be held after Saturday's session to decide on international and domestic measures.

Despite the delay, there was general expectation that the mark would be revalued and that the Swiss franc, the Dutch guilder and possibly other currencies would follow it upward in terms of the dollar.

Protests Continue With Thinner Ranks

Hundreds of persons were arrested.

National Guard troops were called out to end sporadic rock-throwing by protesters blocking a highway in College Park, Md. Other violence occurred in cities ranging in size from New York City to Waukegan, Ill., and Northridge, Calif.

The biggest demonstration was in Boston where 10,000 to 30,000 orderly and festive protesters attended a rally on the Common. In October 1969, more than 200,000 persons attended a similar rally to protest U.S. involvement in the Indochina war.

About 1,000 demonstrators turned out at San Francisco where an April 24 rally in Golden Gate Park drew 175,000

In College Park, Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel called upon the National Guard to end sporadic rock-throwing and a blockade of U.S. Highway 1 by 5,000 persons at the University of Maryland. He also declared a 9 30 p m. curfew and authorized the use of tear gas.

Forty-six persons were arrested and nine—including eight state troopers—were injured before order was restored.

Of the 3,000 marchers to the Capitol in Washington, D C., where the spring offensive against the war began April 24, 1,200 persons were arrested. A second demonstration drew 1,500 to 2,000 persons, many of them government employes, for a peaceful noon rally across the street from the White House.

Police in San Francisco reported 97 arrests and three injuries after clashing with a downtown crowd that advocated disrupting businesses "profiting from the Indochina war."

About 10,000 attended a rally in New York City's Bryant Park. An estimated 50,000 persons similarly protested in October 1969.

A Central Park demonstration by 2,000 high school pupils ended when fighting broke out as black youths sought to control a microphone.

At Kent State University in Ohio, a handful of demonstrators closed a campus building periodically throughout the day. About 1,000 students attended a midday rally.

More than 100 protesters at the University of Oregon threw rocks and bottles, breaking the window of a fire truck that had vainly attempted late Wednesday night to extinguish a bonfire outside the campus ROTC building.

Earlier police using tear gas repelled 250 demonstrators who rushed the building.

About 1,000 young people staged an antiwar sit down outside a federal building in Boston today, following the action of tens of thousands of Americans who took part in antiwar demonstrations in cities across the nation Wednesday.

The Boston demonstrators assembled at the Common, then proceeded to the John F. Kennedy building a quarter-mile away. The group stopped short of announced plans to close down the structure.

The protesters' ranks on Wednesday were thinner than in previous rallies and, while most of the demonstrations were peaceful, there was some violence.

Problem of State Programs Delays Welfare Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The problems of big states with large welfare programs are delaying congressional work on a massive Social Security-welfare measure.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee told newsmen various proposals to protect states against increases in welfare costs are under discussion, but no decisions have been made.

The committee, he said, still is awaiting full cost figures from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Nineteen states pay a higher welfare benefit scale than the $2,400 for a family of four contemplated in the incomplete bill. As welfare rolls increase, these states are in danger of having any savings provided by the bill wiped out. A few large states, such as New York and California, are especially vulnerable.

Proposals under consideration, Mills said, would involve guarantees that such states would not have to contribute more state funds to maintain their programs than they are now expending, or at least that they would be guarded against unforeseen increases.

He said he still hopes to have the bill ready for House action before the end of May.

Mills said its provisions on welfare and Medicaid would give substantial relief to states, but that the cities, with more immediate financial troubles, would not be helped to the same extent.

However, Mills said, development of a national health insurance system, scheduled for consideration this summer, should provide additional help.

Meanwhile, Mills repeated his intention of opening hearings later this month on President Nixon's revenue sharing plan, which he opposes, and possible alternatives to it.

He said the extent of fiscal relief to be provided by welfare reform will be known by then. And he added he has some ideas on further help for the cities, but not through the Nixon plan to have a local organization to handle management. The management program will be the actual cleaning up and maintaining of the water quality through modern management techniques.

"This committee is pretty adamant against any version of revenue sharing," he said.

Request From Planner

The management idea and forum were precipitated by a request last August by the Fox Valley Council of Governments — the metropolitan planning agency — that the federal protection agency consider the Fox for a management demonstration project. At that time, COG sought and was assured the cooperation of the Brown County Planning Commission, the Fond du Lac County Planning Commission and the state.

The state has issued strong pollution abatement orders and industries have spend millions of dollars to treat effluents, but it has been recognized that this wouldn't be enough to raise the water quality to a desirable level. The algae of the lake and the concentrations of oxygen-demanding effluents in the Fox require special management treatment, including aeration.

The Fox basin reportedly is being considered by the protection agency for a cleanup project, and it ranks high in the Upper Great Lakes Basin programs.

COG representatives were among about 25 who recently were invited to Washington to discuss with state and federal agencies the type of grants which are being considered for major surface water cleanup projects.

Workable Program

Lawrence Michaels, COG public works director, said that the initial funding would allow establishment of a workable management program and that additional federal funds could be sought — probably next year — for operating the management program.

He said that relatively inexpensive water management techniques could be effected on the river and lake to improve the quality, if a proper program is set up.

Michaels noted that the state and industries have effected some techniques which could serve to cover part of the local share of funds.

Future management funding probably would include state Outdoor Recreation Act Program funds.

Truman Won't Attend Luncheon In His Honor

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A traditional birthday luncheon for former President Harry S. Truman will be held Saturday at a downtown Kansas City hotel, but Truman, who will be 87, will not attend.

Since a hospital stay earlier this year, Truman is rarely seen outside his home in Independence, Mo., but guests from Los Angeles, New York and Louisville, Ky., are expected, as well as 15 members of the Battery D Army Artillery, men Truman commanded in World War I.

The luncheon will follow ceremonies at the Harry S. Truman Library in Independence, for issuance of the nation's first eight-cent commemorative postage stamp. It will honor Missouri's 150 years of statehood.

New, Younger Men Chosen In Cambodia

PHNOM PENH (AP) — The Cambodian political crisis ended today after 16 days as the National Assembly overwhelmingly approved a revamped government. The vote was 50-1, with nine abstentions and five blank ballots.

The new 16-man Cabinet is headed by the leaders of the last government but sports a number of new and younger faces. It committed itself to winning the war against the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese, getting a constitution for the seven-month-old republic and continuing a foreign policy of "active neutrality."

The new government is headed in name by ailing Marshal Lon Nol but in fact by Lt. Gen. Sisowath Sirik Matak, who presented the Cabinet to the assembly because Lon Nol was unable to leave his home.

Western observers consider the new government "less political and more functional" than the group brought down April 20, when Lon Nol resigned because he had not recovered from the stroke he suffered in February.

Although the observers foresaw no sudden policy shift, they said the new government likely would be more efficient since it has younger and better trained men in a number of top posts.

West German Mark: Ever Up

FRANKFURT (AP) — The rise of West Germany's mark to the position of one of the world's most desirable currencies mirrors the fortunes of the West German people since World War II.

The deutschemark came into being on June 20, 1948, as a replacement in the Western occupation zones for the old reichsmark. The new currency was the brainchild of Ludwig Erhard, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's portly economics minister.

West Germany was at a low ebb, its productive arm listless, its economy based on black market bartering. With the currency reform, the nation's economic miracle commenced. It was a performance probably never before equaled by a country shattered by nearly six years of warfare.

Erhard brushed aside advice and eliminated price controls and rationing, proclaiming a free economy. Overnight hoarded goods appeared in shop windows. Marshall Plan aid began to pump in billions of American dollars.

Despite an initial period of inflation as prices shot up, Erhard radiated optimism and promised his policies would bring "prosperity for all." He was right. Within a year the mark stabilized, and the occupation powers pegged it at 23 8 cents.

Unencumbered by defense burdens, West Germany became one humming factory. Labor cooperated by postponing wage demands so plants could be modernized or rebuilt.

The country grew into the world's third largest industrial power, the second largest trading nation.

In 1961, with its trade balance strongly in West Germany's favor, the dollar and other foreign currencies came under pressure. The value of the mark was increased 5 per cent, to 25 cents.

By 1969, the foreign trade balance was 18 billion marks, or $45 billion. The economy was booming, but inflation was on the rise. It was an election year, and the two major parties, the Christian Democrats and the Social Democrats, differed sharply on the best way to keep the economy from overheating.

The conservative Christian Democrats decreed there would be no revaluation. Economics Minister Karl Schiller, a Socialist, led the forces calling for a change.

As the Sept. 28 election neared, billions of dollars poured into the country, buying marks in expectation of revaluation and a quick profit. When a postelection alliance with the middle-of-the-road Free Democrats put the Social Democrats in power, they freed the mark to seek its own level. The Central Bank stopped its buying and selling that had kept the currency within one per cent of a par 25 cents, and the mark slowly rose. When the government stepped in, it fixed par at 3.66 to the dollar, or 27.3 cents.

Schiller suggested later that the margin of revaluation possibly was not great enough to be a lasting check on inflation. Nineteen months later, his doubts appear to have been justified.

Crisis Affects Consumer

Dollar Oversupply

Q. Why is there an oversupply?

A. For several reasons. Some of America's Vietnam war spending has piled up dollars abroad. So have its payments for a rising volume of imports from Europe. Also some dollars have been sent overseas deliberately to obtain the higher interest earnings now available in some European countries. Finally, the long U.S. inflation has made American goods costlier in world markets. And Americans, who are getting less for their money at home, also are buying more goods made in Germany and elsewhere.

Q. Why do the speculators expect Germany to revalue:

A. Because that's a way for the Germans to curb their own inflation.

Q. How would a revaluation help their inflation?

A. German goods would immediately become more expensive; it would take more dollars or francs, for instance, to buy a given quantity of German products. Therefore it would be harder to sell German goods.

Q. That would discourage inflation but would Germans stand for a drop in sales and exports?

Reluctant Step

A. That's a question. It is possible that such a step might be taken reluctantly but ever since World War II, when Germans suffered one of the most searing inflations in history, Germany has been more fearful of inflation than any other country.

Q. Is the German situation duplicated in some other countries?

A. Yes, but to a lesser degree, with the Swiss franc, the Japanese yen, the Dutch guilder and the French franc.

Q. Does this mean more revaluations may be coming?

A. Possibly. There are two ways to correct a serious imbalance, if one exists: To devalue the dollar by raising the price of gold, to which the dollar's value is tied; or by revaluing upwards the key currencies whose exchange rates are tied to dollars.

Q. What about devaluing the dollar?

Proper Course

A. The French say this is the proper course. The U.S. government has rejected it repeatedly and firmly. Most other countries dislike the idea because it would upset the whole free world monetary system, and would bring a windfall to gold-producing countries like Russia and South Africa. On the other hand, the European countries dislike revaluing their own currencies upward.

Q. Why?

A. Because they would lose business.

Q. Did that happen to Germany after the 1969 revaluation which boosted the mark from 25 cents to more than 27 cents?

A. Yes. German auto makers still complain of lost profits.

Q. How can the dilemma be resolved?

A. As a partial answer the United States may take steps to bring home a lot of the dollars that are choking the Europe's banking system.

Q. How is that done?

A. By borrowing them, in effect. Several weeks ago the U.S. borrowed $1.5 billion in Eurodollars—U.S. dollars on deposit in European banks—by offering an issue of special securities for sale to the overseas branches of American banks. The banks used up $1.5 billion of their Eurodollars in buying the certificates.

'Chicago 7' Pair Might Again Go on Trial

Grand Jury Will Consider Filing Conspiracy Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is calling a grand jury investigation that may put at least two of the Chicago Seven defendants back on the block for conspiracy charges stemming from antiwar demonstrations in the capital.

Three of the seven who were tried and acquitted on conspiracy charges that grew out of violence at the 1968 Democratic National Convention in Chicago have been arrested.

They include Rennie C. Davis, 30, chief organizer of this week's demonstrations, and John R. Froines, 32, with whom the government says Davis conspired to injure the rights of citizens and to keep federal workers off their jobs by disrupting traffic.

In New York, FBI agents arrested Yippie leader Abbie Hoffman late Wednesday on charges of interstate travel to incite a riot and of assaulting an officer in connection with Monday's unsuccessful attempts to block traffic here.

Although the charges do not include conspiracy, an FBI affidavit accompanying the complaint cited an April 29 speech at Oklahoma University in which Hoffman allegedly said "we're stopping the government unless they want to stop the war."

Deputy Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst confirmed Wednesday the Justice Department will seek a grand jury indictment of Davis and Froines on the conspiracy charges.

"We have to," Kleindienst said.

Grand Jury

In felony charges, the government must seek an indictment unless the potential defendant waives his right to a grand jury proceeding.

"Ha," scoffed Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell's No. 2 man. "They aren't going to waive anything. They can litigate the grand jury for five years. That's what we call due process."

In addition to asking the grand jury to act on the charges against Davis and Froines, the government probably will seek indictments against other defendants, Justice sources said.

When John W. Hashen, chief spokesman for Justice, first announced Davis' arrest, he told reporters Davis was accused of "conspiring with David Dellinger and others" to disrupt the capital. He later explained that he had been "misinformed" by the internal security division. Dellinger has not been charged.

"Mardian," Hushen said, "has Dellinger on the brain," referring Asst. Atty. Gen. Robert C. Mardian, head of the department's internal security division.

Dellinger Hospitalized

Dellinger, who has been hospitalized in Washington, is yet another Chicago Seven defendant.

Davis' reaction to his arrest was one of puzzlement and irony.

"Me and 50,000 others," he said of the alleged conspiracy. When told his alleged co-conspirator was Froines, Davis gave a wry smile and said: "I can't believe we're going to be on trial together again."

The antiwar activist asserted that he was arrested in the thick of Mayday demonstrations Monday because "the Nixon administration clings to the misconception that you can stop a people's movement by removing its leaders."

Out on Bond

Davis and Froines, who was arrested at Tuesday's rally by the Justice Department, are both out on bond. Davis at $25,000 and Froines at $10,000.

Under federal law, a conspiracy need not be secret to be illegal. In fact, an alleged conspirator need not even know the persons he is accused of conspiring with. All that the law requires is knowledge of an overall plot.

Hushen said the department is looking at a variety of federal laws that might be applied to persons who planned or participated in the Mayday demonstrations.

These include civil rights, antiriot and conspiracy statutes, he said.

Davis and Froines were charged under a civil rights law making it a crime to conspire to interfere with the constitutional and legal rights of a citizen.

They also were accused of conspiring to violate another civil rights law barring interference with a federal employe in the performance of his duty.

High Wisconsin Spending

In an earlier discussion it was related here that the comparative weight of the Wisconsin income tax, considering all the states of the country, is significantly high. The fact was not cited to suggest even obliquely that the rank among the states for this avenue of public revenue was accidental. It was deliberate, as shown by initiatives of state administrations representing a range of ideological preference over half a century and the easily recalled circumstance that no ruling party in Madison has ever basically repudiated a tax program enacted by an earlier administration.

That oblique concurrence by succeeding state regimes was perhaps not as much motivated by choice or taste as by necessity. The trend for more spending has been so steady and so pressing that state government has never truly had the opportunity for reversing course on tax sources. The typical challenge was to find more revenue. Thus Gov. Lucey is today inferentially endorsing the sales tax which he so ardently condemned as a Democratic candidate, even as the preceding Republican administration chose to widen the coverage of that levy under pressure of spending demands. Thus also Gov. Lucey is turning to higher income taxes in his first term, as the limit of the concession he can make toward the revenue preference posture he exhibited last fall.

That record is prologue. The meaningful ingredient in these seeming examples of contradictions is that no modern ruling party in Madison has been able to stabilize state treasury outgo and that the choice of method in any situation tends to be a matter of chronological happenstance.

What is truly significant and important and worthy of more reflection by the productive residents of this state, whether workmen or professional men or tradesmen or investors or industrial managers, is the reality that the Wisconsin tax burden on the whole is significantly high.

The only important comparison is with other states. It is important for several reasons. First, there is some relation between tax liability and the comparative attraction of the state to the entrepreneur or the investor and many others. Second, the rank of a state in the true level of its taxation shows something of its civic attitude. Is it so low that it may suggest a reactionary, penurious, backward conception of the role of government? Or is it so high as to raise the possibility of profligacy? Of civic inattention? Of less than efficient public service programs?

Wisconsin in 1969 ranked fifth in the nation in the ratio of its tax yields per $1,000 of income of its inhabitants, which is the only meaningful measure. Rank tends to fluctuate, according to the fiscal calendars of the states, the ratio of long term debt, and many other circumstances. In the last preceding year for which a comparison is available it ranked 11th. For 1970 the Wisconsin rank may well be higher — or less favorable — since the 1969 legislature increased basic taxes significantly, to take full effect in 1970. What is important is that Wisconsin is always in the upper brackets of this peculiar contest. Five years ago it was fourth in the nation.

Such realities ought to occasion reflection among Wisconsin citizens and officials. Such realities may also help to explain the anxious "austerity" keynote adopted as his own by that prescient man in the governor's office, Mr. Lucey, who is identified with the political party normally regarded as most willing to spend and tax.

Nixon's Foreign Aid Bill

President Nixon has asked Congressional approval of a new foreign aid bill which would seek to channel American economic aid through international agencies. This is a firm move in the right direction. The trouble is that not enough such economic aid is requested in the President's proposal.

Admittedly there has been a general disillusion with the various programs of foreign aid which change their names with each administration, apparently in an effort to make them more palatable. There have been mistakes. Perhaps the impact of some aid programs has been to try to impose upon people used to a more primitive way of life all the trappings and technical equipment of the Twentieth Century. This can't always be done. Some countries have used gift money for prestige projects that had no long lasting benefits. Some have served, somewhat as American agricultural subsidies often do, merely to make the rich richer. Certainly our aid has not always bought us the support of the governments of the nations receiving it. Due to a number of factors — lack of tact and an attitude of arrogance on the part of American advisors, and sensitivity and resentment among the recipients — sometimes our aid programs seem to have won us more enemies than friends.

Congressmen have reacted to this feeling among their constituents. It is doubtful that a massive aid bill for Asia anywhere nearly meeting the extent of the Marshall Plan that rebuilt Europe after World War II could get through Congress this year of disillusion, realism and even neo-isolationism.

Nevertheless President Nixon's request for only $3.2 billion is very small. It represents only about two-fifths of one per cent of our GNP, although we are prodding such countries as Japan to make available at least a full one per cent of their GNP to underdeveloped nations and in fact several smaller but financially sound countries do just that. And of that $3.2 billion, more than two-thirds will go strictly for military aid. Only one-fifth of one per cent of our GNP will be in economic assistance. The Marshall Plan was more than three per cent of our GNP.

There has always been a dispute over the relative merits of military and economic assistance. Those backing the former argue that it provides the muscle for stable governments to stay that way, to deter both revolution at home and attack from abroad. But those in favor of limiting our assistance primarily to the economic sector retort that we have helped to keep in power dictatorial regimes, that our arms have been used by recipient nations to fight each other, that we contribute only to illusions of grandeur which some leaders see in military trappings. The United States in fact has become the major arms merchant of the world, peddling its wares among those who could better afford plows and fertilizers and high potency seeds.

Obviously the United States cannot ignore military threats to other nations but our obsession with the dangers of communism has blinded us to other evils that can exist in non-Communist nations. In the long run this could even lead to the advancement of communism through non-violent ways. After all, Chile has an avowed Marxist now legally and honestly elected as President because the old ways did not solve the problems of the nation's poor. The far left may not solve them either but it is getting a chance.

President Nixon has also asked that there be clear-cut definitions of the various types of aid so there is no confusion, and that is sound. And using international agencies will help to develop long range policies of using aid where it can do the most good and without backfiring only upon the United States.

Mr. Nixon has said that "the great challenge to Americans of this decade, be they private citizens or national leaders, is to work to improve the quality of life of our fellow men at home and abroad." His foreign aid bill hardly meets that challenge.

A Word Edgewise

U.S. Bombs Not Only Cause Of Vietnam Refugee Problem

BY JOHN P. ROCHE

The Republic of Vietnam is confronted with a major refugee problem, as distinct from Laos, where refugee figures have been absurdly inflated on no visible evidence. (I would like the names of 100 of the "thousand villages" that Congressman Paul McCloskey alleges were bombed out in Laos.) The figure for Vietnam bandied about in anti-war circles is six million; the overall population is estimated at 17 million. In short, it is argued that one South Vietnamese in three is a refugee.

This may be true, though it seems high, but the question must be asked: "A refugee from WHAT?" The stock reply is bombs, herbicides, artillery rounds, etc. But this is only part of the answer. After the Tet offensive of 1968, which was a city-busting exercise on the part of the North Vietnamese, there was a large number of refugees from the urban war. And over the years villagers found themselves in the line of fire and took off. Probably the most significant group were Montagnards, members of the various tribes that inhabit the highlands where the main-force war has been fought. There are perhaps a million of them, all told, in South Vietnam.

Americanization Refugees

Conceding that there are too many war refugees, particularly from the American notion that a fighter-bomber is a good substitute for a rifle company, it must be emphasized that the process of modernization creates an entirely different refugee problem. And in Vietnam, modernization has coincided in time with war so it is difficult to sort out the casual strands. As modernization hits a developing nation (it is known as "Americanization" in many parts of the world), a whole crop of "refugees" turns up. They are refugees (to borrow a phrase from Karl Marx) from "the idiocy of rural life."

After World War I there was a popular song in the United States which asked "How Ya Gonna Keep 'em Down on the Farm (after they've seen Paree)?" It could easily be transliterated as "How are you going to keep them happy down in Vinh Long after they've seen Saigon?"

In other words, the same process that created huge urban slums in cities like Rio de Janeiro and Calcutta has been at work in South Vietnam. Before the war ever heated up, Saigon had jumped from a sleepy French colonial city to an aggregation (one hesitates to say "community") of about two and a half million people. Today only 60 per cent of the South Vietnamese are engaged in agriculture. The other 40 are caught up in the grinder of modernization, which in the instance of Vietnam has been fearfully aggravated by the war. But, and this is the important point, these people are refugees by choice. Like the poor farmer in Mississippi who heads for Harlem, they are caught up in the expectations of modern life. To paraphrase one of Al Smith's great lines, they would rather be lampposts on Tu Do Street in Saigon than province chiefs in the Delta.

Rural Society Disappearing

One can argue persuasively that were it not for the war, this trauma of modernization would not have hit the Vietnamese at such break-neck speed. This, however, is a very different argument from that advanced by some anti-war spokesmen that we are trying deliberately to destroy Vietnamese rural society. Rural society — whether in Asia, Africa or, for that matter, the United States — has historically been unable to compete with the myth of urban progress.

So maybe there are six million "refugees" in South Vietnam, but by the same definition there are probably a million "refugees" in New York City. Before the numbers game goes any further, it would be wise to study the demographic pattern in South Vietnam.

Senate Republicans In Enviable Position On Lucey's Budget

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Having accepted the decisive defeat of their cause in the state elections last fall, the Republicans in the legislature are now contentedly contemplating the opportunities presented by their veto power at a time when the electorate tends to assume that it gave the Democrats authority.

The Republican majority in the Senate is a substantial one. It would be an error to assume that it is a solid or assured one with respect to attitude — such as an unyielding conservatism, for example, or an automatic resistance to all that the Democrats desire or propose.

There is a characteristic of the Senate Republican personality that has continued for well over a decade that is little understood, no doubt because it is not readily susceptible to explanation. Among the Republican senators there is a substantial sprinkling of men of independent views, of uncertain political posture, who are sometimes called "mavericks" when the press gallery needs a convenient label for them. In a very general way, those men tend to be individualists, practical politicians who give a higher priority to their own political fortunes than to the principles of Republican ideology however defined.

Luxury of Choice

Nevertheless, these men run on the Republican ticket and they owe some respect to preferences (and prejudices) of regular Republicans if only to guard against upsets in primary elections and to have a dependable source of support otherwise — as in the increasingly important matter of campaign contributions.

One contemplative member of the Senate Republican caucus leaned back in his chair recently and told a visitor:

"Our position is really rather pleasant. We can choose the ground on which we want to fight. We can wait for the administration to propose, while we ponder how to dispose."

That is precisely what the Senate Republicans will do in the next two or three months in the basic struggles about the size and purpose of state budget appropriations and, more particularly, the method of lifting more tax money out of the purses of the people.

The situation is a comforting one, and perhaps no one knows it more expertly than Patrick Lucey, the man in the governor's office who must sometimes regret a system that will permit him to win by a margin equivalent to a landslide in modern Wisconsin politics but which yet denies him dependable support in the legislative branch.

Yet, the contemplative Republican knows that there are hazards. A posture of blind resistance would be harmful to the chances of beginning Republican recovery next year. The mantle that Lucey would wear, if he failed in his first-term major objectives, would be that of martyrdom under purposeful Republican partisan obduracy.

Republicans have little chance of exploiting Lucey's tax proposals, as policy. The promise of higher income taxes was virtually ratified by the electorate last fall when it supported Democrats who denounced Republicans as sales taxers and plainly stated the probability of higher income taxes.

Selection of Issues

The attractive and probably more fruitful course will be to taunt the administration on popular issues — the school aid question will be irresistible in view of the Lucey campaign stance and his failure to deliver. There also are higher education staffing, veterans benefits, and several others. The governor has already shown an apologetic stance on a number of them.

Such strategy may lure Democratic defectors, notably first-termers from normally Republican districts who won votes by attacking the Republicans for high local school taxes. Already administration men are conceding that they cannot hold their lines on the school aid question, among others.

Republicans thus would force upward the prospective deficit and higher state taxes. But the voter tends to identify such matters with the party in power as Republicans remember painfully from the campaign of last year.

Strictly Personal

Thoughts at Large Offered by Harris

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

It is worth keeping in mind that what is called "the conquest of nature" by science did not begin until man ceased manipulating nature for profitable results and began to seek for basic understanding; it was the theoretical quest for "truth" and not the practical search for "fruits" that (paradoxically) provided the greatest fruits.

"I've got to be me," said Jack the Ripper to himself, as he slithered about the London fog. "Self-expression is all that counts."

Women are more reliable than men in positions of trust; not that they are more inherently honest, but that they have no wives or mistresses to steal for.

What establishments can never see is that revolutions are not "caused" by subversives, who only take the credit for overthrowing a structure after the establishment itself has eroded the foundation by neglecting to make necessary reforms in time. (All successful revolutions are the result of reformists being rejected by the people in power, when they should be embraced as the saviors of the system.)

Unless you can transcend yourself, you cannot find yourself; "self-knowledge" is not a burrowing-in, but an arching out.

It's strange that we do our best to weed out the unfit in service of the state during war, but make no effort to weed out the unfit who offer their service to the state as candidates in time of peace; which is absurd, since such men are likely to lead us into an ill-considered war.

One way of distinguishing truth from all its counterfeits is by its modesty: truth demands only to be heard among others, while its counterfeits demand that others be silenced.

How long it takes us to accept, and act upon, even a commonplace maxim of intelligence about our society is expressed in a quote from W. E. B. Du Bois' book, "The Souls of Black Folk," written 70 years ago, which plainly told us: "The chief problem in any community cursed with crime is not the punishment of the criminals, but the preventing of the young from being trained to crime." (A warning almost totally neglected in the intervening seven decades of mounting slum crime.)

Why Not a Day Off For Feeling Good?

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

It would help relieve the monotony of office and factory life if every one individually and at his own choice took a day off now and then because he was feeling good rather than feeling ill. It could be called Personal Mental Health Day.

A woman is never at her best if she tries to carry on a conversation while eating an apple.

Women are generally grouchier when they wake up than men, and many of them hate to smile before noon. Some dislike even being spoken to until after they have eaten. A wife looking back over her 30-year marriage told her husband: "The worst cross I've had to bear during all those years is seeing you wake up in a good mood and coming humming to the breakfast table."

Juicy Shoptalk

The shoptalk of newspapermen is the most interesting of any professional group because it is the most varied; that of bankers is the dullest because it is about a banal commodity—money.

The value of a thing depends to a great extent on its usefulness. If weeds were found to be both edible and tasty, soon everyone would be complaining about the way the price of weeds was going up.

American manners are getting more genteel. How long has it been since you sat next to a guy in a diner and watched him sip his too-hot coffee from a saucer because it cooled quicker?

A father feels amused if he reads an unfinished love letter left in a typewriter by his teenage son; but if the mother reads it she feels sad, and may even be moved to tears.

One of the oddities of life is the fact that the fellow who does the least work in an office is also the one who wastes the most paper towels in the washroom while drying his face and hands.

What may kill us is sometimes easier to live with than something that merely annoys us. This is why you are permitted to smoke cigarettes on a commercial plane but the hostess gives you the no-no sign if you light up a cigar.

A recluse is a man who lives so far from a busy highway that he no longer can remember when he saw his last good car crash.

Sanitation is fine in its way, but the world has become so cleaned up that old age has been robbed of one of its most satisfying pleasures—sitting in a front porch rocker and swatting down houseflies. This time-consuming chore made an old-timer feel useful as well as cheerful.

The Useful Ear

Even though we hardly hear anything worth listening to these days, we can't dismiss our ears as obsolete. We still need them to anchor our spectacles on—in the hope that sooner or later we may see something worth looking at.

The thing a farmboy needs to learn most at an agricultural college today isn't what to grow and when to plant it but how to fill out a federal government form without breaking the family computer.

The good old days were those when people thought the best way to end a war was to win it. not just widen it.

If men's spats come back in style, will the bustle be far behind?

Ground Broken for Privately Funded $45 Million National Gallery Addition

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the National Gallery of Art opened in 1941 with some 125 pictures donated to the nation by Andrew W. Mellon, many supposed it would take a century to fill the vast marble structure.

In the 30 years since, there have been gifts of other major and lesser collections, the number of visitors has reached 2 million yearly and an extension service reaches 3 million more in some 3,000 communities across the country.

To ease the resultant crowding, the gallery breaks ground today for a new $45-million annex which it hopes to have open to the public in 1975.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Paul Mellon, son of the original donor who is gallery president, were designated speakers. Burger is chairman of the board of trustees.

Across Street

The site, reserved for possible expansion when Congress accepted the original Mellon gift in 1937, lies directly across Fourth Street from the existing gallery in the direction of the U.S. Capitol. It is flanked on one side by Pennsylvania Avenue; on the other by the Mall.

The plot, in the shape of a trapezoid, confronted the architect with an unusual design problem, added to the desirability of planning a structure which would not clash with the existing gallery yet have a distinctive character of its own.

"It could not look as though the National Gallery had a little pup," Director J. Carter Brown told a news briefing on the plans by I. M. Pei, winner of many architectural awards.

Pei came up with an angular concept, devoid of outside ornament. It might be described as a trapezoid divided into two triangles.

One of them will accommodate the main entrance, which faces the old gallery across Fourth Street. The entrance leads into a glass-enclosed sculpture area, covered by a 15,000-square foot skylight.

Towering above this will be three diamond-shaped towers which will contain "house museums," distinct yet connected by bridges also suitable for exhibiting works of art.

The other triangle portion of the East Building will house the staff, a six-story library and the new Center for Advanced Study in the Visual Arts to be used by scholars and the staff.

The old and new buildings will be connected below street level by a concourse containing a 700-seat cafeteria, a print and book salesroom, and a shipping and receiving area. The plaza over this area will be dominated by a 100-foot diameter pool and fountain. Glass-sided, it will carry some diffused light to the underground concourse.

Facing of the new structure will be of Tennessee marble, the same material used for the existing gallery.

The new building is being financed privately rather than through federal funds. Paul Mellon and his sister, Alisa Mellon Bruce, gave $20 million in November 1967. Brown said there have been other gifts which he did not specify but indicated that not enough is now on hand to finish the building fully.

Nearly All Swordfish Tainted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration advised the public today to stop eating swordfish because 95 per cent of all samples examined were contaminated with poisonous mercury.

Government officials acknowledged the virtually unprecedented warning would probably destroy the swordfish industry.

It is "particularly important" that children and women of child-bearing age refrain from consumption of the seafood, the FDA said following completion of a three-month government testing program for mercury in swordfish. A group of American and Canadian medical experts endorsed its findings.

"Despite extensive recalls by major distribution chains, despite FDA seizures totalling 832,000 pounds, and despite overall cooperation of swordfish brokers in withholding up to 4 million pounds from the market, the agency is still finding swordfish available to the public at or over the guideline," said FDA Chief Charles C. Edwards.

"On this basis and in view of full evaluation of test data by FDA and by outside experts, the FDA has no choice but to recommend at this time that the public not eat swordfish," Edwards said in a statement.

Of 853 swordfish samples examined by the government, only 5 per cent contained mercury below the FDA's safety guideline of 0.5 parts per million. The FDA said the average mercury level was twice the limit with 8 per cent of samples containing mercury higher than 1.5 parts per million.

Approximately 26 million pounds of the fish was consumed by Americans last year, with all but 4 million pounds imported from Japan and Canada. The remainder is caught in coastal waters off the Northeast and California.

The Small Business Administration last week declared swordfish ship owners, processors and distributors eligible for economic disaster loans.

Reagan Claims Privacy Invaded by Press Reports of Zero Income Tax

SACRAMENTO, Calif (AP) —Gov. Ronald Reagan has accused newsmen of an invasion of privacy in reporting that he did not pay a state personal income tax this year. And he says whoever gave them the tax information broke the law.

"Aren't you guys ashamed enough?" the Republican governor snapped Wednesday when reporters asked whether he paid any federal income tax this past year. He told the newsmen it was none of their business and said:

"Frankly, I think the Capitol press corps yesterday demeaned itself a little bit by engaging in an invasion of privacy. They asked a question, they already had the answer to."

Business Loss

Reagan said Tuesday he couldn't remember if he had to pay state income tax. His office later issued a statement saying he had not paid a tax because business losses offset his taxable income.

The source of the confidential tax information remains unknown. The report was first broadcast on the Sacramento State College radio station, KERS. Correspondent Rosemary King said she picked up the unverified report in Capitol hallways.

Reagan accused newsmen of knowing that someone illegally provided the information from the Franchise Tax Board.

The board's George Nelson said a check of the files showed that Reagan's returns had not been taken. "We have no reason to believe it came from here," he said. But he noted that "a lot of people" aid in processing the 5.5 million to 6 million returns received in April.

Reagan has always insisted that his personal wealth and his investments are his own business so long as there is no conflict of interest with his public position.

Jess Unruh, Reagan's Democratic opponent in the 1970 election for governor, insisted that no one could be sure if there was conflict or not unless Reagan made his financial affairs public as Unruh had. Reagan steadfastly maintained that was not necessry.

Neither Reagan nor his friends will comment in any detail on his investments or how he sustained enough losses during 1970 to offset tax obligation from his $44,100 salary as governor, let alone any other income he may have had.

But Capitol tax experts say it would not be unusual, particularly in a year like 1970 with its business slump.

No one has contended that anything was illegal. But Democrats in the legislature say it points out the "loopholes" in the state's tax laws that allow the affluent to pay less taxes than the middle class.

'Truth-in-Packaging' Law Misses Target

BY ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — The truth about the "truth-in-packaging" law is beginning to strike home with a vengeance.

The truth about the 1966 law is that it has done virtually nothing to reduce confusion in the super market. Most of the things it was designed to eliminate — such as odd package sizes, partially filled packages and deceptive labeling — continue to flourish.

Actually, not all consumer advocates were happy about the law as it finally passed Congress. Many were disappointed at the number of provisions struck from the bill or watered down to please business interests.

Others, led by Senator Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., the originator of the packaging bill, hailed the law as a victory for all shoppers. After battling for five years against heavy odds, he obviously was pleased to have any bill at all emerge.

Since the bill became effective nearly four years ago, minor improvements have been made in the labeling of many products. These include larger type sizes for disclosing net contents, better identification of the manufacturer and fuller information about the size of "servings."

The law also calls for voluntary adoption of standard sizes in order to reduce the confusing mixture of package sizes and shapes. The original bill would have made this mandatory.

With only the power of persuasion, the government has had only limited success in this field.

One consumer specialist in New York counted more than 150 different brands and sizes of breakfast cereals in one medium-sized super market. The same person found 63 sizes, types and brands of tuna, 27 toothpaste products, 48 potato chip products and 67 sizes and types of breakfast cereals.

Confusion Continues

Another consumer specialist, one who recently retired with that title from the Food and Drug Administration, says confusion in package sizes continues despite passage of the Federal law.

In a speech in St. Louis Loretta Johnson accused a "major cereal producer" of lowering the net content of three products without changing the size of the box. She said the company changed the net content figure on the label accordingly but did not change the package size.

This is an old trick, one which the "truth" law originally was designed to eliminate. Another old trick is pricing "economy" and "king size" packages higher per ounce than smaller packages.

A recent statewide survey of 29 super markets in Connecticut by the Connecticut Consumer Association showed that this device still is common on staple products.

Smaller Size Cheaper

Shoppers found several detergent products that were cheaper in the smaller size despite promotional material implying the opposite. A cooking oil was cheaper in the 38-ounce bottle than in the 48-ounce size and catsup was less per-ounce in the 20-ounce bottle than in the 32-ounce bottle.

The Connecticut shoppers also found a confusing variety of sizes, making price comparisons especially difficult for cereals, instant coffee, canned fruits and vegetables, soft drinks and other products.

What these surveys mean to a careful shopper is a continuing need for checking labels, sizes and prices.

National Guard Getting First Black General

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Guard is getting its first black general.

He is Col. C. C. Bryant, 49-year-old World War II combat veteran who is adjutant general of the District of Columbia National Guard.

There are more than 140 generals in the Army Guard and the Air Guard, but none is black.

Maj. Gen. Winston P. Wilson, chief of the National Guard Bureau, said, "I am tickled to see a man of his quality promoted to star rank. It had nothing to do with his race."

Bryant was promoted last Saturday at the District of Columbia level, but he told a reporter he doesn't intend to put on the silver star of a brigadier general until federal approval is completed.

A regular Army board will consider Bryant's promotion later this month. President Nixon then is expected to send a formal nomination to the Senate.

K-C Says They Are Safe

Plea for Boycott Hasn't Hurt Color Tissue Sales

NEW YORK (AP) — Makers of colored tissue say sales have not been hurt by claims that dyes used in their products are harmful to the environment.

The controversy over the dyes began a year ago when several major publications printed pollution survival instructions, or steps individuals could take to keep the environment clean. One item on their survival boycott list was colored tissue products such as toilet paper, facial tissues, paper towels and napkins.

The ecology groups contended the dyes could not be assimilated into ordinary waste treatment systems.

The tissue companies have maintained that the dyes used in colored tissue products do decompose in sewage and septic systems. They add that ecologists and environmental groups jumped the gun in denouncing these products without evidence to substantiate their claims.

"Now the environmental groups are retreating from their previous stand and some are admitting there's nothing to be concerned about," says Matthew Gould, corporate director of environmental control at Georgia Pacific Corp.

Concern Inc., an environmentally oriented consumer education group, says after researching the color tissue issue it found these products do not present a serious pollution problem

"Most of the dyes are biodegradable and while they use up a small amount of oxygen in water as they decompose so do the chemicals used to whiten plain tissues," the group says. Biodegradable means the dyes decompose naturally.

The tissue manufacturers refuse to release sales figures for competitive reasons. However, they say sales have not been affected and they have no plans to discontinue their lines of colored products.

Kimberly-Clark Corp., which sells about 60 per cent colored tissue products and 40 per cent white, says sales of its colored products were never affected by the dye controversy. And although they receive letters from consumers asking about the safety of their colored products, the company adds there has been no organized pressure to remove its colored products from the market.

"The consumer obviously wants to use colored tissues. And we intend to keep manufacturing and selling them because we believe they are safe," a spokesman for Kimberly-Clark says.

"Based on evidence from our own research and that of others we believe colored tissue products are safe and have no adverse affect on the environment. We don't intend to discontinue our line of colored products," says a spokesman for Scott Paper Co., the nation's largest producer of white tissue products.

Redistricting Certain to be Painful

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — State legislators showed in a decisive way Wednesday that they are not eager to undertake the delicate and always painful job of legislative reapportionment that is their duty this year under the explicit terms of the state constitution.

In a vote that shattered political party lines, the Wisconsin assembly declined a Republican proposal to set up a special joint legislative committee to begin work immediately on the complex and tedious task of reshaping the political geography of Wisconsin to conform with the distribution of population as shown in the 1970 census.

The assembly vote was 56 to 42 to reject the special joint committee plan.

The apparent result will be that each house will consider the reapportionment problem independently and hope that the senate will approve what the assembly devises or the assembly will accept what the senate sends to it sometime later this year. The lawmakers have been in Madison since January.

Rep. James Sensenbrenner of Shorewood, minority spokesman on the Democrat-controlled assembly committee on elections which will be in charge of redistricting plans for the lower house, pinpointed the unique partisan circumstances that will make an acceptable reapportionment plan more difficult than ever before in a legislature that demonstrated in other times that even under one-party control it could not perform the task adequately.

(The current Wisconsin legislative apportionment results from an order of the State Supreme Court early in the 1960s, when the court found that the legislative redistricting was not in compliance with the equal representation or "one man, one vote" principle.)

"It is imperative that a reapportionment plan be prepared under non-partisan sponsorship," said Sensenbrenner in support of a joint committee representing Republicans and Democrats equally

"The Republican Senate will refuse to approve a Democratic gerrymander, and the Democratic assembly will reject a Republican gerrymander." he asserted.

Rep. Norman Anderson of Madison, Democratic majority leader, said he objected to the idea of a joint committee because a Republican state senator would be named chairman. Anderson and others evidently reflected also the resistance of Rep. Fred Kessler of Milwaukee to the idea because it would circumvent the committee on elections which Kessler heads.

The suspicion and worry on the subject that is already surfacing was suggested by Rep. Tommy Thompson of Elroy, R., who said "rural interests" are apprehensive about Kessler's committee because it is dominated by urban members including four from Milwaukee.

Kessler told the house that his committee has not yet started work on a redistricting bill because detailed data in Milwaukee county is not yet available.

Regents Told To Oppose Merger Plan

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Regents were advised Wednesday, by a committee they had appointed, to oppose Gov. Patrick J. Lucey's plans for merging administrative segments of Wisconsin's collegiate systems.

"The governor's message indicated that a saving of $4 million during the biennium could be achieved through merger. This saving appears, at best, to be illusory," the committee said.

On the contrary, a committee report argued, "added administrative responsibilities placed in the central administration of a merger system would far exceed the present UW center administration costs."

The University of Wisconsin's Board of Regents would be merged with the Board of Regents of the nine-college state universities system under Lucey's plan, with the Coordination Council for Higher Education being eliminated.

Lucey has said it is a waste of money to have dual regents systems overseen by the CCHE.

The committee report insists the estimated $4 million biennial saving is comparable to the colleges' central administration budget and the CCHE budget.

The report said a merger would lead to cost increases elsewhere, including the potential demands by college faculty for salary parity with UW professors.

Assembly Bill Bans Lie Detector Tests

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The Wisconsin Assembly Wednesday passed, 88-11, a bill which would forbid employers from using lie detector tests in screening employes or applicants for jobs.

"The snooping, the spying an intrusion upon the private lives of this country has reached enormous proportions," remarked Rep. Edward Nager, D-Madison a bill pdoponent.

One section of the measure also would forbid an employer to require a signed statement agreeing to polygraph examinations from prospective employes.

Rep David Berger, D-Milwaukee, told the Assembly his brother and a large number of fellow employes of the Burger-King Corp. in Milwaukee were submitted to lie detector tests after a theft from the firm. Berger said such tests deprive persons of their constitutional

What You Can Do For Person in Shock

BY G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr Thosteson In some accidents, the aftermath of shock is a contributing cause of death Would you explain how a layman can determine shock, and what he might do to help the victim until professional help arrives? — V S

Shock is serious It may be more than a "contributing cause" It can, in fact, be fatal

But it is also a condition which a layman cannot be expected to diagnose, nor can he give specific treatment for it

He can, however, suspect it — and give appropriate first aid

There are various causes of shock other than accidents, but in accidents shock occurs from extensive bleeding (internal or external), extreme pain, head injury, or sheer fright — or some combination of them

The victim is dazed, his skin pale and moist, pulse rapid and very weak and thready Blood pressure is low, but this cannot be determined without instruments

There isn't very much to do in the way of first aid, but what there is can be important Keep the patient lying flat Keep his head down; even elevate feet and legs a bit.

Keep him warm with a blanket, jacket, or anything that's available.

Do not try to give him anything to drink.

If his breathing is impaired, his tongue may have fallen back. Gently roll his head to one side

Do not try to move him except to get him to safety from some real hazard; i e , fire, moving traffic, etc.

If you must move him at all, do it gently but be careful to keep him flat. Obviously, professional help should be summoned as soon as possible; the earlier treatment for shock begins, the better the prospects.

Dear Dr Thosteson: I recently had a Pap test and the result said, "Abnormalities present" I am to have another test taken What can this mean except the possibility of cancer? — Mrs R S

Various things, from a temporary hormone imbalance to some infection, can cause abnormalities in the cells that are examined in a Pap test. It doesn't necessarily mean cancer

But still, abnormalities also may be detected before they have gone so far as to become cancerous The main reason for the Pap test is to detect cancer early

So go back for your next test You may find things returning to normal If abnormalities are still present, it may be wise to continue frequent tests until the true state of affairs becomes definite. Contraceptive pills can produce "abnormal" cells but not cancerous ones.

Dear Dr Thosteson Please tell me if four highballs, an ounce and a half of bourbon each and water, is too much for a mild diabetic in his 50s to drink each evening?

He never drinks anything else, is not on medication for the diabetes, only diet, and tries to cut down on everything and eliminates sweets altogether.

His blood pressure recently has been high, but the doctor will not prescribe anything to lower it, and says it will go down if he can lose some weight He is about 30 pounds overweight. — Mrs. J.M.

Six ounces of whisky every night? Yes, it's too much. It also is helping to build up those 30 excess pounds which he ought to lose both because of the diabetes and his blood pressure

COG to Arrange Membership for 3 Valley Counties

The Fox Valley Council of Governments will initiate negotiations with at least the three mid-Fox Valley counties to arrange for them to join COG, if COG's governing body goes along with its policy committee's recommendation.

The committee Wednesday voted unanimously to seek an acceptable financial and voting-power arrangement with at least Calumet. Outagamie and Winnebago counties. The COG chairman would appoint a reorganization committee which would then contact counties' officials for talks.

COG delegates last month ordered the committee to study this possibility as an alternative to dissolving COG and forming a new planning agency. Recent federal and state planning regulation changes and the designation of the tri-county metropolitan area by the U.S. Bureau of the Budget have necessitated a regional planning boundary change.

County Lines

COG members are towns, villages and cities but the future agency must be along county lines, and the three counties must be part of one agency to qualify for federal funding after Dec. 31, 1971.

Policy committeemen noted the major problem would be to effect a dual county-municipality representation on the COG governing body. However, they felt that it could be worked out and agreed to open the way for discussions.

Specifically, they voted to recommend that the counties pay 50 per cent of the annual operating cost and the municipalities pay 50 per cent. However, they made it clear this was simply to provide a starting point for discussions with county officials.

The committee also voted to recommend the COG bylaws be changed so municipalities could wait until later in the year to decide on withdrawing for the possible formation of a new agency. COG delegates expressed concern that they might be left without an agency for a period — possibly affecting federal funds eligibility — if they withdrew by June 30, as is now required.

Many Possibilities

Committeemen viewed the range of possibilities with county membership. Counties might have representatives along with municipal representatives, or counties might take over the entire representation, it was suggested.

There are other possibilities, including no county-level officials on the COG board, but municipal officials from throughout the county.

Eugene Franchett, COG executive director, said that it should be remembered that the municipalities do most of the federal grant applying.

For committee discussion purposes, Franchett outlined a possibility. He said that counties could have representation based

Council Tells City to Hire Relief Recipients First

BY CLIFF MILLER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Appleton has its own version of a "work-fare" program, following City Council action Wednesday ordering able-bodied relief recipients hired for public works jobs whenever possible.

The council adopted a resolution offered by four aldermen, ordering the public works director to notify the welfare director of all part-time job openings. In addition, persons already notified they have been hired for part-time work this summer were ordered placed under review and replaced by relief recipients wherever possible.

According to a list of part-time workers hired during 1970, the new orders may mean relatives of various city officials and full-time employes, including sons and nephews seeking summertime jobs between school semesters, may be displaced from jobs they held in past summers.

Part-Time Workers

There were 38 persons employed part-time last year in various divisions of the public works department, including streets, sanitation, sewage treatment and engineering. Of those, nearly half were under 21 years of age and several are relatives of local officials or city employes.

Welfare Director Merton Ehricke said of 55 persons on the relief rolls at present, 11 are unemployable due to some form of incapacitation and 44 remaining are considered employable.

He agreed to make the list available to the personnel and public works offices.

Ald. Edward Maloney (9th), chairman of the committee that oversees Ehricke's department, pointed out that the director has referred his recipients to the personnel office in the past. "With all the publicity this will just make it easier for them to get help," Maloney concluded.

Personnel Director Gerald Lang said he wasn't appointed until after part-time workers for last summer already were hired, so he was unable to answer whether relief recipients have been among those hired

Mayor George Buckley, whose bias against what he calls "reliefers" is well known, said it "would do my heart good" to see them "spend some time gainfully employed, instead of watching their color TV's and polishing their Cadillacs."

Ald. Norman Beyer (20th) led the move to have the proposal adopted immediately, without the customary referral first to a committee for study.

Beyer, one of the four sponsors of the resolution and chairman of the streets and sanitation committee which supervises departments which are now to hear relief recipients, said he sought immediate action to avoid two more weeks of relief payments to persons who might be hired.

Aldermen Peter Beckley (10th), one of the four signers of the resolution, and Walter Kalata (2nd) asked whether the proposal really would work.

Needed Skills

Public Works Director Robert Miller said that depends on whether people with the skills needed in the jobs can be found on the relief rolls.

Ald. Glenn Thompson (13th) said he would vote for the measure "because it's very unpopular to do anything else," but he added he hoped the council wasn't setting a precedent that would require a person to be on relief in order to be hired by the city in the future. The remark drew a burst of laughter.

Ald. Beverly Wieckert (11th) asked a parallel but serious question, whether being on relief would alone guarantee being hired. She was told that ability appropriate to the job would also be required.

The council unanimously adopted the measure, although Aldermen Stoegbauer (4th) and Day (19th) voted "present" and were recorded as voting "aye."

Relief Burden

$2,000 Bus Subsidy Gets Council OK

Appleton aldermen Wednesday carried out the apparent wishes of the voters in last month's referendum, approving a monthly subsidy up to a $2,000 ceiling to cover operating losses of Fox River Bus Lines, Inc.

The monthly maximum is $1,000 less than the ceiling on the temporary subsidy in effect for nine months last year. But Finance Director David Champion said the average payments during the last half of the year totaled just over $2,000.

In setting the subsidy rate for this year, the council also approved paying $15,695 to cover losses up to $3,000 per month during the July - through - December period of last year, an average of $2,616 per month

The subsidy applies to the line's urban bus routes only, and is subject to monthly operating statements being filed by the line with the city for audit.

Voter Approval

Voters approved the subsidy by a 10,000 to 2,700 margin in the April 6 referendum.

The council vote of approval was unanimous.

In other business, the council:

—Authorized City Atty. David Geenen to defend Welfare Director Merton C. Ehricke in the Circuit Court case scheduled for hearing May 12 on Mayor George Buckley's petition for a court order letting him examine Ehricke's relief case files.

Final OK

The council gave final approval to creation of a special zoning district for drive-in-type businesses, including service stations, making it more difficult for developers of such establishments to conceal their intentions within a general commercial zoning application.

Aldermen also received copies of a proposed "Planned Group Housing" zoning category, Planning Director Jack Hetu's alternative to conventional row housing in the city. Aldermen and other officials have been asked to submit comments to the Plans Commission, which has before it an application for a circular row house development in the 13th Ward.

Ald. Glenn Thompson (13th) pointed out that creating the new zoning class would mean possible applications in any of the city's 20 wards.

"Object Strenuously"

While critical of the circular development plan, he has stopped short of total opposition, advocating various restrictions He told the council concerning the proposed zoning ordinance, "I do not have too many objections to it as written, but I will object to it very strenuously if it is watered down in any way."

—Received and ordered a public hearing on a change from single family to apartment zoning on a 1.8 acre tract on N. Mason Street, which has prompted strong opposition from neighbors who say the area can't absorb any more apartments. The Plans Commission has recommended approving the zoning change over the objections

—Was prevented from voting on a Plans Commission recommendation to ask the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) for a hearing on a bulkhead line recently denied by the DNR, to permit filling a bay of the Fox River at Telulah Park. Ald. Beverly Wieckert (11th) referred the matter back to the commission without comment for reconsideration at the next commission meeting

—Heard a spokesman for the Appleton Labor Temple Association object to a proposed assessment for water main to be installed along the Ballard Road side of the site of the new labor temple to be built this year. The association already has been assessed for a main installed in Northland Avenue, the spokesman said. The council adopted the final resolution to levy the assessments after noting that the association may still seek relief from its assessment.

Effective Use of Personnel Is Boettcher's Main Duty

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Jerome Boettcher's responsibilities as Appleton schools' director of operations are to use the instructional and administrative people in the best interests of educational efficiency.

He is much like a corporation general manager. He is responsible for the daily operation of the 23 school buildings, as well as the actions of the 22 principals and more than 800 other school personnel.

While his duties may come close to the academic services director's curriculum control, Boettcher said his deal "more in the actual process of instruction than curriculum." This means evaluation of teachers and administrators' performances, both of which he hopes eventually to spend more and more time with.

Upgrading staff will be by two methods — shifting personnel into areas where they have strengths and weeding out undesirables.

"The main thing we're seeking is a more effective operation, better use of one's talents, and the ability to supplement where the talents aren't quite so strong," he said.

The weeding out will be a more complicated process since the age of the negotiated contract but Boettcher said the teachers association has indicated it would cooperate

Jerome Boettcher

There's no question about getting quality replacements for vacancies — this spring he has had 1,400 applications for eight teaching vacancies, he said.

On evaluating existing personnel, he said that he will be able to make more sound evaluations because he will be able to be in closer contact with the schools and because of a responsibility and communications system incorporated as recommended by the consultant.

Evaluation Team

"We can be more on top of things," he said, noting it won't be a matter of responding to an emergency but rather anticipating one.

The 22 principals will be key members of his evaluation team. Their authority and responsibility has been broadened under the team approach.

Boettcher also has group leaders who are his pipelines and advisers on building activities. They include four elementary, one junior high and one senior high principal, and these leader posts periodically will be rotated

"They are helping in communications, keeping on the pulse of things and allowing us to avoid large group meetings," he said.

He listed several projects they

Lorge Dislikes GOP Budget, Plans to Draft Own Version

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Sen. Gerald Lorge, R-Bear Creek, plans to introduce his own budget bill in the legislature, he revealed in explaining his failure to sign a budget proposal to be introduced by the Senate Republicans as an alternative to Gov. Patrick Lucey's spending and taxing plan.

Lorge said, in an interview following the release late Wednesday of the Republican's announced budget plan, that his budget will involve no tax increases and retention of the present tax schedule. Increased funding for state programs would be accomplished, Lorge said, by use of an expected $200 million growth in receipts over the last biennium from the present tax structure.

The Bear Creek Republican said that his budget would provide first and specifically for the needs of the elementary and secondary school districts. The balance of the state revenue would be apportioned on a need basis to the various departments and state agencies.

Separate Bills

The other Senate Republicans announced they would remove the major policy changes the governor proposes from the budget and submit the issues as separate bills, restore programs cut by the governor that were termed "worthwhile" and eliminate low-priority new programs and expansion of existing programs that are funded without federal assistance.

The Senate Republican proposal drafted by Sen. Jack Steinhilber, R-Oshkosh, who serves on the legislature's Joint Finance Committee, also provides for no tax increase while it includes measures to restore a number of programs cut from budget requests by the governor.

High priorities among the restorations include service "to the patients at the King Veterans Home," and programs for the blind, the mentally infirm in county hospitals, legislative scholarships for nurses and "other deserving students and farm youth programs".

Specific Programs

The programs referred to include expansion of the Grand Army Home at King the governor has proposed be cut back; retention of the library for the blind in Milwaukee the governor proposed be moved to and consolidated with the state school for the blind at Janesville; continuing present levels of state aid to county hospitals that the governor proposes be cut in favor of increasing aid to comprehensive mental health programs; and continued guarantee of state assistance to county fairs that might be victims, along with the state fair the governor has proposed discontinuing.

Lucey also proposed that funds earmarked for grants to nurses seeking training as nursing teachers be consolidated with other special aids and be distributed in smaller amounts than the present nurse education aids are distributed

"The governor's so-called austerity cuts deeply into programs affecting people who are least able to speak out for and protect their legitimate interests," the Senate Republican's statement says. It "starves Peter to feed Paul in order to create the false impression of economy and austerity while at the same time proposing to stifle economic growth and the creation of new job opportunities.

"It is time to stop just talking about austerity and start making it a fact of life," the statement said.

Bicycle Ride Will Aid Retarded Children

A 25-mile bike ride to raise funds for retarded children has been planned for May 22, beginning at 9 a.m.

The ride is sponsored by the Youth Association for Retarded Children, the Appleton Bicycle Club and the New Concepts Foundation. The latter has its headquarters in Madison and works with adult retarded.

The foundation, the Wisconsin Youth Association for Retarded Children and the local association each will get a third of the funds raised from the ride.

Each of the participants is to get a sponsor, either a business place or a private party. The two agree on an amount for each mile the participant rides, which will be turned over to the retarded associations after the person collects from the sponsor.

There will be five starting points: Roosevelt, Einstein, Wilson and Madison junior high schools, and Xavier High. All will head out to Wisconsin Avenue at 9 a.m., riding east to Kimberly, Little Chute, Kaukauna, Wrightstown and back.

Anyone interested may pick up forms at all the Appleton junior and senior high schools, including Xavier and Fox Valley Lutheran, as well as the bicycle shops in Appleton. Additional information is available from Dale Ihm, 739-2780 in the evenings.

The idea began with the Einstein Student Council. More than 300 forms were picked up the first few days after the idea was circulated, according to Ihm, a teacher there.

The tour is open to young people age 12 and above as well as adults. There will be adult supervision throughout the tour and five checkpoints will be set up for assistance, if needed. Any rider can stop at any of the checkpoints to have his ride certified and return home from there.

Computer Studies Aid Fox Water Use

A duo of computerized models for the Fox River can show industries and municipalities how to guide future water use.

Four U.S. Geological Service hydrologists and a state geological and Natural History Survey geologist explained today in Appleton how computer studies can aid development.

They can prepare two plans. The first, which could be started by mid-summer, would investigate the level of ground water in Outagamie, Winnebago, Calumet, Fond du Lac and Brown counties.

It would cost an estimated $114,000. Local funds would pay for an estimated 25 per cent of the project.

The second part of the study, an investigation of surface water, would be conducted by the U.S. Geological Survey

Officials declined to estimate the cost of a study until industry and municipal representatives outline the objectives of the "model plan."

"You should have firmly in mind what are the objectives you want to use it (the surface water model) for," said Stanley Sauer, U.S. Geological Survey hydrologist from Washington

A "multitude of techniques" may be used but he recommended investigations of the long-term effects of development on the river.

Flood Water

Studies involving short "time-frames" are more complex and costs are increased, he said. He also noted that flood water investigation largely is the domain of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Girl Saved After Leap From Bridge

A 19-year-old Appleton girl is in intensive care at Appleton Memorial Hospital today after leaping off the E. College Avenue Bridge early this afternoon. She fell at least 60 feet.

Police said they took her from the Fox River with the use of the police boat. Nurses at the hospital, who didn't immediately know the girl's condition, said that tests were to be performed.

The girl's identity was being withheld.

The 25-Year-Old St. Francis Library, 116 S Walnut St., recently changed its appearance and goals. In addition to a library, it became the St. Francis Social Center, where people can drop in for a cup of coffee or just rest after shopping. The hours are from 2 to 5 p.m. daily. It is under the direction of the Third Order of St. Francis, a group of laymen dedicated to the ideals of the patron saint. Neenah Approves Park Plan; Asks for State Assistance

NEENAH — The city council Wednesday night adopted the park and recreation commission's seven-year comprehensive plan and immediately started to implement it by applying for $5,100 in state and federal aid.

The plan spreads about $1 million in capital spending over the seven years with emphasis on development of Memorial Park.

Before the city could apply for the federal LAWCON and State ORAP-200 funds, it needed the comprehensive plan

According to the plan, $86,800 is earmarked for Memorial Park development over the next two years with $50,000 going for a shelter plus another $22,500 to get city water and sewer into the shelter site

If the federal and state funds are approved, LAWCON will pay half the development cost. ORAP will add another 25 per cent and the city is expected to pick up the remaining quarter, or about $21,700.

William Miller, park and recreation superintendent, said today that the application, which was approved by the council, will be going into the Department of Natural Resources before the end of the month.

DNR Review

Copies of the comprehensive plan also have to clear the Fox Valley Council of Governments open space committee before being forwarded to the State Department of Local Affairs and Development

The DNR, however, is the state agency which administers the LAWCON and ORAP funds, and the plan has already been reviewed and cleared by them.

Miller predicted that if the state and federal funds are approved, the Memorial Park development could be accelerated because local tax money then could be steered to other areas.

Adoption of the plan will also clear the way for applications of other park developments including the newly acquired Southeast Park site, which was purchased with federal and state financial help.

With anticipated federal and state funds, the city's share of the $1 million comprehensive plan will be just under $50,000 a year

The biggest item in the plan is the scheduled pool construction at Memorial Park in 1973 at an estimated $600,000 cost.

Jobless Claims Drop

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Unemployment compensation claims filed in Wisconsin last week totaled 49,817, compared with 53,059 a week earlier, the department of labor, industry and human relations reported today.

TB Testing Checked By Health Department

OSHKOSH — A "most unusual" seven positive TB skin test reactions in Lakeview School's first graders has the county health department actively looking for the source of infection.

Head nurse Dorothy Mitchell told the Health Committee Wednesday that the unusual number meant the nurses were returning to the school to test a few children missed the first time around, teachers, bus drivers, maintenance people and school clerks.

The children with positive reactions are from scattered places in the school's area and share no common baby sitter or similar contact, Mrs. Mitchell said.

The TB discovery and treatment pattern sends people with positive skin tests to Sunnyview Sanatarium's outpatient dispensary for x-rays. The families of positive reactors are given skin tests and x-rays if they are positive too.

Those with the disease are now almost always put on drugs and treated as outpatients. This is especially true of any little ones.

The monthly activity report showed only one case of VD. The committee questioned the accuracy of this. Mrs. Mitchell said most of the cases were handled by Oshkosh State University's student health department. Dr. Charles Lyons, head of the department, refused to discuss the number of people his department treats.

Mrs. Mitchell said private physicians were not reporting cases to the state as required by law. State district health officer Daniel Jawoski confirmed her observation.

Bill Would Allow Forming Of Metro Sewage Districts

MADISON — Legislation that would enable county boards to create metropolitan sewerage districts has been introduced in the assembly by Rep. Gordon (Bud) Bradley, R-Oshkosh.

Since the Wisconsin Supreme Court ruled, in a case involving Fond du Lac, that present statutes giving the power to create metro sewerage districts to county courts was an unconsitutional delegation of legislative powers, there has been no legislation to allow creation of metropolitan districts in the state.

Bradley, who submitted the legislation on request of the Winnebago County board, said he hoped the legislature would pass it and "give the authority to create metropolitan sewerage districts to the proper body."

The bill would allow creation of districts across county lines by giving primary responsibility to the county board of the county in which the largest part of the proposed district is located.

But all counties involved in a district must consent before an order could go into effect.

The bill also provides for appeal of an order by a metro sewerage commission for review by the primary county board, and, following that, the circuit court.

Co-sponsors of the legislation were Rep. Jon Guiles, R-Oshkosh, and Sen. Jack Steinhilber, R-Oshkosh.

Missing Aldermen Delay Fund OK

NEENAH — With only seven of ten aldermen present, the city council was unable to take any money from the unappropriated account, and as a result, a pair of projects will be delayed at least one day.

The Neenah-Menasha Sewerage Commission had asked for $4,073 which would be Neenah's share of soil boring tests needed before the additions can be started at the treatment plant. An extra $1,549 is also needed to buy a new police department boat.

A three-quarters majority is needed to appropriate money. However, the figure is of the entire council, not just those present, so the seven members present could not make up the required number.

Absent were Ald. Robert Troyer, First Ward, whose mother died Monday; Ald. Michael G Ellis, Third Ward, and Harold Young, Tenth Ward.

Both appropriations will come up tonight in a special city council session preceding a committee-of-the-whole meeting to discuss clear water separation and sewer flooding.

Despite the lack of a majority to vote on appropriations, there's a chance that the sewerage commission request would have been defeated anyway because Ald. Walter "Doc" Loehning, and Thomas Willarson voted against the $4,000 expenditure.

Soil Borings

Loehning, pointing to a recent report that the commission wanted to hire 10 additional employes, said, "If they've got enough money to pay 10 more men, then they've got enough money to pay for the soil borings."

"And, we gave them $290,000 just a couple of months ago. Why can't they take this money from there?" Loehning asked.

Willarson said, "Pretty soon we'll be appropriating money for a sewer user fee study, and I think it can all be done at one time."

Today Mayor Roman V. Hauser said that a decision on who to hire to conduct the sewer user fee study would probably come "sometime next week."

Menasha has already okayed a contract with Consoer Townsend Associates, the firm which is also designing the sewage plant addition, but Neenah is giving serious consideration to a proposal from Haven, Garlock, Shatz and Otto, a Neenah accounting firm.

Hauser pointed out that a meeting was scheduled Friday with city officials and Millan Vuchich, who is in charge of Oshkosh State University's department of urban and regional planning.

Neenah has a computer time contract with OSU and Hauser indicated that there might be a possibility of putting some of the statistics for the user study on the computer for analysis.

"We're talking about a lot of money," Hauser said referring to the Consoer-Townsend proposal, "especially with the incinerator being included."

The total C&T proposals call for about $27,000 from each city for user fee and incineration, while the local firm's proposal would cost the city about $12,000 for its half share.

Paul Mueller Has Appointment To School Board

NEENAH — Only 29 days after bowing out of public life, Paul Mueller is back in it, this time as an appointed member of the school board.

Mayor Roman V. Hauser's appointment of Mueller to the school board was unanimously approved by the city council Wednesday night. Mueller will replace Richard Truitt who resigned when he was transferred out of the city. The term will expire July 1, 1973.

Mueller was defeated in April in a try for re-election as First Ward alderman. He had served three consecutive terms on the city council.

He goes to the school board as a former member of the fiscal control body which controls the school board's purse strings.

He is also a former chairman of the city council's finance committee and led the move to reduce the school's budget six months ago.

Contacted this morning, Mueller said, "As a recent member of the fiscal control body, I'll do my best to bring the thinking of the citizens, as expressed to me, to the board, and I'll also try to bring the school board thinking to the fiscal control body."

"As a former alderman, I feel that some of the public may feel that I'm more readily accessible because of my previous experience," Mueller said.

Referring to his experience on the finance committee, Mueller said, "I believe I can acquaint the school board with the philosophy of the city in relation to establishment of the tax rate and the overall city needs."

Police Like Fact Finder's Report but Menasha Doesn't

MENASHA — Police and city negotiators met in a combination open-closed session Wednesday night, and declined to comment on what progress if any, had been made after it was all over.

No progress was apparently made during the open session when Local 34, Menasha Professional Policeman's Association said it would accept the recommendations of state fact-finder Philip Marshall as a basis for a new contract, and the city said it wouldn't.

The city then made two separate pay offers, one with a top salary level of $770 (the same the fact-finder recommended) which a patrolman could reach only on the basis of merit.

The other provided for a top of $755, but made no provision for merit

The merit increase step in the first proposal would not go into effect until July 1

"I think the city's offer was more than generous," Mayor James Adams said today. "In fact, I think it's overly generous, on the basis of economic conditions in the Valley" and other settlements we've reached with city employes."

The association's negotiator, Appleton Atty Gordon Myse, would not give a reaction to the city offer The association reacted to it in a closed session that followed the initial open session Wednesday, but both sides appeared anxious to keep quiet what was said in that session.

Adams, city negotiator Third Ward Ald Sumner Parker and Myse all said, "I don't know" when asked if they felt any progress had been made Wednesday.

All Parker would say is that "the city will await word from the police," meaning apparently a reaction to the city's latest offer

Last Offer?

He would not comment when asked if this would be the city's last offer to patrolmen

Myse would say nothing, other than it was "entirely possible" that the patrolman's group would vote on the city offer He did not say when.

Neither side mentioned a future meeting date. No one even suggested one, when asked if one had been set.

The city's two latest offers provide for a starting pay of $620, and following steps of $650 and $680 They differ after that, with one providing for two subsequent steps of $715 and $755, and the other calling for steps to $710 and $745, with the $770 merit increase tacked on

The city's previous top offer had been $735.

The Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission fact-finder had recommended a pay schedule starting at $650 and going to $770 That was much closer to the request the association had made which went from $675 to $775, than it was to the city's last offer recognized by Marshall, which ranged from $610 to $735

The present salary schedule for patrolmen ranges from $590 to $690.

The News-Record did not attend the initial open session held Wednesday night, although it was aware of it

The city had asked that the session be open, and Local 34 agreed. After the city made its offer, however, the association requested negotiations go back behind closed doors

Bleak Jobless Picture Getting a Bit Brighter

By ROBERT O'MEARA
Associated Press Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Glimmers of hope are emerging in Wisconsin's unemployment picture this spring.

Joblessness, however, continues to be a serious problem in many areas of the state. And the outlook for summer employment of students is far from encouraging.

On the bright side, the State Department of Labor, Industry and Human Relations reported a 9.5 per cent decline in the number of unemployed persons in March, the last month for which figures were available. The total in March was 109,900, compared with 121,500 the previous month. In contract, the jobless figure in March a year ago was down to 79,000.

One of the more encouraging areas is Milwaukee, the most heavily populated region in the state, where unemployment dropped from a peak of 5.9 per cent in February to 5.4 in March.

In Madison and the surrounding area, unemployment is up 31.6 per cent over a year ago, with about 5,000 jobless. That's about 3.5 per cent of the work force.

Young people appear to be getting a break in the Madison region, however, with firms pledging 2,000 summer jobs, about half of them to disadvantaged youngsters.

A survey by Associated Press member newspapers around the state indicates joblessness, while far from severe, is still a problem.

Janesville area officials said they were pessimistic over the chances of high school and college students finding worthwhile summer employment. Joblessness in Janesville showed signs of decreasing this spring after reaching an uncomfortable 7.8 per cent of the work force in January.

"There's a very poor outlook for students," said Edward McDermott, supervisor of the Janesville office of the Wisconsin State Employment Service (WSES). "Most of the factories have people laid off who would probably be rehired before any students' would be employed.

Eau Claire has about a 5 per cent unemployment rate, with the building trades industry accounting for a major part of that.

In the Appleton-Neenah-Menasha area of the Fox River Valley, there was a drop earlier this year in paper and allied industries while government and service industries remained stable.

Unemployment in Fond du Lac County currently is estimated at 6.6 per cent, with about 2,200 unemployed out of a labor force of 33,100. More than 600 persons recently applied for 200 full and part-time jobs at a new department store in Fond du Lac.

The unemployment rate in the Waukesha area is not expected to ease up until September.

Peter Murphy, manpower specialist for the WSES, said the jobless rate in the Waukesha area is at 5 per cent of the work force, compared with 2.8 per cent a year ago.

In northern Wisconsin, the job outlook for students this summer was described as bleak. Employment is difficult to find, with many students waiting for resort openings.

The most recent figures for Sheboygan County showed an unemployment rate of 4.1 per cent. A year ago it was 3.4 per cent and in May, 1969, 1.9 per cent. But E. L. O'Neil, district manpower director for the WSES, said Sheboygan County has steadily shown the lowest unemployment rate of the 27 state districts.

In the Green Bay region, 4,000 persons were unemployed according to the latest available figures. That was down 200 from earlier in the year but up sharply from a year ago when 3,000 persons were out of work.

Spending for Safety Campaign Criticized

MADISON, Wis (AP) — The flap over Gov. Patrick J. Lucey's decision to hire a Washington, D.C., firm for highway safety broadcasts grew into a full-fledged political controversy in the Wisconsin Senate Tuesday.

"This smacks a little bit of political payoff," Sen. Roger Murphy, R-Waukesha, said of the $30,000 the Democratic chief executive seeks to pay Guggenheim Productions, Inc.

Guggenheim produced many of Lucey's advertisements during his successful bid for the governorship last year.

The Democratic minority leader, Fres Risser of Madison, defended Lucey's hiring of the out-of-state firm, saying Wisconsin should do everything possible to reduce traffic deaths.

The saving of one life, Risser asserted, would make the $30,000 investment worthwhile.

State Talent

GOP lawmakers in both houses pounced on Lucey's decision, contending he should have sought talent within Wisconsin for the advertisements.

Republican Sen. Gerald Lorge of Bear Creek, chairman of the Senate Committee on Banking and Insurance, was critical of more than just the Guggenheim contract.

"We're spending $5 million statewide for public relations in Wisconsin," Lorge complained. The money, he said, "is being squandered to aggrandize department heads and university officials."

Lorge said if the legislature's Joint Finance Committee fails to take action to halt payment to the Guggenheim firm, he would initiate a move that his committee study the matter.

Risser ridiculed Republicans for making an issue of the $30,000 and the fact that it was destined for an out-of-state firm.

"We ought to go to the best possible place" in an effort to reduce highway accidents, Risser said.

"We have about 1,100 deaths in Wisconsin every year and about 100,000 injuries," he added. "One of these deaths costs more than $30,000.

Murphy, however, contended "too much money is being squandered in Wisconsin for Madison Avenue operations."

"At a time when we have unemployment in Wisconsin, this money should be used in Wisconsin," he said.

Lucey's decision also came under attack in the Assembly. The GOP assistant minority leader, John Shabaz of New Berlin, said the matter "comes with ill grace at a time when the governor is clamoring for austerity."

New Postal Service Now 2 Months Away

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Q.: Where's the most economical place to buy prints by American artists?

A.: At the Post Office — assuming a plan now being pushed by the National Gallery in Washington goes through.

Q.: Where is the best place to apply for a passport?

A.: At the Post Office — assuming you live in one of around a dozen cities with post offices offering this new service.

These are only hints of the new postal services now being planned or tested by the quasi-independent U.S. Postal Corp. — the federal agency which will take over the functions of the old Post Office Dept. on July 1.

Porter

Here are more details on what's ahead:

1) MAILGRAM service, launched last year, is a "marriage of convenience" between a telegram and a letter. You phone (or deliver) your message to the nearest Western Union office. Western Union relays it to the Post Office in another city where the regular letter carrier delivers it the following day to its destination. The average cost of a 50-word mailgram in test programs is now $1.10 — vs. $2.75 for a regular interstate telegram.

Although mailgram service is available today only to business users, the service may be made available to us as early as next year, in more than 120 U.S. cities.

Multiple Service

2) MULTIPLE MAILGRAMS also are being tested — in which a "master" mailgram can be sent to thousands of different addresses. As one example of uses: The Educational Testing Service in Princeton, N.J., is using this system to let students throughout the U.S. know when and where to take college entrance exams.

3) EXPRESS MAIL service began in December and is now being tested in 35 cities. A postal messenger picks up a packet of, say, stock certificates, at your office (or, eventually, your home) and takes it to the airport for shipment to another city. There a courier delivers the package to its destination by the following morning. Typical cost of sending a 10-pound parcel from Washington to Chicago via this service: $25.

4) PASSPORT APPLICATIONS are now being handled by 19 post offices in addition to the regular State Department passport offices. Many more post offices will be authorized to receive applications in time for the forthcoming peak summer travel season.

5) SALES OF PRINTS by American artists in post office lobbies will soon be launched in a post office plan in collaboration with Washington's National Gallery. The plan could be a boon to artists as well as a way for the ordinary collector to cash in on today's "graphics explosion."

Further out, the post office is toying with these ideas:

— Offering services for stamp-collectors — including the sale of special commemorative stamps, starters' kits, etc.;

— Selling government bonds and government publications;

— Establishing community computer centers and facsimile transmission and photocopying facilities.

Ultimately, noted the Postal Service's Chief of Planning and Marketing Ronald B. Lee, in an interview, the post office will have to be prepared to handle huge numbers of voice and video cassette cartridges made in home communications centers.

"In the not too distant future, we'll be sending voicegrams and home TV videotapes instead of personal letters," Lee predicts.

P.S. In case you're not impressed, airmail was the last major new post office service introduced, 53 years ago.

Police & Fire Beat

Final disposition in the case of Mark Brownson, 27, Appleton, was delayed on a charge of indecent exposure to which he pleaded no contest Wednesday. Door County Judge Edwin Stephan, sitting here, deferred the matter for 90 days pending treatment that Brownson is now undergoing.

Appleton police charged that Brownson exposed himself to two girls in an Appleton store on Dec. 17, 1969. Stephan was assigned to the case after an attorney requested a substitute for an Outagamie County judge. No date was immediately set for the review.

Wayne Nunenkamp Jr., 23, of 826 Racine St., Menasha, pleaded guilty and was fined $100 and costs Wednesday on an amended charge of reckless driving. He originally had been cited for driving under the influence by Appleton police, after a property damage accident in the 1600 block of W. Prospect Avenue Feb. 11.

Outagamie County Judge Raymond P. Dohr levied the fine. The count was amended on a motion of the district attorney's office during trial.

Appleton fire fighters Tuesday afternoon went to the home occupied by Larry Scheider, at 1912 N. Division St., on the report of a smoke odor. They found no fire. The home is owned by Claude Oellerich, 2600 N. Union St.

Firemen went to the Erickson Service Station, 606 W. Wisconsin Ave., Tuesday when a shorted out light ballast began to smoke.

The Appleton fire department was called to the home of Marlene Plant, 812 N. Durkee St., Wednesday, when smoke from a coal burning furnace filled the basement. Emily Parker, New London, owns the home.

William Fitch, 27, of 1205 E. Fremont St., was sentenced to 90 days in the Outagamie County jail with Huber Law privileges after being convicted on an absconding charge. Trial was held Tuesday before County Judge Nick F. Schaefer. Fitch left the West Gate Motel in the Town of Grand Chute March 20 without paying a bill of $7.26.

KAUKAUNA — Mrs. George Vande Voort, 137 Arthur St., reported to police that spark plugs in her car were loosened while the vehicle was parked in her yard Monday night. Twice last week, the gasoline was siphoned from her son's car which also was parked near the home, according to the complaint.

Woman Again Asks Mosquito Fogging Ban

An 11th ward woman has renewed a request to the city asking to have mosquito fogging suspended this summer in her neighborhood.

Mrs. Hazel Sumnicht, 17 Silver Spur Lane, wrote to the City Council asking to have fogging discontinued on Reinke Court, all of Silver Spur Lane and on South Meadows Drive.

"In the past, members of the City Council have accused me being selfish because some neighbor might not receive all the poison and filthy vaporized fuel oil that he might wish," she wrote.

"I believe that mosquito fogging is injurious to my husband and son who suffer from asthma and allergies and their allergist supports this belief," she explained.

In addition to dangers she believes the mixture of malathion and fuel oil bear for humans, Mrs. Sumnicht said she believes it harms birds "which are the natural enemies of mosquitoes."

"I would like to put up a martin house, but I do not because the birds have to leave when their food supply is cut off. Robins and other song birds suffer because the bird baths have a film of oil and poison on them.

"I believe that fogging is harmful to the 90 per cent of all useful insects who feed on the harmful insects and pollinate our fruits and vegetables.

I have introduced praying mantis into my yard to control birch leaf miner (which sprays have failed to control). These, too will be destroyed by the fogger."

COG Seeks 3 Counties As Members on Assembly districts, assuring fair representation by all counties, and that counties and municipal members could split operating costs. Payment options could be the counties paying all or the counties paying one fourth and the municipalities three-fourths.

Proportional Payments

Committeemen noted that counties wouldn't stand for any payments that were not proportional to their representation.

On legislation, Franchett said that there are two bills in the legislature now, including one to amend a law to allow counties how members of one agency to join another. He said he expected they would pass because other areas also face similar needs for amendments.

In discussion, Neenah Mayor Roman Hauser pointed out that the Town of Menasha won't be cooperating on any move to bring counties into COG. The town dropped out of COG Dec. 31 after a controversy over its planned sewerage treatment plant.

Franchett said that the town still must get COG endorsement of its federal grant applications through COG's regional planning program, and the other communities are carrying the planning load for the town.

Conradt Proposes Study Group for Probate Problems

MADISON — State Rep. Ervin Conradt, R-Outagamie has proposed the creation of a special study group to examine probate problems and to make recommendations at the next legislative session.

Conradt's bid comes at a time of rising agitation, particularly from urban Democrats, for a simpler and cheaper system for transfers of estates.

There are a number of proposals currently before the legislature, however, Conradt has asked that these be deferred and transferred to the study panel. The group would consist of a lawyer, a judge, a register in probate and representatives from labor and "rural interests".

Assistance Requested For Homeless Family

The Salvation Army and the Appleton chapter of the American Red Cross have requested assistance for a family of seven which lost its possessions Tuesday in a fire that extensively damaged its rented home.

Clothing, bedding, furniture and a new home are needed for a mother and six children — a girl of 10 and boys aged 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8.

Computer Studies Aid Fox Water Use

study is possible with use of existing information, said Sauer. "It would be based strictly on the data that has been gathered."

He told industry and municipal representatives he favored formulation of a water resource development program.

Information gathered could tie in with federal proposals for an Environmental Quality Administration (EPA) evaluation of pollution abatement possibilities on the Fox River.

Use of ground water can more quickly be charted, said Jack Green, Madison, a U.S. Geological Service hydrologist.

"I believe we could get started, if the area is interested, by mid-summer."

The purpose of the plan is more sharply defined than a surface water study. Much of the preliminary work already has been done. Perry Olcott, geologist with the state Geological and Natural History Survey explained the model plan.

The state already has most data it needs and directed a considerable amount of funds to the Fox Valley, he said.

Rapid growth in the Fox Valley now makes the ground water study "a logical step at this time."

The study could show how best to place wells of industries and municipalities. The ground water has receded in a cone surrounding Neenah and Menasha and to a lesser degree in the rest of the Fox Cities, he said. This decline is simply the result of pumping and not a cause for alarm, noted Olcott. He said, however, such cones could be minimized if well placement were guided by ground water charts.

City Told to Hire Relief Recipients blamed on a combination of unemployment and the 1969 State Legislature's abandonment of the county-administered welfare program for unemployed heads of families with children. That program was financed with state and federal funds. The city relief program is supported by local property taxes.

The resolution noted that last year the city spent $72,000 on relief cases that averaged 100 per month, while hiring about 35 part-time public works employes each year at a cost of $57,000.

The list of last year's part-time workers includes wage costs of $56,713.

Appleton Youth Fined $100 for High-Speed Chase on March 18

A rural Appleton youth was fined $100 and costs this morning by Outagamie County Judge Gustave J. Keller on charges stemming from an incident March 18 when he attempted to elude an Appleton patrolman.

David G. Bauman, 19, route 2, pleaded guilty to four traffic counts. Another count, reckless driving, was dismissed on a defense motion approved by the city attorney's office.

Bauman was cited for attempting to elude, failing to stop for a stop sign, failure to use headlights and speeding early March 18 when he traveled through the city's west side at speeds up to 80 miles per hour with a squad car in pursuit.

An attorney told the court that Bauman plans to enter the military service soon. The policeman gave chase after Bauman went through a stop sign and refused to heed the officer's order to stop.

already had assisted in, including a look at elementary time scheduling and preparing board of education-requested studies by the administration.

Communication is vital, and it's not a problem, Boettcher said. "The lines are open, the minds are open."

He had visited all the buildings in the first six weeks on the job and plans to make visits a regular part of his role. He said that he felt this was important in evaluating classroom activity and performances.

He also said he wanted to see kids as often as possible. Boettcher said he tried to attend students functions, such as plays, because he also wanted teachers and students to know that administrators aren't willing to run the schools from their offices in the Morgan Administration Building.

Some of his visits to buildings are surprise visits but he also goes there to meet with teachers and principals for discussion of instructional programs such as an innovative approach to a study unit. The team approach allows him the time and provides him the authority to be more effective in this area, Boettcher said.

His greatest problem, he said, is the tight budget. He said that he must spend much time organizing the operation to fit within the fairly narrow budget limits.

"It's been the overriding pressure," he said, noting that if funds run out the operation would stop.

Boettcher said he hoped to effect certain economies so that important equipment purchases can be made.

Like the other team members, he said that it probably is too early to make final judgment of the team approach. But he noted that it clearly does fill one gap, and that is for making administrators and others accountable for what they're doing. The lines of authority are clear and working, he said.

Little Chute Board Votes Sale of Bonds

Water Department Issue Was Purchased By Village in 1968

LITTLE CHUTE — Village board members Tuesday night authorized the finance committee to sell $12,000 of water department bonds issued in 1967 and purchased by the village in 1968.

Asking price for the bonds which pay 4.5 per cent interest, was set at $11,442. The village bought the bonds on the open market when it had a surplus of funds. When selling the bonds the village will realize a profit of approximately $800 in addition to saving two years of interest. Cost of the bonds, of which $6,000 matures in 1981 and the second $6,000 in 1982, was $10,642.

Board members approved rezoning of a lot at McKinley and Madison Streets from R-2 residential to B-2 business district after no objections were filed to the rezoning at a public hearing. Owners of the property requested rezoning to permit expansion of their pizza establishment.

Village Clerk-Treasurer Gerald Locy reported investment of surplus tax funds had resulted in collection of $1,000 in interest to date. Special beer permits were authorized for parents of the Babe Ruth League to sell fermented beverages at home baseball games and to the American Legion for a picnic June 25 through 27.

A representative of the Legion appeared before the board asking for a new location for trailers and other equipment for the concern providing rides and amusements at the annual picnic. Formerly this equipment was kept at a municipal parking lot which became overcrowded as a result.

The building and grounds committee was authorized to investigate possible alternate sites and report back to a future meeting of the board. Contract with the State Department of Agriculture to serve as checker of weights and measures for the village was approved. Cost of the service increases from $475 to $500 per year.

Pollution Order Aired

Wisconsin River Paper Firms Told to Look to Joint Treatment

WISCONSIN RAPIDS, Wis (AP) — Pulp paper companies were urged Wednesday to consider keeping their pollution out of the Wisconsin River by diverting it to a communal waste-treatment pipeline.

The recommendation, which has cropped up before in pollution abatement discussions, was presented to a Department of Natural Resources hearing.

George Becker, a water biology researcher from Stevens Point State University, told the hearing the pipeline could run more than 100 miles between Rhinelander and Nekoosa, collecting effluent from 16 paper mills.

The waste would be treated at a plant at Nekoosa. The cleansed water could then be pumped back upstream to Rhinelander.

Becker said paper companies are responsible for financing pollution abatement, or developing market uses for that "part of the tree they don't convert into paper."

Enough Problems

Becker is president of the Wisconsin River Restoration Committee.

The river, he said, has enough man-made problems, trying to maintain fish in reservoirs which collect organic pollutants and reduce oxygen needed by water animals.

He said pulp waste from the paper mills can be found as far south as the Prairie du Sac dam, about 100 miles downstream from Nekoosa.

The hearing is a result of an appeal by Consolidated Papers Inc. that Wisconsin back off on a pollution abatement order.

The state has told the company's mills to reduce their discharge of oxygen-consuming waste from 63,220 pounds daily to less than 20,000 pounds.

Cost Less

Consolidated says it would cost $13 million, and wants the state to agree to a 40,000-pound discharge limit costing the company only $5.6 million for the necessary equipment.

The company has been directed to have the equipment operating by Aug. 1, 1973. Spokesmen for Consolidated said the firm could meet the deadline under the company plan, but not until 1974 under the state directive.

Politicians and Chamber of Commerce representatives spoke in support of Consolidated, saying the firm should be allowed more time to meet the order.

A Stevens Point State student, Gary S. Klonowski, suggested the company spend its money on fighting pollution "instead of lawyers to fight the orders."

Senators Coo Over Dove Bill

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — A magical combination of issues resulted in a hearty, unanimous "aye" in the state Senate, and the passage of a bill that would remove the mourning dove from the game bird designation and promote the bird to "the state bird of peace."

The bill introduced by Sen. Reuben La Fave R-Oconto during Earth Week was, he said, an attempt to get the legislature to do something in behalf of protecting the natural environment to measure up to Gov. Patrick Lucey's package of environmental measures. But the Senate balked at taking the bill up out of order and it was sent to the Natural Resources Committee where it also won unanimous endorsement.

The small mourning dove has been a subject of debate before, as game bird hunters fought to retain the bird's game status so that it could be hunted.

And naturalists struggled to win protected status for the bird that makes a pleasant cooing sound.

Nomination of a state bird of peace obviously attracted others who might not have been drawn to the issue by the other arguments but could be enticed to provide such a symbol for the state.

The measure was introduced at the request of several groups, including the Defenders of Animals, Inc., the Vilas-Oneida Wilderness Society, the Three Lakes Waterfront Homeowners Association, the Northeastern Conservation Council and the Audubon Society of Wisconsin.

Cautious Panel Debates Medical Center

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The legislature's Joint Finance Committee Wednesday gave a cool reception to a proposed $45 million first phase of a new medical center planned for the University of Wisconsin Madison Campus.

In a public hearing scheduled to review the total state building program for the 1971-1973 biennium, the committee devoted the majority of its time questioning Peter Eichman, Dean of the medical center.

Following the inclination of the Building Commission, which finally recommended the first phase of a proposed four-stage project, the committee expressed concern that approval of Phase I would involve a commitment to the total project that is now estimated at a total cost of $150 million and might be much more if the total construction were planned over 10 or 20 years as suggested.

Rep. Dennis Conta, D-Milwaukee, asked what kind of reassurances should be written into the budget bill to provide that the legislature could stop after phase one and then proceed with the development of future medical facilities at Milwaukee.

Eichman said such a specific measure would be disastrous. "I think it would be a disaster if this body said Phase One is it because you remove all flexibility."

Also concerned about the long-range commitment approval of the first phase of the project, to be located adjacent to the Veterans Administration Hospital in Madison, might mean the building commission attached a statement to its recommendation specifically stating that it is not to be interpreted as a future commitment.

The statement was drafted by Joe Nusbaum, secretary of the Department of Administration, who said in the joint finance hearing he personally thinks future medical education facilities probably should be developed at Milwaukee, rather than Madison, because of the concentration of population and hospitals there. He also added that regional medical centers scattered throughout the state might be the answer, and recommended that in connection with approval of the first phase at Madison an extensive study be undertaken to plan future facilities.

Rep. Merrill Stalbaum, R-Kenosha, accepted Nusbaum's reservations, but told the committee he would rather see a stronger action by the legislature to deny the Madison project altogether and build a medical center in Milwaukee.

Nusbaum said that the first phase should be built, because the need for medical education facilities is serious now and plans for such a project in Milwaukee have not been developed while preliminary plans for the Madison project are nearly complete.

Rep. Raymond Tobiasz, D-Milwaukee, attacked the idea of approving the Madison project and then conducting a statewide medical education study and plan.

Dr. Eichman defended the project as one that would help increase the manpower provided to the state in the needy health services.

"It will ease the burden (on health manpower) far beyond the expenditure," Eichman said. He said that by the end of five years he expects the intake of new medical students at Madison will have increased by 20 per cent.

The committee took no action on the proposal, but it appeared from questions posed and attitudes taken the committee might well either reject or limit the project when it takes action. Both Republicans and Democrats expressed considerable reservations about the project that seems frightening because of its size and cost, the largest building project ever proposed to the legislature.

Vote Requested On Uni Cameral Government

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Democratic State Sen. Mark Lipscomb of Milwaukee, who unsuccessfully sought to serve simultaneously in both houses of the Wisconsin legislature Wednesday introduced a proposal calling for a staewide advisory referendum on a one-house legislature.

Lipscomb resigned his Assembly seat Tuesday, two weeks after he had attempted to serve as a member of the Assembly and the Senate to dramatize his support for a unicamerial legislature.

The Senate refused to administer the oath of office to Lipscomb until he vacated his lower house seat.

The question Lipscomb proposes to have placed on the general election ballot simply asks: "Do you favor a one-house (unicamerial) legislature?"

Good lawns don't just happen. They are made!

The key to a good lawn is proper fertilizing

That's why Scotts TURF BUILDER is America's favorite lawn fertilizer. Turf Builder is made by the exclusive Trionized process which enables it to release its nutrients as rapidly as the grass needs them. There's no surge growth to cause extra mowing, and there's no wasteful overfeeding or nutrient loss due to leaching. Just a thicker, greener, sturdier lawn. Spread Turf Builder on your lawn this weekend, and see for yourself.

15,000 sq ft bag (60 lbs) 13.95

Are you ready to stop weeds when they arrive?

All it takes is Scotts PLUS-2. You spread it on your lawn any time after dandelions are in full bloom. It makes them, and most of the other common non-grass weeds, curl up and disappear — roots and all. PLUS-2 provides a full feeding of Turf Builder at the same time. Makes good grass fill in where the weeds were. All from an easy spreader application.

5,000 sq ft bag (20 lbs) 7.95
10,000 sq ft bag (40 lbs) 14.95

There's still time to prevent ugly crabgrass!

The answer is Scotts HALTS PLUS. Spread it on your lawn right now — before temperatures are regularly in the 80's. It sets up a barrier that prevents crabgrass from showing its ugly head this year. Halts Plus also fertilizes your lawn at the same time. Makes your grass grow thicker, greener, sturdier. All from a single application. So if crabgrass was a problem last year, spread Scotts HALTS PLUS. This weekend would be fine.

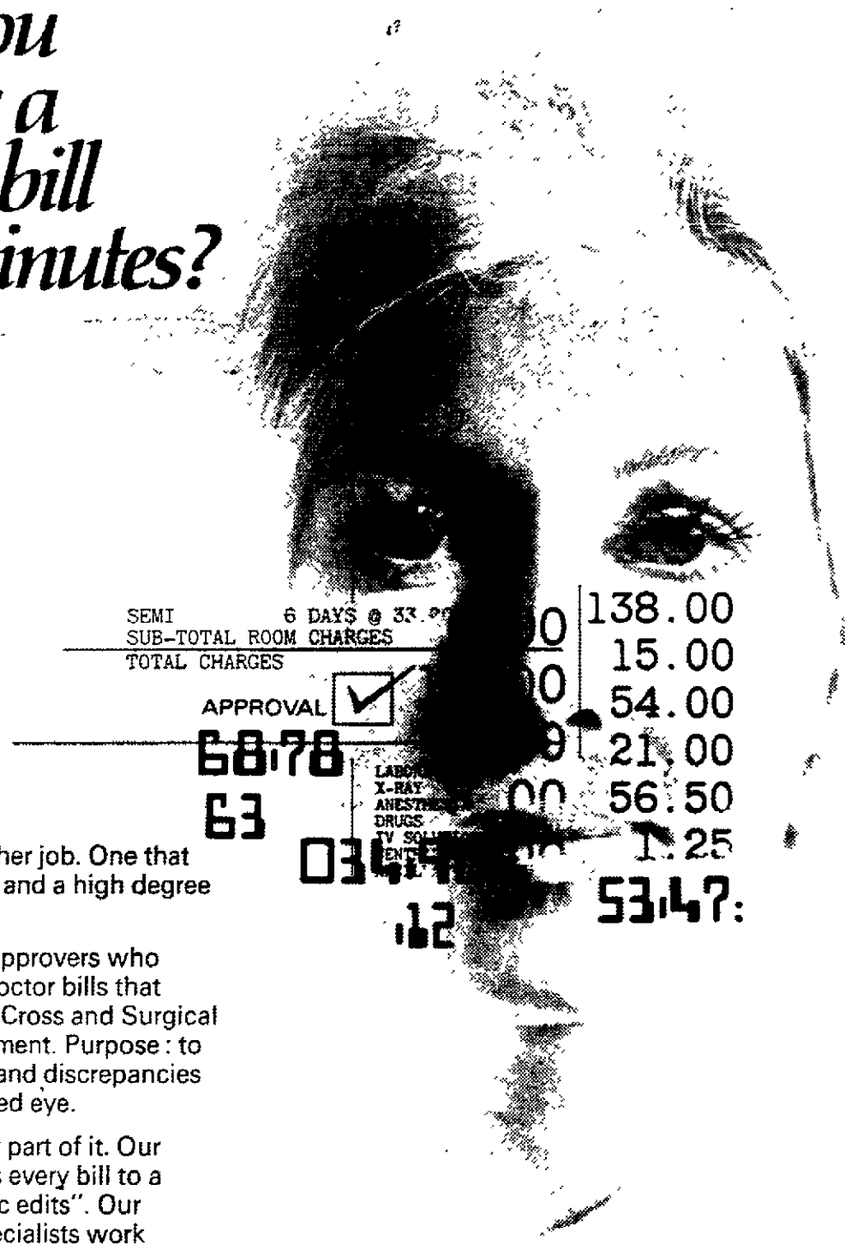
Could you decipher a hospital bill in 2½ minutes?

She can.



Reading hospital bills is her job. One that calls for medical training and a high degree of specialized insight.

She's one of the claims approvers who check the hospital and doctor bills that come to Wisconsin Blue Cross and Surgical Care Blue Shield for payment. Purpose: to intercept possible errors and discrepancies "invisible" to the untrained eye.

Claims approvers are just part of it. Our computer center subjects every bill to a total of 64 separate "logic edits". Our professional relations specialists work closely with hospitals and physicians — to arrive at reasonable service-charge standards . . . to slow down the increasing cost of care.

Why all this scrutiny? Because Blue Cross and Surgical Care Blue Shield health-care protection is designed to go the farthest in covering your needs. We provide for the services required — not for a limited dollars-per-day amount. Our daily service benefits expand to meet the actual costs of care.

Offering this kind of protection carries with it a special degree of responsibility for accuracy and value. We know you wouldn't want it any other way.

Democrats Warned About Leftist Ties

New Book by Election Analysts Relate Conditions That Could Hurt Sen. Muskie

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The two election analysts who helped transform the 1970 campaign are about to issue a bleak warning to the Democratic party which goes to the heart of growing fears that it is placing itself in bondage to the left for the 1972 presidential election campaign.

The warning is contained in an epilogue, now in draft form, by Richard M. Scammon and Ben J. Wattenberg to their best-selling book of 1970, "The Real Majority" — the epilogue written for the paperback edition to be published late this month (Coward, McCann and Geoghegan). Significantly, publication coincides with deepening concern felt by some Democrats that their party may be flinging away victory next year

The new Scammon-Wattenberg warning boils down to this: the 1972 Democratic convention is in danger of being controlled by the party's extreme left faction, so that its nominee — no matter how moderate — will be tainted for the entire campaign. If so, the Democrats will have cast aside the lessons of both 1968 and 1970 and will help President Nixon into a second term in the White House.

The Muskie Case

What makes the Scammon-Wattenberg warning appropriate right now is the exceedingly dangerous game being played for the Democratic presidential nomination by Sen. Edmund S. Muskie. Fearful that antipathy toward him from the left might make his nomination worthless, Muskie has been trying appeasement.

Within the past month, Muskie has made headlines endorsing and attending antiwar demonstrations, attacking the FBI, and turning up on the Mall to rap with the antiwar Vietnam veterans. He even wanted to visit the veterans while they were disobeying a court injunction, until aides convinced lawyer Muskie he might make himself liable to disbarment proceedings.

Being against the war is good politics, but underwriting street demonstrations is not. Muskie's calculation is that once the left is sufficiently neutralized, he will turn again toward the center where the votes for general election victory are found. But once having given the left veto power over candidate selection, can their influence be cast off that easily? That is the question posed by Scammon and Wattenberg, two liberal Democrats who view this danger with the greatest trepidation.

Evans

Nowak

Social Issues

Their work, "The Real Majority," in no small part was responsible for convincing the Democrats that law-and-order is not a codeword for racism and that the social issue — riots, crime, violence, narcotics — is indeed a valid concern. The White House ruefully concedes that the book was a major influence in making Democratic candidates less vulnerable.

But in their new epilogue, Scammon and Wattenberg suggest that Democratic liberals are now reverting to their disastrous stance of pre-election 1970. "By defusing the social issue, by demonstrating that concern for people afraid to walk their streets by day or night was not an illiberal concern — many liberals were able to win in 1970," they write. "If some liberals will now refuse the issue, they and their party and their party's candidate will suffer in 1972."

Furthermore, they suggest the Democrats may be mistaking anti-Vietnam sentiment for an "indict America" hysteria. They suggest that Democratic intensity may turn the environmentalist camp into "an elitist antiworker movement."

Thus, they pose this central question: "Is it possible that the label elitism and the political poison it connotes will move from the Republicans to the Democratic left?" Their question suggests a situation that Kevin Phillips, the conservative theoretician, jubilantly proclaimed in 1969 as the basis of a new Republican majority.

Dominant Voice

The grim Scammon-Wattenberg conclusion is that left-wing militants may be achieving the dominant voice in the Democratic party, as seen in Muskie's remarkable obeisance to them. But they know the militants can never dominate a general election. "And if the party's candidate is either the handpicked choice of the militants, or if he is seen as snug and cozy with the militants," they add, "that candidate and his party by transference can be severely hurt at the polls."

Nor can the candidate, having been embraced by a radical convention, quickly transform himself. "The voters will allow a candidate a regenerative power following a certain amount of indiscretion," they write, "but a candidate can only change so much." These are words that fit the mood today of worried, thoughtful Democrats who wish that Muskie would ponder them as well.

School Concept Viewed by Board

HORTONVILLE — The board of education viewed a presentation on schools with relocatable interior walls at the Monday meeting.

Morley Johnson, Hauserman Company, gave a slide presentation of the concept. The system's advantage is that walls can be moved in future years as the methods of teaching and demands of education change.

Preliminary budget requests were reported to the board. They are basically the same as the previous year for most departments, with larger increases for social studies textbooks and biology. These requests are due to changes proposed in the curriculum for the coming year.

The music budget also will show an increase. However, some of the instruments might be purchased under a federal act with reimbursable funds.

Summer Maintenance

Planned maintenance during summer vacation was presented to the board and includes such items as painting walls, refinishing woodwork and furniture, installing a small science lab, book cases, repairing pumps, and minor work on the roofs.

Also distributed to the board was a copy of the athletic events receipts for the past year. Football accounted for $1,877; varsity basketball, $2,580; wrestling, $559; and ninth grade basketball, $75 for a total of $5,090. The figures do not include payment from Hortonville students.

The science program will be discussed by members of the department at the next board meeting on May 10. A committee of bus drivers will also be present at the meeting.

Greenville Club Aids Boy Scouts, Little Leagues

GREENVILLE — The Civic Club will donate $50 to the Boy Scouts here for a tent. Approval was made at a recent meeting.

Civic club members will be in charge of the summer recreation program. Wynn Dobberstein will direct the little league. Members voted to give $200 to support the teams.

Registration

Little league registration for 9, 10 and 11 year olds will be May 15 and for 12, 13 and 14 year olds on May 22. There will be a $2 fee. The T-League for 7 and 8 year olds will start in June.

Persons interested in coaching, managing and umpiring should contact Dean Smith.

Club members will clean up the community park grounds and buildings on Tuesday. Officers will meet with the town board to procure a caretaker for the park.

Democrat Seeks New Post in Party

The chairman of the Outagamie County Democratic Party is seeking a seat on the state party administrative committee as a reform candidate.

Lawrence D Longley, a Lawrence University assistant professor of government, has told fellow Democrats around the state that he would work toward developing "a revitalized and vigorous" administrative committee "capable and willing to oversee all aspects of the state party administration."

Delegates to the party's state convention in Madison June 19 will elect an at-large committeeman.

Longley pointed out in letters announcing his candidacy to delegates that the Outagamie County party unit was recently among those that challenged state party leadership over management of financial resources and other policy questions.

While "these concerns have been spoken to, and important changes implemented" since H. William Gerrard became state party chairman earlier this year, Longley said, revitalizing the administrative committee still is needed "to ensure clear financial priorities and responsibility on a continuing basis."

Longley is in his second term as county party chairman, and is first vice chairman of the Eighth District party unit. He was campaign manager in this area for Sen. Gaylord Nelson in 1967 and 1968.

Several Hospitalized After 3 Car Accidents

Several persons were transported to hospitals after three accidents in Appleton Tuesday. Two of the mishaps involved three vehicles.

Larry D. Crober, 19, route 2, was taken to Appleton Memorial Hospital by his father after his car and one driven by James H. Arts, 52, 802 W. Main St., Little Chute, collided at the intersection of Summer and Superior Streets. Appleton police said the Crober car glanced off after the crash and struck a car parked on Summer Street, owned by Dale I. Brost, 39, 1905 N. Meade St.

The accident occurred about 5:15 p.m. Another three-car accident occurred shortly before 6 p.m. at Memorial Drive and Prospect Avenue.

Police identified drivers of cars involved as Joseph R. Koller, 53, 719 Cecil St., Neenah, Dennis C. Johnson, 31, 164 W. Foster St., and Walter H. Brummund, 63, 310 River Drive.

Koller, who complained of headaches, was taken to Theda Clark Hospital, Neenah, by ambulance. Johnson, who suffered a left hip injury and complained of shortness of breath, was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital by ambulance.

Koller and Johnson collided in the intersection, police said, and the impact forced the Johnson auto into the Brummund car, which was stopped for an automatic signal.

Kathleen D Flenz, 16, 145 John St., and her passenger, Kathy Schramm, 16, 539 Peckham St., were taken to Theda Clark Hospital by private car following an accident with another car on Northland Avenue, at Bennett Street. They sustained possible neck injuries, police said.

Police said the auto driven by Miss Flenz was stopped, was to make a left turn off Northland onto a private driveway, when struck from behind by Gary D. Bazile, 34, 948 E. Marquette St. Bazile complained of a shoulder injury and was taken to Appleton Memorial Hospital by squad car.

Rescue Squad Car Struck on Way to Hospital

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — The Seymour rescue squad vehicle transporting a heart attack patient to a Green Bay hospital, was struck by another vehicle at Mason Street and Monroe Avenue about 6:20 p.m. Tuesday.

Asst. Brown County Coroner Ray Hussong said that the patient, Ben Moes, 71, route 2, Seymour, had died before the collision. He said Moes had suffered a severe heart attack at his home and probably died before the rescue squad left Seymour.

According to police, the rescue squad car was proceeding east on Mason through the downtown intersection with its red lights flashing and siren operating when it was struck by a car driven by Edward A. Charles, 69, Edgewater Beach Road.

Police said the Charles car was traveling on Monroe when it entered the intersection and struck the rescue squad. Charles told police he did not see or hear the emergency vehicle in time to avoid the collision.

Moes' wife, Gertrude, 66, who was riding in the rescue vehicle, complained of a sore shoulder but was not hospitalized. The driver, Orville O. Gagnow, 45, of Seymour, complained of chest pains but did not go to the hospital.

'Tenement Week' Observed by Residents of LU's Brokaw Hall

The residents of Lawrence University's Brokaw Hall, the oldest men's dormitory on campus, are celebrating "Brokaw Tenement Week" through Saturday.

Main events for the celebration will be Saturday, after the tenement dwellers hang out wash from fire escapes and windows, open up their "cheap saloon" for sale of dime beers to members of the Lawrence community and hold a stickball tournament from 2-5 p.m. outside the dormitory.

Doug Brengel, a Lawrence junior from Milwaukee and spokesman for the men who are spearheading the celebration, said conditions in Brokaw Hall, which opened in 1911, weren't the motivation behind the slum-oriented motif of Tenement Week. "This isn't a protest or anything like that," he said.

"As a matter of fact, there's probably more spirit in Brokaw Hall than in any other dormitory on campus. That's why we thought we'd get everybody together and have a good time."

The actual inspiration for the theme was an offhand remark by one resident, who, observing the latticework of fire escapes against the weathered stone building, said, "If everybody hung their wash out like they do in the slums, Brokaw would look just like a tenement."

Tenement Week began Sunday with a group from the dormitory making a trip to the ball park for an Appleton Foxes baseball game.

Brokaw residents will meet in the dormitory's lounge tonight to hear a lecture by historian John Moeller, a senior from South Bend, Ind., who has conducted considerable research into the dormitory's past.

Also at the meeting in the lounge, Brokaw residents will revive the "Brokaw Bucket" tradition, presenting it once again to the dormitory's "outstanding freshman."

Brokaw residents plan a "formal banquet" at an off-campus restaurant and a dance, which is tentatively scheduled to be held in the dormitory's basement, on Saturday.

A highlight of the evening will be a beauty pageant, with about 12 contestants dressed in their rummage sale best, vying for the title of Miss Tenement Beauty.

Trial Reset July 12 for Area Couple

The jury trial of a Combined Locks couple, charged with 10 felonies, has been rescheduled for July 12.

Irvin Zehren and his wife Florence, both 40, of 500 Hartjes St., were to have been tried starting Monday, before Circuit Court Judge Donald W. Gleason of Green Bay.

The couple's attorney, however, citing a back injury he sustained in an auto accident in March, informed the court that the injury prevented him from being present Monday.

Police accuse the Zehrens of participating with Harry Mueller, 28, and Richard Eickhoff, 42, both of Madison, in a scheme to burglarize Fox Valley businesses. Mueller was wounded and Eickhoff killed during a Dec. 12 stakeout of Xavier High School by Appleton police.

Zehren is charged with eight felonies, six of them burglary. His wife is named in two burglary counts. Both are free on bond.

Gleason was assigned to the case after the Zehrens' attorney filed requests for substitution of a judge in Outagamie County.

Girl Injured in Two-Car Accident

FREEDOM — Patricia Schuh, 19, route 2, Kaukauna, was in fair condition this morning at Appleton Memorial Hospital with injuries sustained early today in a two-car accident three miles south of here.

Outagamie County police who are investigating the accident, said Miss Schuh was burned on both legs by gasoline and had cuts to the scalp and forehead.

She and Ann Van Hoof, 20, route 5, Appleton, who suffered back injuries, were passengers in an automobile operated by Thomas Van Eperen, 20, route 2, Kaukauna, who escaped injury. The Van Hoof girl was satisfactory today at St. Elizabeth Hospital.

Vosters sustained minor injuries, according to police. Both autos were demolished.

Rawhide Can't Afford Operating Semi-Tractor

MADISON — Rawhide, Inc., a work camp for boys at New London, has found that it cannot reasonably afford to operate a semi-tractor it has acquired because the registration fee and the low mileage it logs would cost the camp 25 cents a mile just to register the vehicle.

Sen. Gerald Lorge, R-Bear Creek, has introduced a bill that would provide that registration for such vehicles owned and operated by nonprofit corporations and used only for their own operations, be set at one dollar per year. Rawhide recently was informed that registration for the vehicle would cost almost $500 a year.

John Gillespie, director of Rawhide, informed Lorge that the vehicle is used to travel only an average of 2,000 miles per year. Attempts to qualify under present low-registration fee provisions that apply to fire trucks owned by volunteer fire departments and state and local governmental agency vehicles failed, he added.

THE CONTENTS OF THIS NEWSPAPER IS KID STUFF.

73% of young people aged fourteen through twenty-five read a newspaper yesterday.

This—and a number of other important facts—comes from a major new study conducted by Gilbert Youth Research. If you advertise and sell in this city, the Gilbert Study can show you how to do both—better.

For example, it shows that 42% of young men read car ads 3 times a week or more; that 74% of young women out of school read fashion news—and 81% read fashion advertising—3 times a week or more.

But kids aren't kids forever. And the study shows that learning to read a newspaper is a part of growing up. As young people grow and acquire more responsibilities, like their own apartment, or marriage — and spend more to meet them — they read newspapers more.

84% of young people with family incomes of $10,000 or more read a newspaper yesterday. That's more than the 78% average for all adults. And 86% of young people who have married read a newspaper yesterday.

We have all of the facts from the new Gilbert Youth Study in a little booklet. If you want to do better business. you should know what these facts are. Write to us for a free copy.

Putting it bluntly, it'll help you make more money.

Antipollution Laws Hurt Mill Workers

Orders Cause Men To Lose Jobs, Says Paper Firm Figure

STEVENS POINT — A prominent paper industry figure reported Wednesday that 196 pulp mill and related woods jobs have been lost because of strict antipollution orders. He said another 1,600 are threatened.

The figures were given to an economics seminar of paper and related management men by William R. Nelson, director of corporate development, Green Bay Packaging, Inc. Nelson served on an ad hoc committee which conducted a confidential survey into the affect of state cleanup orders on jobs at 20 pulp mills.

"Ten of the pulp mills surveyed feel they can almost surely meet the newly required levels of stream protection without shutdown," he said. "Of the other 10, two were closed in 1968 because they could not afford the necessary abatement costs. With those two shutdowns, 161 Wisconsin pulp mill jobs and the equivalent of 35 full-time woods jobs were abolished.

"Eight pulp mills now operating appear either uncertain or else in danger of having to shut down if present state orders remain in force. Nearly 1,000 pulp mill jobs and over 600 woods jobs are at stake," he added.

This is more than 35 per cent of all such employment in Wisconsin.

There is an urgent need to recognize what is possible and in the best interests of all affected citizens, he said. Their interests need not compromise the goal of clean waters. "The solutions to problems of job loss and economic depressions must be part of the path to that goal."

He urged that pollution abatement orders by the Department of Natural Resources "include provisions for identifying and giving consideration to the full costs and resulting benefits to all citizens, both corporate and private, affected by its orders. Before any order becomes final its economic and social effects should be evaluated by competent authorities and the resultant recommendations given full consideration."

Appleton Man Directs Area Fund Campaign For Seabee Memorial

Navy Lt. Paul T. Riedl, 1212 W. Frances St., Appleton, is area chairman of the Seabee Memorial Association, which is seeking to raise $2 million for a monument and scholarship fund in honor of the Seabees.

The monument is to be erected near Arlington National Cemetery. The scholarship fund would be for the benefit of past and present Seabees.

The project is scheduled for completion next March, on the Seabee's 30th birthday. Felix de Weldon, the creator of the famed Iwo Jima Memorial to the Marine Corps, has been commissioned to do the sculpture of a Seabee greeting children from foreign lands.

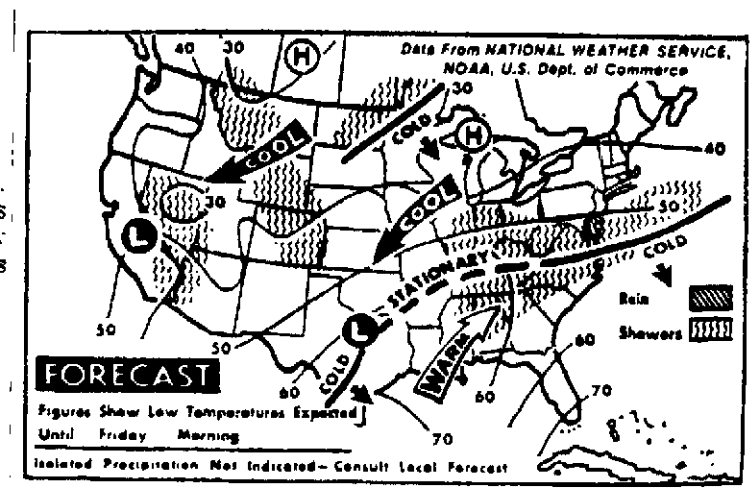
Riedl is the commanding officer of the Milwaukee Seabee sub-unit which drills at the Naval and Marine Corps Reserve Training Center there.

2-Year Probation Set For Kaukauna Man, 44

A 44-year-old Kaukauna man Tuesday was placed on two years' probation for taking indecent liberties with a minor.

Outagamie County Judge Urban P. Van Susteren stayed a prison term on the felony charge for Gordon Lamb, 161 W. Wisconsin Ave. Lamb, who must also pay court costs, will be supervised by an agent of the State Department of Health and Social Services.

Appleton police said the offense occurred Feb. 7 with a 9-year-old girl.



Showers and Thundershowers are expected over much of the nation tonight. It will be cooler in the northern Rockies and in the Midwest, warmer in the Deep South. (AP Wirephoto Map)

GOODBYE TO THE "SEAT OF THE PANTS" BUYER

Here at The Marshall Company, we don't rely on this kind of guesswork when it comes to advising our customers.

We rely on documented evidence like Wright Investors' Service. They're the ones that tossed out 16 of the Dow-Jones industrials because their ten-year study showed the remaining 14 out-performed them in price appreciation, earnings growth, and dividend growth.

A ten-year record is no guarantee that future recommendations will be profitable. But Wright's record, with an average return on its recommendations of 15.8%, compares very favorably with the 6.3% for the Dow-Jones Industrial Average, 7.2% for the New York Stock Exchange Composite, and 8.7% for the Mutual Fund Index.

All this means that you, too, may benefit from expertise available from The Marshall Company. Call or write us for the Wright Investment Record, a ten-year success story. Judge the facts for yourself.

You also might like to know that we're the only investment firm in the Valley that has Wright Investors' Service.

Breakfast Raisin Loaf

Banana Butter

Kids Stuff . . . Strictly for Moms

By Lillian Mackesy POST-CRESCENT FOOD EDITOR

Gala Glazed Chicken

The second Sunday in May — Mother's Day — is coming up this weekend and with a little help from Dad, the day can be centered on Mom but taken care of by the young fry.

The Sunday was set aside as a day to honor all mothers and it has been observed nationally since 1914 when President W o o d r o w Wilson proclaimed the day of tribute. Carnations have become the flower insignia for everyone including the Queen for the Day to wear.

Suggested as special treats are these recipes today, easily handled by older children with even younger members of the family "doing their bit" with a minimum of help. The Banana Butter, for instance, can be a treat for a grandmother, a motherly neighbor or special grown-up friend.

The breakfast suggestion is a glamorized loaf of raisin bread, store-bought and then lavishly spread in three sections with flavorful fillings. Placed in a bread pan, back in loaf form and covered with foil, the bread is heated in the oven to bring it to a bubbling perfection.

Gala Glazed Chicken is designed to please hearty eaters besides mothers and it's made (indoors or out) with a rich brown glaze that's basted on the bird as it cooks. The glaze ingredients are prepared yellow mustard of the creamy variety and brown sugar. For a go-along, prepare the easy (but pretty) Cheese-Date Salad.

A glamor dessert is prepared from canned apple pie filling, ice cream and a yummy sauce. It's called Apples Melba and the sauce may be prepared first, then chilled, ready to pour on the dessert as soon as the ice cream tops the apples. Mom will borrow this recipe for her own parties.

So Happy Mother's Day!

RAISIN-CHEESE CAKE COOKIES

- ⅓ cup soft butter
- ⅓ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
- 1 cup all-purpose flour
- ½ cup raisins
- ½ cup chopped walnuts
- 1 pkg. (8 oz.) cream cheese, at room temperature
- ¼ cup granulated sugar
- 1 egg
- 2 tablespoons milk
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- ½ teaspoon vanilla

Cream butter and brown sugar together until fluffy; sift flour, measure and add to butter mixture with raisins and nuts. Blend with fingers until crumbly. Set aside one cup of this m i x t u r e. Lightly press remainder into a greased 8-inch square pan. Bake in a 350-degree oven for 15 minutes, or until golden at edges. Cool.

Mix together cream cheese and granulated sugar until blended. Add egg, milk, lemon juice and vanilla; beat until smooth. Spread mixture over baked c r u s t; sprinkle reserved crumbs over top. Bake in a 350-degree oven for 25 to 30 minutes, or until firm in the center. Cool to room temperature; cover and chill until serving time. Cut into bite-sized s q u a r e s. Recipe makes about 30 cookies.

RAISIN LEMON TOFFEE COOKIES

- ½ cup butter
- 1½ cups sugar
- 1 egg
- 1 egg yolk
- 1½ teaspoons lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon grated lemon peel
- 2¼ cups sifted all purpose flour
- 1½ teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup milk
- ¾ cup raisins
- Toffee Topping

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Cream butter until soft. Add sugar gradually, working the mixture until smooth. Stir in unbeaten egg, egg yolk, lemon juice and lemon peel. Beat again. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Add flour mixture and milk alternately. Stir in raisins. Drop from teaspoon onto lightly greased cookie sheet, allow room for spreading. Bake 10 to 15 minutes or until cookies are lightly golden. Frost with topping and broil briefly. Recipe makes about 30 cookies.

TOFFEE TOPPING

- ½ cup slivered almonds
- 6 tablespoons butter
- ⅔ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 2 tablespoons milk

Evenly spread almonds on a cookie sheet; bake at 350 degrees F. for about 5 minutes or until toasted. Combine almonds with remaining ingredients in a saucepan and stir over medium-low heat until bubbly. Frost each cookie with thin layer of toffee frosting. Place 5 inches

Smart Shopper's Recipe for Week

The United States Department of Agriculture considers peanut butter one of the most beneficial foods in six nutritional categories.

It's more than 26 per cent protein, a vital food element to maintain essential body functions. Peanut butter also has a high content of food energy — fats to maintain body balance, phosphorous, thiamin and niacin.

Peanut butter is easily digestible; it can be stored without undue worry about spoilage; it requires no preparation time.

Besides all this, it's a plentiful product along with other peanut products. More than 15 million pounds of peanut butter is supplied annually to the national school lunch program, in which four tablespoons may be used to meet the protein requirement for each lunch. It's used for distribution to disaster victims because of high nutritional value quickly dispensed and usable. Being plentiful, it's one of the 22 types of foods supplied to low-income or welfare households which qualify for food aid.

Here are some interesting ways to use peanut butter — one is a soup, the other a dessert. Both are delicious.

PEANUT CREOLE SOUP

- ½ cup chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons peanut oil
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon celery salt
- ½ cup peanut butter
- 2 cups milk
- 2 cups tomato juice

Saute onion in peanut oil until tender but not browned. Add flour, salt and celery salt. Blend in peanut butter. Add milk gradually, stirring to blend. Cook and stir mixture until it comes to a boil and thickens. Add tomato juice; bring just to boil. Serve hot. Recipe makes five servings.

PEANUT BUTTER RIPPLE ICE CREAM

- ¼ cup peanut butter
- 6 tablespoons honey
- 1 quart soft vanilla ice cream

Blend peanut butter and honey. Put half vanilla ice cream in freezer tray. Cover with layer of peanut butter-honey mixture. Add remaining ice cream. With spoon, stir until peanut butter-honey is mixed through ice cream refreeze before serving. Recipe makes from four to six servings.

Clinic Volunteer Warns of Drug Abuse

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You've printed many letters about kids who use drugs. Every time I read one I say to myself, "I hope to God somebody out there is listening." I do volunteer work at a drug abuse clinic — from 7 'til midnight, after eight hours at my regular job.

Last week a 16-year-old boy died at my feet — an overdose of heroin. His buddies carried him in. He was a handsome kid with gorgeous brown eyes like a doe. His hair was golden and curly like a small child's. We had to call his parents to come to the clinic and claim his body. It was a scene I will never forget.

Every day dozens of teenagers show up sick as dogs with hepatitis from dirty needles. Yesterday I saw a girl with so many needle holes in her arms she looked like a pin cushion. Some kids come in with serious stomach disorders. When they get spaced, they forget to eat.

I keep reading articles about "soft" drugs versus "hard" drugs "right" drugs versus "wrong" drugs. Please keep telling your readers to stay away from all drugs, including pot. Unless a kid is a chemist he can't tell what he's getting and one day he might get more than he can handle. — Right-on-the-Spot Witness

Dear Witness: Right on. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Regarding the woman who was deeply in debt because charge plates made credit buying so easy. Granted, too many people fall for "buy now, pay later" slogans and over-spend, but have you ever tried to return merchandise you paid cash for? If the price tag is off and you've lost the sales slip, forget it. Even so they want "references." If you don't drive a car and have no driver's license they think you're some kind of nut. My advice is this: Have credit all over, but don't overdo it. — Richmond Reader

Dear Rich: Your advice sounds simple but it won't work for people who have "charge-a-platitis." It's the same as telling a boozer, "Drink, but don't overdo it."

People who can't control their buying should pay cash. As for returning merchandise, some stores are more cooperative than others.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My mother who is a world traveler picks up "souvenirs" along the way for friends and relatives. Among her souvenirs are airline silver, towels, ashtrays, salt and pepper shakers, candlesticks — in brief, anything that isn't nailed down.

Mother is completely honest in every other way and does not consider this stealing. She insists the hotels and restaurants want people to take things because it's good advertising.

What is your opinion? — Honest Emily

Dear Em: Never mind my opinion. Here's what Earl McDonough, general manager of the Washington-Hilton says: "Ninety-five per cent of the stealing done in hotels is 'internal' — and not done by guests. Most guests are honest."

Surprised? So was I. Your light-fingered mother should not take comfort in the thought that everybody does it — because most people don't.

Charles Carey, manager of the St. Regis-Sheraton in New York said this: "We expect a certain amount of 'shrinkage'. Oyster forks and demi-tasse spoons disappear in great numbers, and we don't mind. But when guests walk out with blankets and pictures, we feel they are taking advantage."

What is French kissing? Is it wrong? Who should set the necking limits — the boy or the girl? Can a shotgun wedding succeed? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-Age Sex — Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

WINE On the Table

By William Clifford

Champagne is such an appealing drink, we wonder why more of our friends don't indulge themselves regularly. Perhaps only because of the cost. In spite of which, our drinking of sparkling wines grows even faster than the rest of the wine business.

For the past century or so, champagne has been the official drink of Great Occasions. It's the wine that makes great moments memorable. A toast to the happy bride and groom — to the 50th anniversary — to the new year — to the new job!

Good Party Drink

In recent years of affluence champagne has proved to be the perfect party drink. Try it the next time you bring strangers together. There's nothing else like it to break the ice. One glass is all it takes to help guests feel happy and relaxed, to mingle and start the fun.

Various wines are described as all-purpose, but this one really is. Champagne can be served equally well before, during, and after dinner. It literally goes with any food.

We happen to like it best as an aperitif. You may enjoy it with cake. One of our favorite restaurants serves it with chicken in champagne sauce.

Wine Glasses Okay

Speaking of serving, don't let unnecessary formalities put you off. Forget the rituals, the special glasses — ordinary wine glasses will do.

The quality of what you pour in the glass depends more on the original wines in the blend than on methods of fermentation or country or cost.

One of California's finest brands, in minute production and virtually unavailable, copies French champagne methods to the letter. But its perfectionist maker also expresses admiration for the less costly and widely available champagne of the state.

Protect Skin From Sun's Rays

Skin experts note that many of the skin changes we normally think of as aging may result from longterm exposure to the sun. So, be sure to use a suntan product that will protect you from the sun's burning rays, while it helps to keep your skin soft and smooth.

Pay particular attention to delicate areas not usually exposed to the sun such as the chest area, shoulders, neck, back of knees and instep.

Her Hubby Keeps the Change

BY ERMA BOMBECK

The whole mess started when my husband found a charge from the dime store for $63.31. He said if the Good Lord had meant for me to carry all those credit cards. He'd have given me a pouch.

I contended EVERYONE uses credit cards and that it's only a matter of weeks before money is obsolete. To prove my point I challenged him to go through just one day using cash for everything. The results were pretty much what I expected.

His first encounter was at a service station. "That'll be $6.15," said the attendant. My husband reached into his pocket and extracted $6.25.

The attendant scrutinized the bill carefully. "You trying to tell me your name is Ivy Baker Priest?" he asked.

"No," said my husband. "That's the signature from the Treasury Department."

"Whatever it is," he said handing it back. "The date on it is expired."

"You don't understand," persisted my husband. "This isn't a credit card. It's U. S. currency. All you do is take it and give me ten cents change."

"Look, Mac," said the attendant. "I work here alone on Mondays until three. If you think I'm gonna carry that kind of cash around to make change, you're crazy."

The next stop was a restaurant. When my husband handed the cashier a $10 bill she snapped it and examined it closely. "Do you have any identification?" she asked brusquely.

"No," he said. "Only cash."

"I see," she said. "What about a driver's license? Social Security? A letter from your mother?"

My husband fumbled around in his pockets. "Look," she said. "Why don't you step out of line and wait for our manager, Mr. Whiteside. He'll check you out."

When my husband returned home, he slumped in his chair. "My money couldn't buy anything," he sulked. "The pay phone ate my dime and the operator suggested a credit card, the drugstore was annoyed because they had to write out a receipt for cash and merchants looked at me like I was a poor risk."

"It sounds humiliating," I said softly.

"You don't know the half of it," he said. "A mugger came out of the alley, stuck a gun in my ribs and took my billfold. He gave me my money back and took my library card."

"Why didn't you write him a check?" I asked.

"I tried," he said. "But he wouldn't take a counter check without a credit card for identification."

Citrus-Gelatin Desserts for Dieters

Dieters tend to get a little glum around the edges at dessert-time. While the family swings out with a delicious sweet, the waistline-watcher tries not to feel deprived. There follow some desserts, low in calories, that permit the dieter to leave the table feeling most cheerful.

The desserts are based on citrus, long a reliable stand-by for dieters. Keep happy, for instance, with Orange Café Brulot . . . delicious coffee jelly flavored with orange juice. Cut the jelly into cubes, place in attractive stemmed glasses and cover with Orange Velvet Sauce, as creamy and flavorful as it sounds.

Grapefruit turns up in a delicious sponge that's equally easy to make, equally flavorful. The desserts have a gentle enough calorie count, too, to turn up as delicious, satisfying between-meal snacks.

For anytime snacking, section some orange and grapefruit and have them handy on a platter in the refrigerator for nibble-attacks between meals. They taste great, keep the calorie count at bay. A half grapefruit yields only 55 calories and a medium orange has about 70 calories. Or have a refreshing glass of citrus juice between meals . . . a glass of chilled orange or grapefruit juice tastes great anytime.

Keep the nutrition factor in mind when you diet. Since you are cutting your food intake, you are reducing the vitamin intake as well. And citrus is a bonanza source of vitamin C, necessary for building and maintaining strong bones and teeth. Since the vitamin doesn't store in the body, you need to replenish the supply every day.

ORANGE CAFE BRULOT

- 2 tablespoons regular instant coffee powder
- 1¼ cups water
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- 1 stick cinnamon
- 5 whole cloves
- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
- 2 cups orange juice
- Non-nutritive sweetener equivalent to 2/3 cup sugar

Mix together coffee, water, salt, cinnamon stick and cloves in a saucepan and simmer 3 to 5 minutes. Soften gelatin in orange juice.

Strain coffee and return to saucepan, stir in softened gelatin and non - nutritive sweetener. Return to low heat and stir until gelatin dissolves, 2 to 3 minutes. Pour into an 8-inch square pan and chill. When firm, unmold onto board and cut into small cubes. Divide cubes among eight dessert dishes and spoon Orange Velvet Sauce over the coffee cubes, allowing 3 tablespoons sauce per serving. Recipe makes eight servings, 35 calories per serving without sauce. 98 calories per serving with sauce.

ORANGE VELVET SAUCE

- 1 teaspoon cornstarch
- 1½ cups-skimmed milk
- 3 egg yolks
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- 1 tablespoon frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed, undiluted

Blend cornstarch with milk. Add remaining milk and heat, stirring constantly, until milk is hot, not boiling. Beat egg yolks with sugar. Gradually add some of hot milk to egg mixture, stirring constantly. Return mixture to saucepan and cook, continuing to stir, over very low heat until mixture thickens slightly and coats a spoon. Remove from heat; chill. When mixture is cool stir in undiluted orange juice concentrate. About 1½ cups sauce, 21 calories per tablespoon.

GRAPEFRUIT SAUCE

- 3 eggs, separated
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup sugar, divided
- 1 cup grapefruit juice, divided
- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin

Beat egg yolks until light; beat in salt and ¼ cup sugar. Stir in ¾ cup grapfruit juice and cook mixture in top of double boiler over simmering water, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and coats a metal spoon. Soften gelatin in remaining ¼ cup grapefruit juice; add to hot mixture and stir until dissolved. Chill, stirring occasionally, until consistency of unbeaten egg white. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry; gradually beat in remaining ¼ cup sugar; fold into cooled mixture and turn into a 1-quart mold. Chill until firm; unmold to serve. Recipe makes eight servings, 95 calories per serving.

Mother Reminisces About Long-a-go Childish Gifts

BY JOY STILLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Like everything else, they just don't make Mothers Days any more like they used to.

Not that I won't get my share of presents this year. In fact, now that my kids are earning money on their own I'm very likely to be generously remembered.

But the nicest floral arrangement, the tastiest assortment of candy or the most fashionable wearables can't compare with the gifts I received from my children when they were little.

The wrappings may have been more grubby than gorgeous, the contents more unique than utilitarian, but nothing they can ever give me in the future will come up to those objects made by loving hands at school.

After all how can you run a household properly without a napkin holder made of one paper plate stapled together, complete with crayon designs and a string for hanging?

And how can you keep your shoes shining without a soft blue polishing cloth with "Mother" spelled out in red basting stitches? What mom would not proudly wear a raffia-like bar pin made of toothpicks stuck together, emblazoned with her name laboriously glued thereto in macaroni letters?

There's no finer place to keep jewelry than in a box, created from gilded ice cream sticks, which looks somewhat like a golden log cabin with a roof that lifts off.

Sometimes there were tears along with the laughter on Mothers Day. One year my daughter had made a plaster of paris cast of her hand in her first-grade class. She was so excited at the presentation ceremony that she dropped it. The plaque was shattered and so was she.

On a happier occasion my son, then nearing 5, presented me with an interesting but unidentifiable object. It was a tiny basketlike affair, made of several layers of crimped aluminum foil with a silver-ball keychain for a handle.

He insisted on knowing if I realized what treasure I beheld and seemed a bit crestfallen when I couldn't come up with the answer.

"It's a walnut holder," he said proudly. "It holds just one walnut."

And no sterling silver nut dish could have brought me as much pleasure as did the crumpled little walnut holder on that long ago Mothers Day.

The Suffolk County Detergent Ban

A Clarifying Comment by the Cleanlines Bureau, 475 Park Avenue S., New York, N.Y. 10016

On March 1, the sale (but not the use) of detergents labeled for the uses of hard dishwashing and laundry were banned in Suffolk County, the eastern end of Long Island, N.Y. In effect, this action has removed every brand-name detergent containing any surface active agent or surfactant — all of them biodegradable — from the market place. Soaps are now the only products available in stores for hand dishwashing or laundering — whether clothes are lightly or heavily soiled.

The surfactant is one of the major components in detergents used to get things clean. Its function, and a very critical one, is to make water wetter and more penetrating; in laundry products it works its way between textile fibers and soil particles and removes that soil. Surfactants are basic to all detergents — those for hand dishwashing as well as laundry.

(The other major ingredient in detergents is the alkaline builder or phosphates. But it should be emphasized that the Suffolk County detergent ban was directed toward an old surfactant foaming problem and is totally unrelated to phosphates — or nitrates, as some press accounts have mistakenly reported.)

Unique Situation

This action had its origin in this Long Island, N.Y., county's unique water-wastewater situation. Shallow ground water is the main source of drinking water for the County, which is close to New York City and burgeoning in population. At the same time, 95 per cent of the county's 1,100,000 people rely on archaic cesspools for the disposal of all their household wastes. Over 100 million gallons a day of raw sewage are pouring through 250,000 cesspools — into the ground water.

The detergent industry spent in excess of $150 million several years ago to make its products biodegradable. Now all detergents break down under normal conditions just as fast and as completely as the other organic wastes discharged from homes. This nationwide conversion has solved that portion of the old foaming problem attributable to detergents throughout the country — except in Suffolk.

Ironically the movement in the direction of biodegradable detergents began with the public attention given to this same Suffolk problem some 15 years ago. In the intervening period, the rest of the country has moved to install sewage treatment for all wastes, while Suffolk is only just getting its program under way.

In terms of its effect, the new Suffolk ordinance will impose a hardship on housewives. But it will not change the basic ground water problem or remove the foaming which persists in a few wells and, in the view of some technical people, may be residues of the old "hard" ABS material no longer used.

Slowdown Installation

Regrettably, this action may also serve to slow down the widespread installation of sewers and waste treatment in Suffolk by diverting the public's attention from more serious pollution problems. Detergent foam is not toxic or a health hazard of any kind. On the other hand, in a letter to residents, the Suffolk commissioner of health has said "the cesspool is a crude, temporary device, which was used 100 years ago when we were a rural county." He went on to say "As a physician, I am concerned about the possibility of an epidemic occurring due to improperly treated human waste entering our water supply."

Citizens in two Suffolk towns recently voted to spend about $275 million for sewer systems, but local authorities say it will take a decade to get the sewers operational in these towns, which now represent about 25 per cent of the population.

Any household waste, be it of human or of detergent origin, must have some treatment to bring about its eventual breakdown before entering the ground. Until all sewage is kept from Suffolk County's ground water, the banning of detergents will solve its unique water-wastewater problem.

A nationally-known sanitary engineer, Dr. Daniel A. Okun, professor of environmental engineering and head of the department of environmental sciences and engineering at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, made the following comments on the ban: "Because Suffolk County has no adequate sewerage system, the individual disposal of fecal wastes contaminates individual wells, and the detergents serve as an unwelcome reminder that the residents are drinking their own sewage.

"Eliminating the detergents does not eliminate any contamination but eliminates the reminder that the water supplies are contaminated with sewage. The construction of proper sewerage systems and treatment facilities, and the provision of a community water supply system are the only sound and in the long run economical solutions for communities where population is growing as rapidly as is the case in Suffolk County.

"Banning detergents in Suffolk County is dealing with illusions, cosmetizing a cancer."

6 ♣	Pass	Pass	Pass

What is your lead? (East's opening bid is artificial and promises 17 or more points.

Question No. 2. You are South, vulnerable, and hold:

♠ A K 7
♥ 9 6 2
♣ K

Do you bid a grand slam or do you settle for six? South's four no-trump bid is Blackwood.

South	West	North	East
3 ♦	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
3 ♦	Pass	3 ♥	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♦	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♥	Pass

Answer No. 1. If you lead any of the 12 cards you gain heavily.

If you lead the 13th, the heart 10, you lose. The entire hand:

NORTH
♠ A J 10 9 6 3
♥ Q 7 5
♦ A 6

WEST
♠ K Q 8 5 4
♥ 9 8 6

EAST
♦ K
♣ A K Q 9 8 5

SOUTH
♥ 10
♦ Q J 10 9 8 7 3 2

In the match Ace Mike Lawrence tried for a heart ruff and led the heart 10. Ace Jim Jacoby, East, made his slam easily after the lead. Note that Jacoby had no entry to dummy to make the winning play in hearts and must go down without the heart lead. Which proves that you can break a tooth on the best of cherry pies.

Usually a pre-empt robs the opponents of investigatory bidding space much to the pre-emptor's advantage. This time, it boomeranged. Lacking enough bidding space, Jacoby gambled that his side's best suit was clubs. He left the heart suit unmentioned, and saddled Lawrence with a blind opening lead.

Answer No. 2. If you bid a grand slam, your gain is enough to push your team into the lead. The entire hand:

NORTH
♠ Q 9 6
♥ A 7
♦ 9 8 6
♣ A Q 10 9 2

WEST
♠ J 10 8 2
♥ Q 10 5 4 3
♦ Q 3

EAST
♠ 5 4 3
♥ K J 8

SOUTH
♠ A K 7
♥ 9 6 2
♣ K

Aces Jim Jacoby and Bobby Wolff bid to seven and made the percentage play to bag the trump queen. Losing to the queen would have caused an embarrassing explanation.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

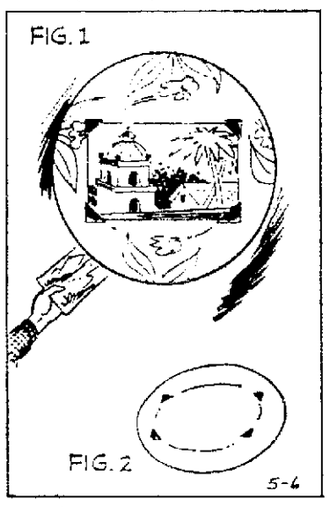
Dinner-Size Paper Plate Serves as Postcard Holder

BY CAPPY DICK

A dinner-size paper plate can serve as a holder for picture postcards by following today's fun-project directions for boys and girls.



Changeable Scenes

All you need to do is glue four triangular snapshot corner holders to the face of the plate (figure 2), spacing them so they will accommodate the average picture postcard as in figure 1.

To hold the plate upright a holder can be made from a strip of wood into which you cut a slot with your saw. This slot should run the length of the wood which should be about six inches long and two inches wide. It is advisable to cut the slot on a slant so when the edge of the plate is inserted it will slant backward a trifle, making the surface easy to see.

The display can be placed on your desk, a table or a shelf.

SEND FOR THIS BOOKLET OF PARTY IDEAS!

Mothers, fathers, aunts, uncles! If you are planning a party for the children and need new ideas for fun, you'll find 45 good ones in Cappy Dick's "Birthday Party Stunts" booklet. To get a copy, send 50 cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to CAPPY DICK BOOKLETS, P.O. BOX 42877, Evergreen Park, Illinois 60642.

Milwaukee Repertory Coming to Fox Cities

Popular 18th Century Comedy 'The Liar' Onstage Tuesday at UW Valley Campus

The Milwaukee Repertory Theater Company will bring its production of "The Liar" by Carlo Goldoni to the Fox Valley Campus Tuesday.

There will be only one performance in the campus Fine Arts Theater at 8:15 p.m with tickets available by phone reservation, at the door or at Conkey's Book Store in Appleton.

This 18th century Italian comedy which opened to unanimous critical acclaim March 12 at the Milwaukee Performing Arts Center has been touring 11 college campuses throughout Wisconsin during April and May.

The company will hold an informal workshop in the campus theater on Monday, the evening preceding the performance. Campus and high school students, as well as anyone from the community, may attend. There will be no charge.

Fast-Paced Comedy

"The Liar" is a rapidly-paced comedy which utilizes many of the traditional "commedia dell'arte" characters to provide a delightful evening of laughter. First performed in Mantua in the spring of 1750, "The Liar" is essentially a tale in which Pantalone, a befuddled merchant of Venice, trys to unravel the complications created by his son Lelio, whose glib tongue is continuity running away from him. What Lelio euphemistically calls his "witty inventions" provide the basis for a series of comical plot twists that has made "The Liar" a playgoer's delight for two centuries.

The Milwaukee Repertory production of "The Liar" is a new version translated by artistic director Tunc Yalman and directed by Paul Weidner, the latter producing director of the Hartford Stage Company in Connecticut.

Appearing in MART's production of "The Liar" will be Charles E. Siegel as Dr. Balanzoni, Judith Light and Stephanie Lewis as his daughters, Rosaura and Beatrice and Linda Carlson as Colombina, their maid. Arthur McFarland will play Ottavio who is in love with Beatrice, Mark Metcalf portrays Florindo who is secretly in love with Rosaura, and Stuart Kendall will play Brighella, his confidant.

Leads in Play

The role of Lelio, the liar, will be played by Gary Bayer, that of his father, Pantalone, by Jim Jansen Arlecchino, the liar's servant will be Philip MacKenzie Others in the cast are Randy Staley, Joan Graves and Barbara Staley

Scenery for "The Liar" was designed by Christopher M. Idoine; Janet C. Warren designed the costumes; lighting is by William Mintzer; and Merry Tigar is production stage manager.

The Rep's last appearance at the Fox Valley Campus was last spring when they did "Waiting for Godot."

Cary Bayer as Lelio and Judith Light as Rosaura take leading roles in the Milwaukee Repertory Theater Company's touring production of Carlo Goldoni's 18th century comedy, "The Liar." The performance will be at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday, at the University of Wisconsin Fox Valley Campus on Midway Rd.

Real Hoax of 1880s Basis For TV Story

BY TV SCOUT

6:30-7:30 Channels 11-9 — In the 1880s, Tiffany & Co. evaluated some uncut diamonds at $35,000, and they later proved to be worth $1 million. Some crooks used this for a hoax which nearly broke the Bank of California. Out of that true story, Alias Smith and Jones has an episode of a diamond hoax which pays off. Banker John McGiver robs his own bank and blames it on our heroes (Pete Duel and Ben Murphy). (R)

6:30 - 7 Channels 2-7 — On Family Affair, 11-year-old Clint Howard plays a school bully, who tangles with Jody and starts the wheels turning

6:30-7:30 Channel 5 — Bill Cosby and Flip Wilson team up on Flip Wilson Show and the chemistry is exciting. One skit, with Flip as Geraldine, the night nurse, got a little out of hand, and some risque stuff had to be edited out There's a good opening, if you like funeral humor, with the two doing fantastic takes Gina Lolobrigida is around, too, and watch her jewelry — she wears her own and there's a ruby-and-diamond necklace that will knock your carats out. 7:30-8 Channels 11-9 — Another fun evening of witchcraft on Bewitched, mostly because of Jane Connell, as Hepzibah, the High Priestess of All Witches

7:30-8:30 Channel 5 — Ironside revolves around Mark (Don Mitchell) and his law school class. His professor (James Daly) is recreating a famous case for his students and other interested parties.

8:30-9 Channel 5 — A purse-snatcher is sneaking up on old ladies on Adam-12 The police are pretty sure who the culprit is — a loud-mouthed, defiant teen — but the trick is to catch him. There's also a case of a pedestrian hit by a car and a liquor store holdup, and it's the latter event which takes care of the first one (R)

8:30-9 Channel 11-9 — Vic Morrow in on Dan August, playing the ambitious leader of a union local who wants the presidency enough to blackmail the man who has the job Then the man is shot, and Morrow becomes the logical suspect

9-10 Channel 5 — Zero Mostel fans, ahoy He's on Dean Martin Show and sings "If I Were a Rich Man" from "Fiddler On the Roof" Besides, there's Tony Bennett and Gloria Loring and even Kay Medford, as Ken Lane's mother (Ken is Dean's pianist) This show was shot during one of Dean's longest taping sessions — he did two shows in four hours (R)

Cards Pound Joe Hoerner In Relief Role

Phillies Lose, 5-1; Giants Edge Pirates Behind Marichal

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Lanky Joe Hoerner sat in the corner waiting for the phone to ring.

Manager Frank Lucchesi dialed the hot line, fetching in Philadelphia's ace reliever . . . but it turned out to be the wrong number.

Hoerner hooked up with a former teammate, Lou Brock, who promptly broke a 1-1 tie with a home run and St. Louis scored three more times in the eighth inning for a 5-1 triumph Wednesday night.

The Brock sendoff must have unsteadied Hoerner's composure. The star fireman, who had carried a 1.50 earned run average into the game, served up another gopher pitch to Matty Alou, then walked Louis Melendez before taking a shower.

Giants Win

In the other National League games, San Francisco turned back Pittsburgh 2-1; Chicago stopped New York 5-4; Montreal ripped Houston 5-1; Cincinnati banged Los Angeles 8-4, and San Diego and Atlanta split a doubleheader—the Padres winning the opener, 5-1 and the Braves the second game, 3-1.

The Phillies blew an opportunity to score the lead run in the seventh inning. Don Money doubled home Deron Johnson for the tying run, but Tim McCarver tripped while rounding third base and had to scramble back to the bag.

After McCarver's pratfall, Cardinal pitcher Reggie Cleve-

Brewers Rally to Win, 4-3

Kosco Delivers in Pinch; Lockwood Stops Senators

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The move Milwaukee Manager Dave Bristol didn't want to make turned out to be the right one Wednesday night as the Brewers came from behind to nip the Washington Senators 4-3.

Bristol tried to fake a batting change, but the umpires wouldn't let him do it. He was forced to make the change and it resulted in the tying and winning runs.

The Senators were leading 3-0 when loser Denny McLain walked pinch hitter Floyd Wicker to lead off the Brewer seventh. After Rick Auerbach struck out, pinch hitter Ted Savage singled to center.

McLain Out

That sent McLain to the showers and started a string of Washington pitchers, most of whom only faced one batter.

Horatio Pina got Tommy Harper to hit a soft roller back to the mound. Then Joe Grzenda walked pinch hitter Roberto Pena to fill the bases and apparently bring on another pinch hitter, Andy Kosco, who batted for John Briggs.

When Washington Coach Sidney Hudson bounded to the mound and called in another reliever, Jerry Janeski, Bristol recalled Kosco from the on-deck circle and sent Briggs to the plate.

Bristol Thumbed

The ensuing argument ended with Bristol being thrown out of the game and Briggs sitting on the bench. Kosco then came through with a sharp grounder to left, scoring the tying and winning runs.

"The manager has to tell the umpire who's pinch hitting," Bristol said. "I never said Kosco was batting for Briggs."

Dave Phillips, the home plate umpire, disagreed.

"I asked Bristol if Kosco was batting for Briggs and he shook his head 'yes,'" Phillips said.

Bristol was overruled, a decision that led to the Milwaukee victory.

"I've got to shake Kosco's hand," Bristol said. "The guy that got the hit that won the game was the guy I didn't want to hit."

Skip Lockwood, who evened his record at 2-2, was ecstatic over the victory.

Shake Hands

"That's a big win for me," he said. "It took me to the All-Star game last year to win my second game."

The Brewers scored their

Fans 11 Hitters

Oakland's Blue Stifles Tigers, 5-0, for 7th Consecutive Triumph

DETROIT (AP) — Vida Blue talks to himself when he pitches.

And most of the batters he faces talk to themselves also—undoubtedly muttering unniceties as they parade to the dugout, victims of the 21-year-old Oakland sensation's blurr-balls.

The unbelievable southpaw's fast balls sent 11 Tigers down on strikes as he hurled a four-hit shutout and won his seventh straight complete game as the Athletics downed Detroit 5-0 Wednesday night.

Manager Dick Williams of the A's likened the not-quite-a-rookie to pitching greats Sandy Koufax and Herb Score.

More than 13,000 persons turned out at Tiger Stadium, most of them probably to see if Blue was for real. They went home still wondering—can anyone be that good that consistently?

Win Every Start

"How many victories do you think he'll have this year?" Williams was asked.

"How many starts will he have?" he answered facetiously.

The victory gave the AL West Division leading A's a split of their two-game series with the Tigers, who were to play an exhibition game tonight at their top farm club in Toledo. They open a three-game series at home against Kansas City beginning Friday night.

Detroit is tied for third with Washington in the AL East with an 11-13 record, 4½ games behind leader Boston.

Blue has lost only the Presidential Opener, hurling seven complete game triumphs since to lead the league in victories and strikeouts (69). He has four shutouts and has pitched a two-hitter, three-hitter, two four-hitters, a five-hitter, and two six-hitters

Tough Curve

"When his curve ball is over he's as good as Sandy Koufax or Herb Score. . . . And he gets his curve over," Williams said.

But the curve is strictly to-keep batters honest. Blue said he throws about 80 per cent fast balls.

"I talk to myself a lot on the mound," the one-time standout prep football quarterback added. "I say things like, 'You've got to keep the ball down on this guy.'"

"He's a good pitcher, a good pitcher," Martin muttered, nodding his head. "He did a great job. . . . I thought he'd be much faster, though. He's not as fast as Herb Score was, or Sam McDowell is, but when he reached back and fired that ball a couple times he was about as fast."

Patriots and Ghosts Share FVA Lead

East, West Divide Pair of Overtime Duels

Appleton East and Appleton West took both games into extra frames Wednesday in splitting their Fox Valley Association doubleheaders.

Appleton West (3-3) pulled out the opener with a run in the bottom of the ninth for a 3-2 verdict, while Appleton East (5-2) tallied a singleton in the top of the eight for a 6-5 decision in the nightcap. East now shares the FVA lead with Kaukauna.

West took a 1-0 lead in the opener when winning pitcher Dwight Mueller singled and Brian Kasten tripled.

East tied the game in the top of the second on Dan Heinritz' single, a pair of walks and a wild pitch. In the fourth the Patriots took a 2-1 lead on a single by John Allen, a passed ball, and Jeff Bergsbaken's single.

West knotted the score in the fifth on Terry Kiley's double, an error and Dan Bodway's single. In the ninth, George Downey singled, Kiley reached on a fielder's choice, Mueller grounded out and Kasten singled home the decider.

Tying Runs Washed Out

Appleton Suffers 2-0 Loss to Burlington

BURLINGTON, Ia. — When the Appleton Foxes finally caught up with Burlington pitcher Alan Griffin Wednesday night, it proved to be too late.

Blanked for eight innings, the Foxes tied the game, at 2-2, in the ninth. However, a heavy rain began while the Bees were batting in the bottom of the ninth. The game had to be terminated, so the score reverted back to the end of the eighth inning. . .and the Bees owned a 2-0 victory.

The Foxes managed only three hits off Griffin in the first eight frames. Dick DeMay, making his first start for Appleton, pitched a 6-hitter, and both runs off him were unearned.

Griffin opened the Burlington third with a single. Mike Marostica forced him at second. After Tom Sandt popped out, Vic Harris lifted a fly to shallow right. Jerry Hairston and Larry Linville got their signals mixed, and Linville finally dropped the ball, the runner scoring from first. Dan Ford doubled to left for the second run.

Ross Sapp's single and Linville's double scored the runs in the ninth which later were to be washed out.

The Bees had a run on second, with one out in the bottom of the ninth when the deluge came.

Kaukauna Shuts Out Kimberly In 2 Games

KAUKAUNA — Kimberly was served a diet of goose eggs Wednesday as Kaukauna won a pair of 2-0 encounters from the Papermakers.

Southpaw Al Borchardt was working on a perfect game with two down in the seventh inning of the opener. After fouling off a couple pitches John Kotkosky singled, Lee Wyngaard singled and a dropped third strike filled the bases.

The victory hiked the Ghosts into a tie for the Fox Valley Association lead, with a 5-2 record. Kimberly is 0-6.

Borchardt fanned seven and didn't issue a walk. Kaukauna plated the winning run in the third as Bob VandenHeuvel reached on a fielder's choice

Koehnke 2nd in Pin Meet

BY RON WITT
Post Crescent Staff Writer

Lloyd (Bud) Koehnke has made his mark in several sports over the years, and now it seems the director of the Appleton Recreation Department has added another to the list — bowling.

Competing in Class B of the Post-Crescent's Bowl-O-Rama Tournament Wednesday night, Koehnke blasted a 906 series to move into second place. The effort was just eight pins shy of the leading total of 814 owned by Kiel's Bob Anhalt.

Koehnke, a 157 average kegler in the City Employees League at Sabre Lanes, could have taken over the top spot, but he was hurt by fouls in the first and 10th frames of his first game.

The second foul was particularly frustrating since the roll turned out to be a strike and was following on the heels of four straight strikes.

5 Open Frames

Despite the two fouls in the first line, Koehnke wound up with a 216 scratch total. He plummeted to a 139 in his second game, the victim of five open frames — including the 10th — but then rallied for his peak performance, a 227, and finished with 204.

Koehnke's scratch total came to 786, and he tacked on 120 pins handicap to account for the final 906 tally.

The head of the ARD the last four years, Koehnke has been active in baseball, softball and handball. The father of three has been a catcher and pitcher for the Menasha Macs, a catcher on the state champion Jack's Rose Hill softball team, and the No. 1 singles player in handball in Appleton for the last 12 years.

He is also a member of the

Trout Season Opens Saturday

Water Conditions Loom Favorable

BY JIM HARP
Post-Crescent Outdoor Editor

Providing the weatherman doesn't put the "whammy" on, trout fishermen who will be taking to Wisconsin lakes and streams for the season opener Saturday should find excellent water conditions.

At mid-week, streams were practically all within their banks, in spite of the soaking rainfall Tuesday, and the outlook was for good access by early anglers. Early stocking of trout by the Department of Natural Resources has been completed and these planted fish will make up the main portion of the catches on opening weekend.

An equally optimistic outlook awaits anglers who will be heading for the north country in search of walleyed pike or muskies. The report from DNR headquarters at Rhinelander and Woodruff was that walleyes were either in the process of spawning or right on the verge of it in most lakes and should be hungry.

Warmer Water

Muskie action is likely to be on the slow side for several weeks since these big fish want somewhat warmer water temperatures for spawning. Although snow and ice have disappeared from northern lakes, the water temperatures have remained on the cool side.

Trout will be the main target for many fishermen, especially in the early part of the day. Should sunny skies prevail, many anglers will take to the streams for several hours in the morning and then try lakes for mid-day through evening hours.

Each year, many state streams are stocked with trout by the DNR. Following is a list of stocked lakes and streams supplied by the fishery headquarters at Oshkosh. The list is for counties near the Fox Cities.

Tables Turn; Cubs Tip Mets By Single Run

Chicago Club Now 5-7 Against Foes In 1-Run Contests

CHICAGO (AP) — The one-run jinx finally was reversed by the Chicago Cubs Wednesday night. They defeated the Mets in New York 5-4.

The Cubs still are far behind in one-run verdicts. In a dozen such games, they've lost seven

After losing 3-2 and 2-1 to the Mets, the Cubs cashed in on two-run fifth inning singles by Ron Santo and Danny Breeden to win behind Fergie Jenkins, who settled down after a shaky start

Fergie, 5-2, struck out 12 for his fourth straight complete game decision after being ripped for three runs in the first inning

Three Singles

The Cubs reached Jim McAndrew for a run in the second inning on singles by Jim Hickman, Breeden and Don Kessinger.

In the decisive Cub fifth, Kessinger led off with a single and Glenn Beckert got an infield hit, McAndrew was replaced by rookie Charley Williams who walked Billy Williams Santo lashed a single to center, tying the score 3-3.

With two out and the bases again filled on an intentional pass to Joe Pepitone, Breeden grounded his hit between third and short for two more runs and a 5-3 padding.

'Say Hey Kid' Is 40

Willie Mays Has Birthday Bash

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Willie Howard Mays Jr., whose 633 home runs are second only to Babe Ruth in all baseball history, is 40 today, and that's reason for a party.

The National League schedule gave the San Francisco Giants today off to get ready for tonight's celebration in the pennant - bedecked grand ballroom of the plush Fairmont Hotel on Nob Hill.

Mays, nursing a sore right shoulder, has been resting since Sunday's game, but is due to return to the playing field here Friday night against Atlanta.

The San Francisco Oakland chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America is sponsoring tonight's bash, and the Baseball Writers chapter in New York, which was the Giants' home until 1958, is remembering Willie with an award.

Singers, musicians and comedians will entertain the party crowd at the $24-a-plate dinner. Proceeds will go to charities Mays designates.

Among the baseball executives to attend are commissioner Bowie Kuhn and National League president Charles S. Feeney.

Aaron to Attend

The many players on hand to honor uniform No. 24 will include Hank Aaron, 37, of Atlanta, who hit the 600th homer of his career last week in a game Mays' bat won for the Giants.

Mays, in his 20th major league season, is San Francisco's leading hitter with a .368 average and five home runs. He hit 28 last year and was given the silver beer mug as comeback player of the year.

He said then and it still holds: "I'm having fun out there again. I was getting bored with baseball. But not anymore. I go out there and if I don't get a hit, I'm not going to come back thinking the world has ended. I'm relaxed again."

If the Say Hey Kid of the 1950s could be granted a birthday wish, he might ask for a moratorium on speculation whether he will surpass Ruth's homer total before he racks his bat for the last time.

Ruth was 41 when he ended a 22-year career and got only six of his 714 home-run total the last season. Mays already had played more than 200 more games than the Bambino, due in part to the lengthened season.

NBA-ABA Merger

Owners Hear Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Merger committees for the rival National and American basketball associations were expected to bring the leagues closer to a union today when they report to the owners

For the second time in two weeks, the owners of each league will meet separately at different mid-town hotels to hear the report of their merger committees.

While the ABA already has made it clear it wants a merger, the NBA has been unable to get the required 13 votes of its 17 members. The next step thus rests with the NBA.

While no vote was scheduled today, the possibility still exists should the merger committee come up with the report. The ABA then would need approval again of eight of its 11 owners.

The committees have been negotiating for some three weeks during this latest attempt to bring the leagues together and end the astronomical bidding war for college players and the raiding of players.

Koehnke 2nd In Class B

Appleton Youth Baseball Association and was instrumental in instituting baseball as a sport at Appleton East and West High Schools this spring.

One other change in Men's Class B Wednesday saw Glenn Anderson sock an 891 total for a tie for fifth place. The Kimberly bowler spilled a .787 scratch count and added 104 pins handicap.

In women's action Berlin residents Agnes Janes and June Richter took over fourth and sixth places, respectively, in Class A. The former fired 835 (695 scratch) while the latter came in with 829 (701 scratch).

Appleton's Jane Koehnke, a sister-in-law to Bud, claimed the No. 4 spot in Class B by toppling an 858 aggregate. She had 698 pins scratch.

Due to an oversight after Tuesday night's competition, three changes of positions were not noted in the Wednesday edition of the Post-Crescent.

In Women's Class A action, Appleton's Donna Herbst and Joyce Bayer took seventh and eighth places with 837 and 833 final counts, respectively.

The remaining change occurred in Men's Class A where Appleton's Ken Boldt moved into sixth place with an 893 (813 scratch).

Kansas City Tops Cleveland

Cardenas Paces Twins' Win

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Andy Kosco has embarrassed his boss, but there's a smile lurking behind the egg on Dave Bristol's face.

The Milwaukee manager argued loud and long in a vain attempt to keep Kosco from pinch-hitting for the Brewers in Wednesday night's game against Washington—and got himself thrown out of the game instead.

Then, Kosco, an orphan of the seventh-inning storm, poked a two-run single that gave the Brewers a 4-3 victory over Denny McLain and the reeling Senators.

Elsewhere in the American League, Vida Blue fired a four-hitter for his seventh victory of the young season as Oakland trimmed Detroit 5-0; Leo Cardenas drove in all the Minnesota runs in a 5-3 verdict over the New York Yankees and Amos Otis' two-run homer helped Kansas City top Cleveland 4-2.

Rain washed out the Boston-Chicago and California-Baltimore games.

Blue, Oakland's 21-year-old southpaw flash, tamed the Tigers for his seventh successive complete game victory after a season-opening setback at Washington. He struck out 11, boosting his early-season total to 69—tops in the majors.

The A's nicked Dean Chance, 0-5, for the only run they needed in the fourth and then pulled away in the fifth with four runs—the last two on a single by Joe Rudi.

Cardenas smacked his first homer of the season—a three-run shot off Stan Bahnsen in the second inning—and later punched a pair of run-scoring singles while upping his batting average from .227 to .250.

Jim Perry held off the Yankees until the eighth, when he got relief help from rookie Ray Gorfbin, and picked up his fifth victory in seven decisions.

Otis' fourth homer of the year keyed a four-run Kansas City salvo in the sixth. Reliever Tom Burgmeier sealed the victory for Dick Drago in the ninth as Cleveland went down to its 16th defeat in the last 21 games.

Beaty Tallies 40

Wise Surprise Ace in Utah's Second Victory

SALT LAKE CITY AP — Zelmo Beaty scored 40 points and snared 15 rebounds, but Utah coach Bill Sharman says Willie Wise was the key to the 138-125 victory Wednesday night that gave the Stars a 2-0 lead over Kentucky in the American Basketball Association championship playoffs.

"Beaty did a great job," Sharman said following the game. "But Wise was outstanding."

The Utah coach described Wise's 26 points and 24 rebounds as "just too much to expect."

Beaty's 40-point performance was matched by Kentucky center Dan Issel. Darel Carrier and Walt Simon added 25 each for the Colonels.

Back to Louisville

The best-of-seven series now moves to Louisville for games Friday and Saturday, the latter contest to be nationally televised.

Utah breezed to a 37-28 first period lead before Simon and Issel combined to give the Colonels their first lead of the night, 42-40, with four minutes gone in the second quarter.

Things remained pretty even from that point until Beaty scored six points near the end of the third period to open things up a little.

Sharman credited hot shooting and a good team effort for his team's victory. The Stars hit 57 per cent from the field and 75.6 per cent from the foul line.

Too Many Mistakes

"We just threw the ball away too much," said Kentucky coach Frank Ramsey of the Colonels' loss.

The official statistics, however, indicated that Kentucky committed only 13 turnovers to 19 for Utah.

"There's no way that's right," Ramsey said. "We threw the ball away a lot more than that."

Name John Kotz To Hall of Fame

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — John Kotz, one-time University of Wisconsin basketball star from Rhinelander, has been nominated for the Madison Sports Hall of Fame.

He and three others to be named later will be enrolled in the hall June 2.

Kotz, owner of a sporting goods store in Madison, was a key player on the UW basketball team that won the NCAA title in 1947.

land walked Larry Hisle intentionally to load the bases, then worked out of the jam by getting two outs.

Lucchesi also was dismayed about the team's .235 batting average, one of the reasons for its last-place posture in the East.

Marichal 3-Hitter

Juan Marichal tossed a three-hitter and Ken Henderson knocked in both runs for San Francisco. After Bob Robertson gave the Pirates a 1-0 lead in the first with his fifth homer of the year, Henderson tied it with a fifth-inning single and drove in the winning run with a seventh-inning roller.

Ron Santo and Danny Breedan ripped two-run singles in the fifth inning and Chicago ace Ferguson Jenkins settled down after a rocky start to tame New York.

Jenkins struck out 12 and posted his fifth victory after New York reached him for three runs in the first inning. A leadoff single by Don Kessinger started Chicago's winning rally in the fifth. Santo's single tied the score at 3-3, then Breedan's hit knocked in the decisive runs.

Big Start

Bill Stoneman pitched a six-hitter and Montreal raked three Houston pitchers for five runs in the first three innings. Ron Hunt sent Stoneman on the way to his third victory with a leadoff homer off Astros starter Wade Blasingame in the first inning.

Tony Perez drove in four runs with a three-run homer and a double as Cincinnati topped Los Angeles. Perez' homer snapped a 3-3 tie in the seventh and sent Dodger ace Bill Singer down to his sixth loss in eight decisions.

Ollie Brown and Nate Colbert delivered home runs and reliever Al Severinsen choked off a bases-loaded rally by Atlanta in the eighth to preserve San Diego's opening-game victory.

The Braves bounced back in the nightcap as Gil Garrido and pitcher Jim Nash broke a tie with run-scoring singles in the sixth inning.

Gear Fires 2-Hitter

Jays, Indians Split

OSHKOSH — Relief pitcher Steve Tesch drove in the winning run with a single in the last of the seventh to give Oshkosh High School a 6-5 win over Menasha and a split in their Fox Valley Association doubleheader here Wednesday.

Menasha's Steve Gear authored a 2-hitter as the Bluejays claimed the opener, 2-0. The Indians are now 4-3 in FVA play; Menasha 3-4.

Gear gave up a triple to Dave Protz in the first inning and a hit to Tim Fennin the sixth in hurling his win. He struck out six and only walked two.

Fenn only allowed three hits in dropping his second straight low-hit decision. He bowed to Neenah on two safeties a week ago. The southpaw fanned 11 and walked six.

Menasha scored single runs in the third and seventh innings.

The Jays had a 5-2 lead after 4½ innings of the nightcap but Oshkosh tied the score with three markers in the last of the fifth and won it with two out in the last of the seventh on a single by Craig Whitney, his theft of second and Tesch's hit to left.

Tesch gained the win in relief of Mike Mueller in the fifth. Dan Juedes started but was chased in the second.

John Gilbert hurled the first 4 and 1/3rd innings for the Jays and Tom Bohmke finished.

The line score:

Oshkosh	000	000	0	5	0	1

Gabriel Signs New Ram Pact

Dispels Rumor That He Might Play Out Option

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Quarterback Roman Gabriel, who would have been playing out his option year with the Los Angeles Rams this season, signed a new four-year pact with the National Football League club Wednesday.

Director of Player Personnel John Sanders announced the signing and Gabriel himself put an end to rumors that he might play out the option and join his ex - coach and close friend George Allen, with the Washington Redskins.

Terms of Gabriel's contract were not disclosed.

Speaking of Tommy Prothro, the new Ram coach from UCLA, Gabriel said he has been impressed with him.

"The Rams picked a good man in Prothro," he said. "He's a winner. He didn't take the Ram job because of money since he's a wealthy man. This is a challenge to Prothro."

Gabriel holds virtually every Ram passing record. He has a lifetime completion record of 1,360 in 2,638 attempts, 17,958 yards and 125 touchdown strikes.

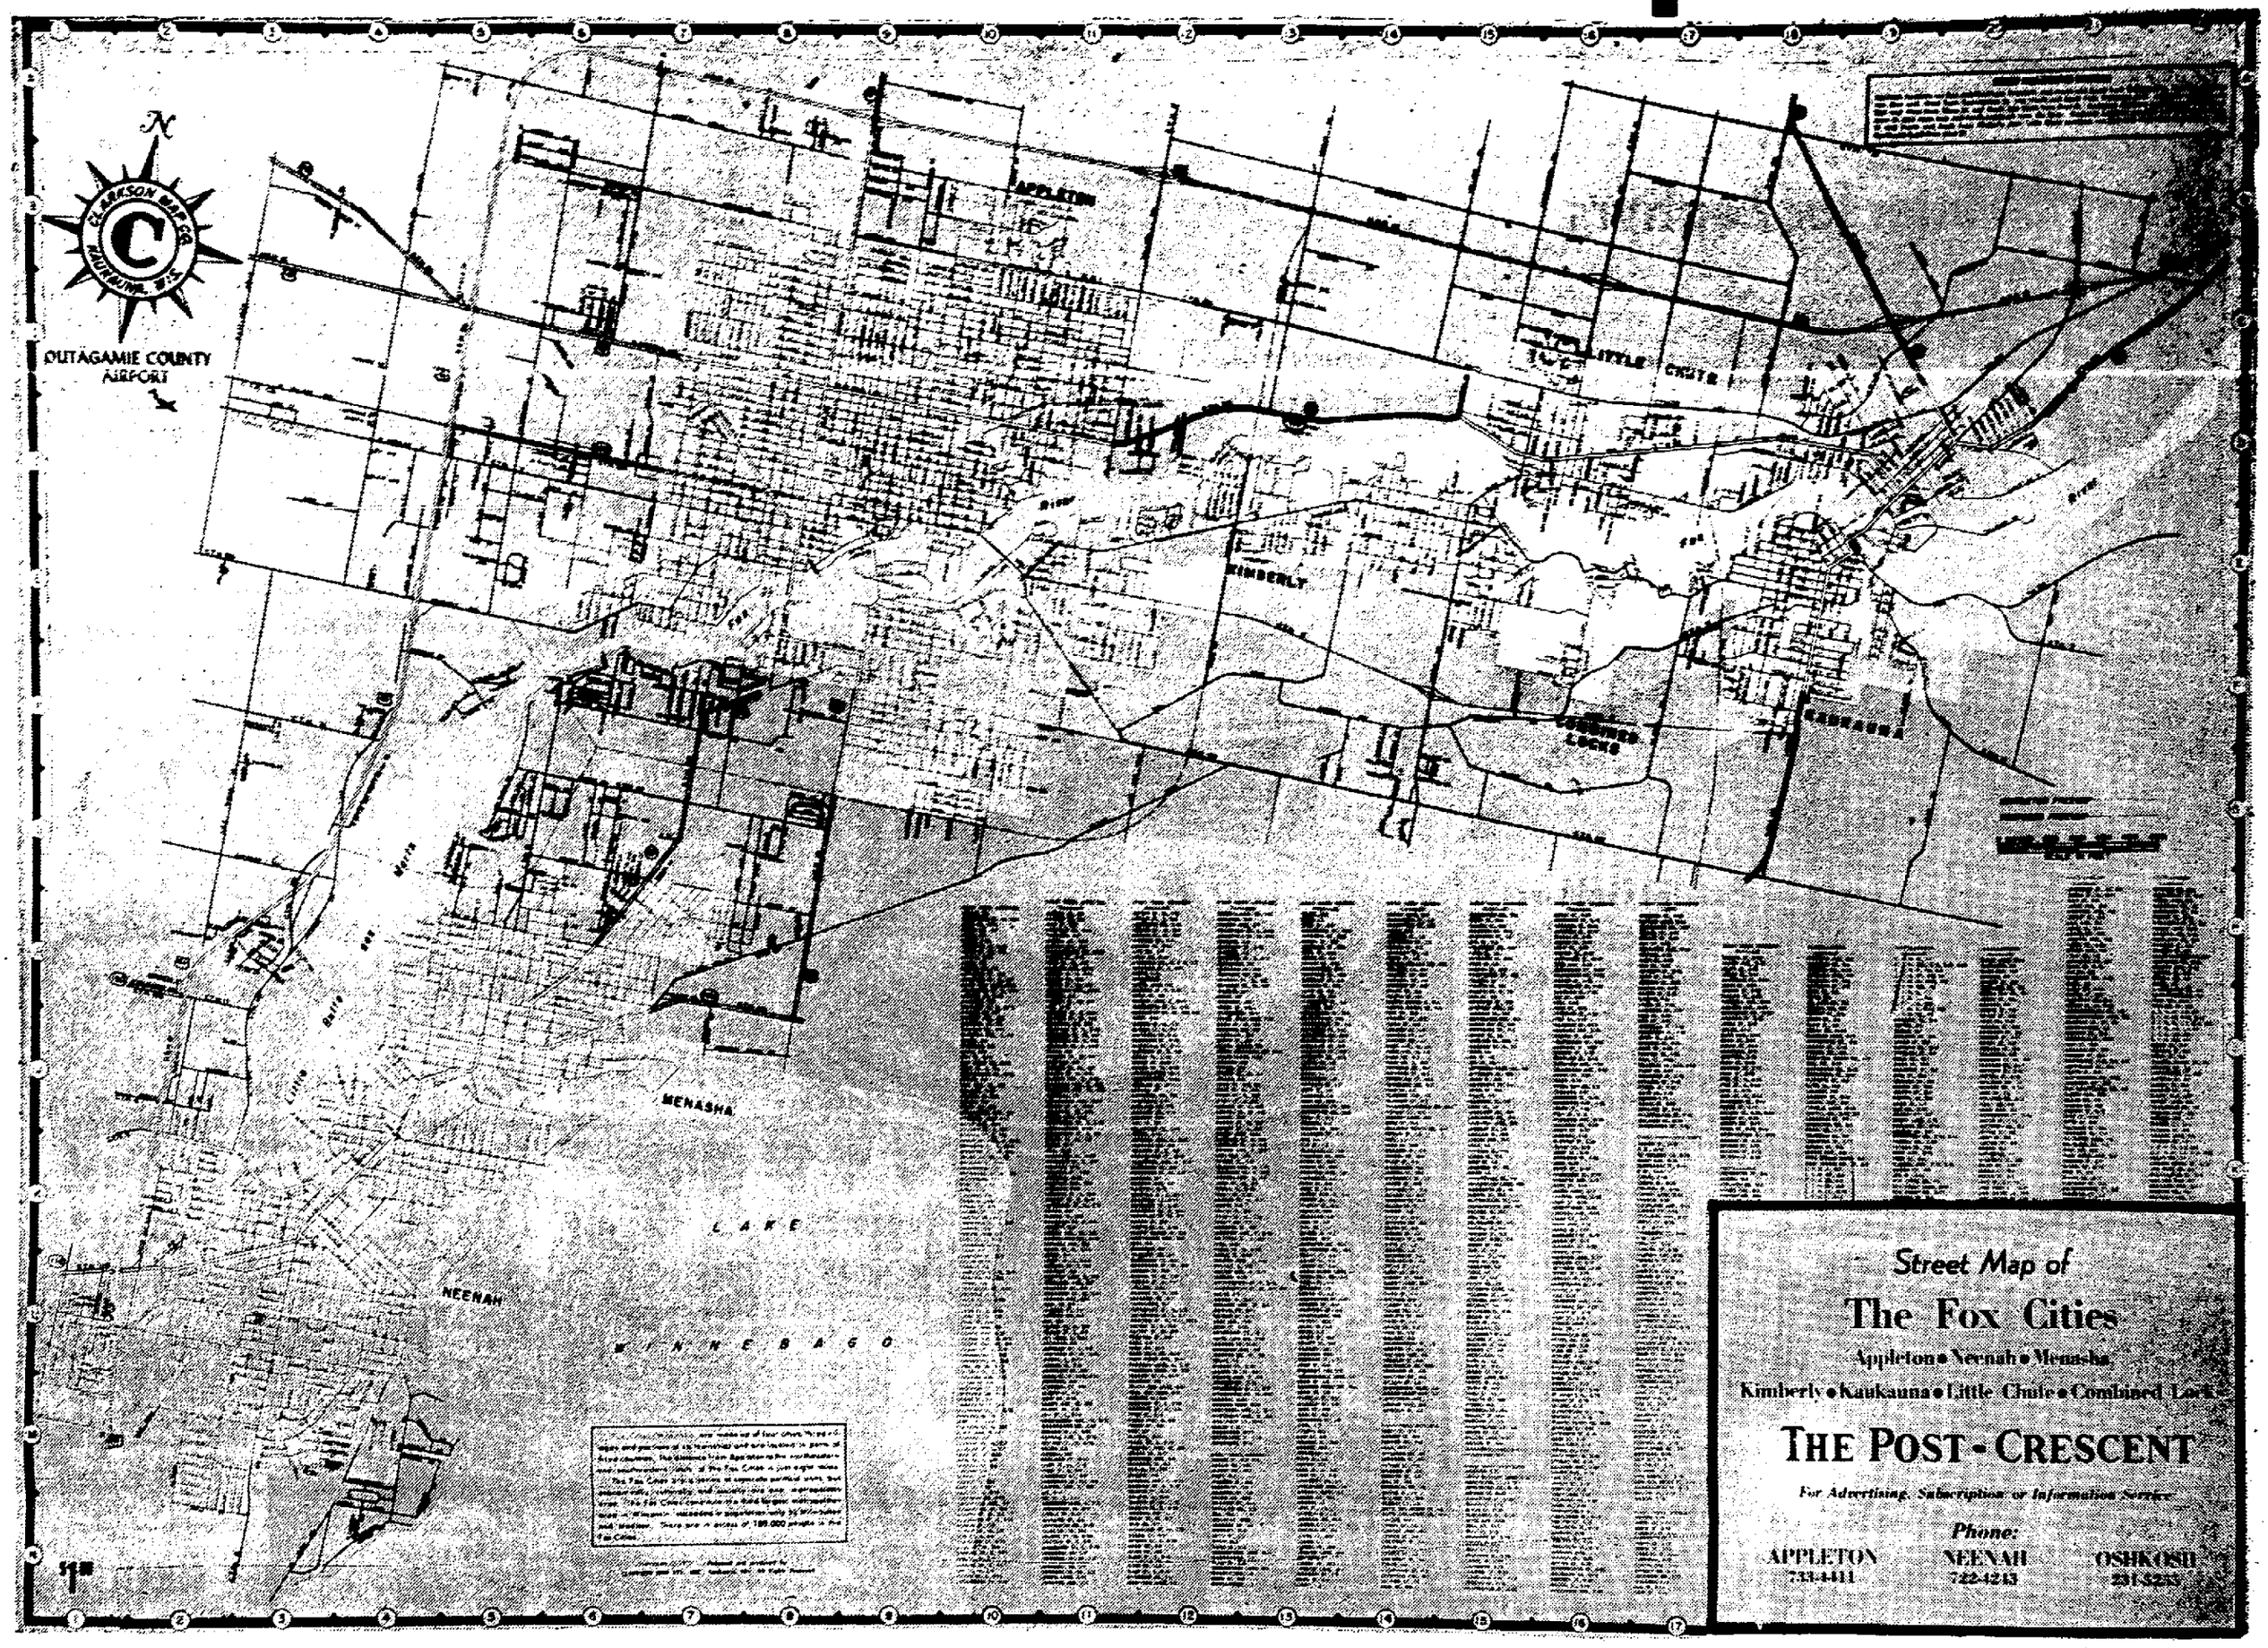
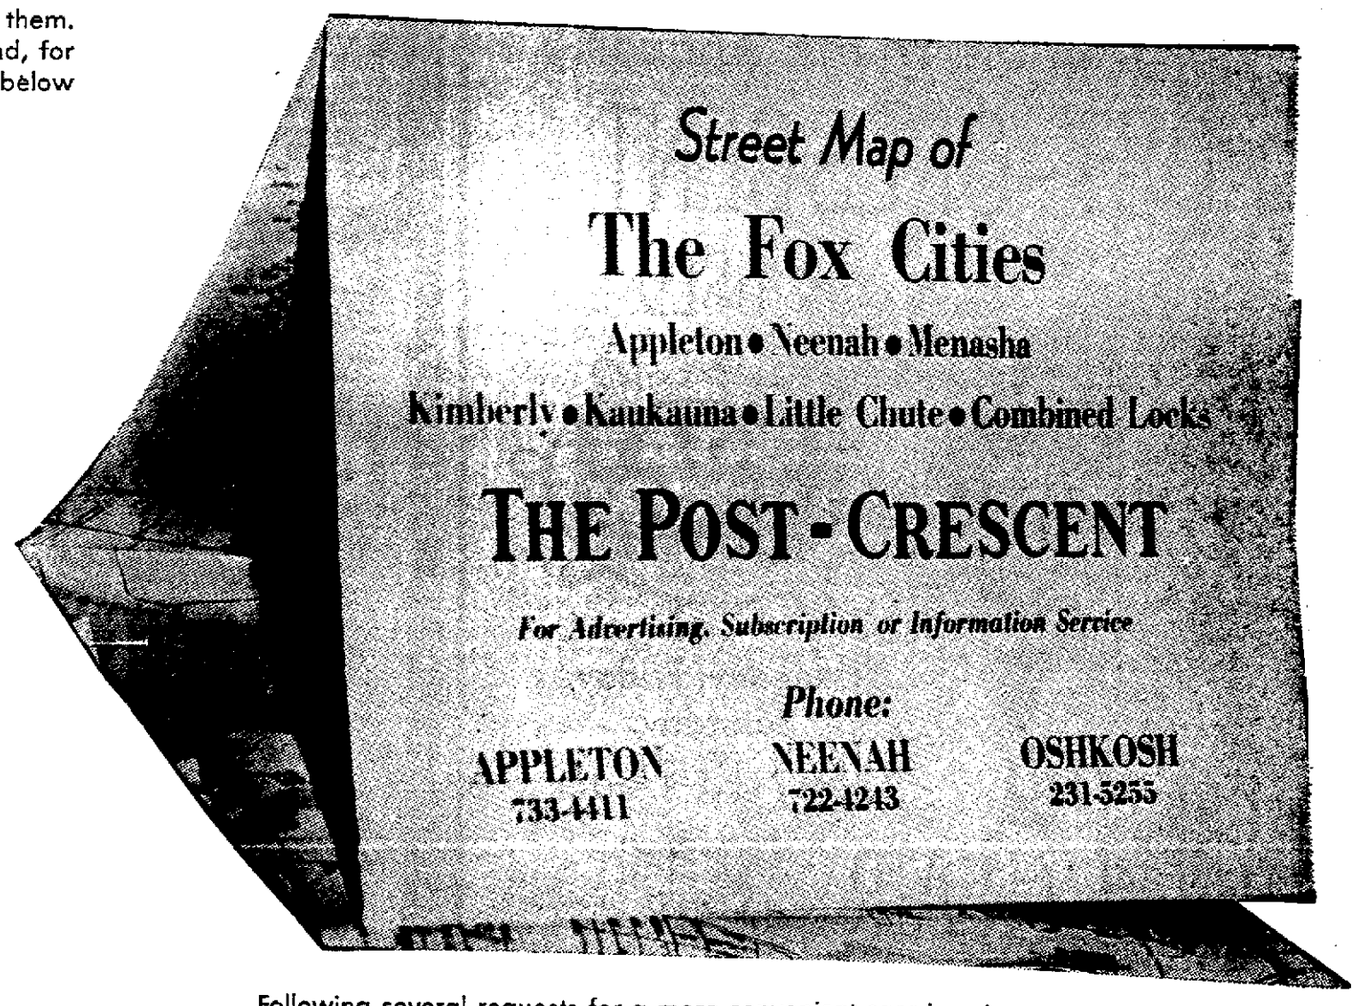
Fox Cities Maps



- Present and Proposed Freeways
- New Scale-in Feet
- New Interchanges
- New Streets
- New Colors
- Actual size 34"x24½"

A great number of changes have taken place since the last Post-Crescent Fox Cities maps were prepared in 1966. Many new streets, freeway extensions and interchanges have been installed. Town areas have grown, city areas extended. These changes are all reflected in the new, 1970 Fox Cities maps just now available. While it is almost impossible for city planners and engineers, from whom most of the information is obtained, to be 100% accurate, the 1970 maps are as complete as it is possible to make them. Stop by the Post-Crescent offices in Appleton, Neenah or Oshkosh and, for just one dollar, get your new map. You may use the handy order form below for mailing purposes if you desire.

Available Folded or Unfolded



Following several requests for a more convenient carrying size, the new, 1970 Fox Cities maps are now available folded to an approximate 8½"x6" size. However, unfolded maps are still available for those who desire to mount them.

Nothing Illegal

Halas Enjoys Self At NFL Jury Probe

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — "I didn't get the impression that the grand jury thinks the NFL is doing anything illegal," George S. Halas Sr. told newsmen after testifying Wednesday before a federal grand jury investigating possible antitrust violations in the National Football League.

Halas, 76, the owner and founder of the Chicago Bears, was one of two witnesses the jury brought to Cleveland as it concluded its hearings for this month. The other was Bert Rose, 51, who served four teams and the commissioner's office in 16 years of association with the NFL.

The jury is expected to resume hearings in June before recessing for the months of July and August.

"I enjoyed it," said Halas. "I found the jurors kind, generous and friendly. I gave them a lot of information and a few laughs."

Halas said the first question he was asked "was about the evolution of pro football."

However, he refused to discuss the particulars of his testimony on the advice of his attorneys, Don Reuben and Mike Coffield.

"There is no question everything connected with the National Football League is legal," said Halas. "My life and soul are tied up in this league and I want everybody to be on the level."

Referring to players who have registered claims of blackballing against league owners, Halas said those players "take all that's good from it and then downgrade pro football. It's unfair."

Hodag 50 Said to be In Jeopardy

RHINELANDER, Wis. (AP) — The Hodag 50, the Kentucky Derby of snowmobile racing, may have to be cancelled because of insurance costs and the shortage of land for the marathon.

The race, founded in the 1960s as a 59-mile cross-country contest when snowmobiling was an infant sport, has become an annual 65-mile backwoods endurance showdown for the cream of the manufacturers' crop.

William Hyland, president of Hodag 50 Inc., said the insurance costs for the event have increased to $500,000 from $50,000 in six years, and that landowners are becoming increasingly less willing to lease their land for the affair.

The race has been able to attract about 500 entries. It is the feature event of Rhinelander's winter festival, helping attract attendance estimated at up to 50,000 persons for a week of snowmobile racing.

The fate of the race is to be decided May 19. Officials said an alternative may be a less-glamorous marathon on the town's oval race course.

Cards' Beathard Is Free Agent

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Backup quarterback Pete Beathard of the St. Louis Cardinals technically is a free agent, a club spokesman said Tuesday.

"We are still in negotiation with him and are hopeful that we will work out a salary agreement, Cardinal publicist Joe Pollack said.

Obtained a year ago from the Houston Oilers, Beathard balked at signing a contract, thus playing out the option on the pact he had the year before. The terminal date for such contracts is May 1.

IPC Chief Warns Paper Firms

The paper industry probably has long-term economic and environmental advantages because it's based on a renewable resource, but it must constantly earn these advantages, John G. Strange, president of The Institute of Paper Chemistry, said today.

His remarks came at the afternoon session of the Institute's 35th annual Executives' Conference. About 250 high management officials of many of the nation's pulp and paper firms are attending the two-day conference.

The first day's activities included talks by Institute technicians and a tour, plus exhibits in the Institute's research laboratories.

Strange told executives, "It's popular to observe that the paper industry is based on a renewable resource which is a vital part of nature's recycling of energy, water and oxygen."

Not Automatic

He admitted this very likely gives certain advantages, but warned that "enjoyment of these advantages is not, however, something that will come automatically. They have to be earned continuously in competition with other materials and products."

He said this leads to two considerations — the productivity of an acre of land devoted to generating cellulose and the opportunities for using polymer (cellulose) most efficiently.

"There is enough knowledge at hand to predict that, as the years go by, the productivity of an acre of land will be immensely increased, and present research suggests that there may may be many viable options in handling the natural pollymer, provided, as the modern generation would say, we all hang in there and see that these promises are realized," Strange said.

The Institute's president discussed recent changes in the paper industry and referred to the Institute as "a particular institution, oriented to a changing industry and functioning within a professional matrix that is changing even more rapidly."

'Work at It'

He said, "In a way, it is like trying to get a fix on a moving target from a moving base. It can be done but you have to work at it."

Strange said the immediate future would be the most difficult decade for educational and scientific sectors of society.

He discussed several other subjects, including technical areas within the Institute.

Discussing fundamental research of the high polymer, cellulose, he said, "It may be appropriate to observe that the success the Institute and others may have in manipulating this polymer, either by itself or in combination with other building blocks, will have a decided influence on the future technologies of the paper industry."

Greater Skill

He continued, "I think it is fair to say that existing technologies are decidedly muscular in character, they involve wasted motion and wasted energy, and we often over-kill in an effort to meet our objectives. This is possible today. Tomorrow's competition will require greater skill, more versatility and better precision. We have to become more dexterous."

In a portion of his description of the Institute's environment-related research, he noted that grants have been received to support the Institute's development of the 'dynamic' mathematical modeling and computer simulation of water sheds and rivers as opposed to present models based on 'static' conditions.

Describing another environment-oriented study, he said, "We are working on the fundamental character and behavior of sludges in order to gather the knowledge which will enable us and others to reach for better ways of handling, using and disposing of these materials."

After commenting on work going forward at the Institute on the critical factors of both on - and off-machine coating and noting that two of the Institute's research divisions are broadly concerned with the study and selection of chemical additives to meet specified use requirements, Strange stated, "Our background in the chemical additive field is probably more extensive than that of another organization."

Product Development

Though the nature of the work is confidential, the Institute has a number of commitments in the product development field, Strange said.

"This is particularly visible in our container section, but we are also involved, for example, in the graphic arts and communications areas."

Strange identified instrumentation also as one of the Institute's major concerns.

Questions of what research problems the Institute should tackle and where solutions might be most rewarding are not easy to answer, Strange said.

"A rather earthy response might be that one should undertake projects which are the easiest to sell and which therefore will receive the widest support "

"Budgetary Attraction"

He continued, "This is a kind of merchandising consensus, and one must confess that it has a strong budgetary attraction Its weakness is that it may overemphasize current appetites and neglect the kind of foundation building that is necessary for future strength. Exclusively pursued, it is also a forfeiture of leadership responsibilities."

Strange said research projects come into being at the Institute in several ways. One of those he described was by "an interpretation of industry needs gained through the questions that are put to us in literally hundreds of consultations each year."

He also described an Advisory Committee on Institutional Research Programs created last fall by the Institute's Board of Trustees. "The committee is taking its assignment seriously. It already has had two long meetings and I am certain that we will be strengthened by its counsel," he said.

All-Night Vigil, Rally at OSU Were Peaceful

OSHKOSH — Although many cities across the country were hit Wednesday by violent anti-war demonstrations, a rally and all-night vigil here were peaceful and without incident.

The rally, held in the afternoon on the front lawn at Dempsey Hall, on the Oshkosh University campus, drew fewer than several hundred persons despite national speakers, local speakers and folk singers.

Wednesday was also "brat day" and O Club lettermen sold bratwurst and Pepsi several hundred feet from the rally speakers' microphone.

The rally and vigil was sponsored by the student mobilization committee to end the war in Vietnam.

The vigil was held after a rock concert sponsored by another peace oriented group. The vigil, too was silent and peaceful.

Both events marked the anniversary of the death of students at Kent and Jackson State Colleges and the invasion of Cambodia.

Air Wisconsin Lost $89,864 In Past Year

Flight Cancellations During 'Sick-Out' One of Factors

Air Wisconsin, Inc., the Fox Cities' six-year-old third level airline, has reported a 1970 income loss attributed to the general economic slowdown and flight cancellations by the major airlines.

The airline reported that it lost $89,864 last year compared with a profit of $134,648 during 1969. Per share equivalents were 46 cents in 1970 and 75 cents the year before.

Its operating revenues increased from $2,078,315 in 1969 to $2,988,329 in 1970 and its number of passengers increased from 91,843 to 117,572.

Karl Baldwin, president, said "We did not foresse that the first quarter loss of $47,000 would be nearly doubled by the end of the year and almost equalled in the first two months of 1971. But, then, we were not alone in our problems."

He attributed the loss to "the administration's tightening fiscal policies, the general economic slowdown, the air traffic controller 'sick out' with resultant cancellations by the certified airlines of a substantial percentage of their flights . . ."

He credited the survival of the airline "to the positive and timely actions of the company's management."

He told stockholders about the Northwest Airline strike, the severity of the past winter and other problems in 1970 — "the year of near disaster" — and said that management's moves on a voluntary wage cut of 6 per cent and its systematic and orderly fashion of reducing costs by eliminating service over unprofitable routes served to prevent the collapse of the young airline.

Air Wisconsin terminated service to Detroit and Kokomo-Marion, Ind., last year.

"These economies enabled the company to reduce its personnel from 170 to 130, including a drop of 19 line pilots from 55 down to 36, and to realize additional and substantial savings by way of terminal rentals and landing fees at the points eliminated from the schedule," he said.

"The company trimmed its sails, weathered the storm and is now back on course to what we confidently hope will be a successful year," he added.

During 1970, the airline flights-completed percentage was 96, the highest it has had. It operated seven aircraft, also a high, and increased mail carried from 18,633 in 1969 to 782,037 pounds in 1970.

Bill Proposes Changed Election Of County Boards

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Staggered election of county board supervisors is proposed in a bill offered in the state Assembly by Reps. Ervin Conradt of Shiocton and Harold Froehlich of Appleton.

The proposal would provide for the election of one half of the members of the board each year, for the terms of two years now provided by law.

Conradt, a member of the Outagamie County Board, said his purpose is to assure some degree of continuity in the operations of the county board and to prevent wholesale replacement of supervisors in any single election.

The Houses Dropped Into Nowhere

ST. JEAN VIANNEY, Que. (AP) — Many of St. Jean Vianney's 1,300 people were watching the Stanley Cup hockey finals on television when the ground began giving way, tumbling houses into a sea of mud.

Forty-two cottages crashed down into the crater that widened out late Tuesday night. Today five bodies had been recovered and no hope was held for 26 missing persons.

Francois Richard was watching the hockey game when he heard shouting and ran 700 yards down the street. He saw houses falling one by one, dropping "150 feet into nowhere."

"I just got the kids and wife out of the house in time," he said.

An entire street and part of another were pulled into the grayish mud pit 2,000 feet wide and more than 100 feet deep.

A government geologist, Jean-Yves Chagnon, said the cave-in may have been caused by erosion of sandy soil at the base of the bluff on which the town was built, or by an earth tremor Tuesday believed centered in the area 116 miles north of Quebec City. He said he didn't expect any more slides.

"But if it rains for two days, it could mean trouble," Chagnon said. He explained that a lot of rain could start sludge flowing down the new canyon and undercut the river banks elsewhere.

The small river which runs through the crater swept most of the houses down the valley to where it joins the Saguenay River. There rescue workers probed the debris with long metal poles in search of bodies.

Moncalm Laforge, his pregnant wife and their three children were in one of the first houses to slide into the pit.

Republic Steel Hikes Price Too

Most Producers Now Expected to Raise Their Rates

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Republic Steel Corp. today matched U.S. Steel Corp.'s 6¼ price increase on items used in autos and appliances, but the rest of the industry was "still looking."

Republic made the announcement from its Cleveland, Ohio, headquarters. A spokesman said the price hikes and effective dates matched those announced Wednesday by U.S. Steel on products that comprise about one-third of shipments industrywide. He said the Republic increases also include electrogalvanized sheets, which U.S. Steel doesn't handle.

Other large steel corporations, including Jones & Laughlin, National, Armco and Wheeling-Pittsburgh, continued to review their price structures.

A spokesman for Wheeling Pittsburgh said it was doing some "new figuring" since it, too, makes electrogalvanized sheets.

Only Bethlehem Steel Corp., the No. 2 producer, declined immediate comment on the move by U.S. Steel. Sources at Bethlehem said, however, that the company probably was waiting to see what, if anything, was done by the White House.

Bethlehem drew the ire of President Nixon last January when it announced price hikes of 12.5 per cent. Bethlehem rolled back the prices to an average 6.8 per cent after the President raised a threat of permitting more steel imports. Nixon had termed the Bethlehem price hikes "enormous."

But a White House spokesman said Wednesday no attempt would be made to roll back the price boost, while expressing administration disappointment in the hike.

UW Protest Most Violent Of Those on State Campuses

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A moratorium on antiwar rallies was declared Wednesday at the University of Wisconsin as hundreds of students gathered for a second consecutive night of vandalism.

Police and their tear gas equipment saturated the 33,000-student campus in Madison under a directive from Chancellor H. Edwin Young, who ordered police to disperse any unauthorized student assembly.

The UW demonstrators' hit-and-run tactics, designed to create disruption but avoid arrest, were criticized by some observers as aimless vandalism.

"There's a better way of doing it," student Irvin Drach Jr. of Marshfield remarked. "You should organize people into an antiwar movement that is a day-to-day operation."

Playing a Game

Sniffing at the tear gas which police used persistently to contain clusters of students inside campus buildings, Drach added: "The situation gets to be redundant. The kids are just playing their game."

Roberta Schwartz, a freshman from Auburn, Maine, described police as abusive in dealing with thousands of demonstrators during the day. But she similarly expressed the futility of sidewalk protest.

"We got shoved right into the street" by police who later "pushed us back onto the sidewalk," the coed said. "We pay to come to the university; we ought to be able to go to classes."

About 5,000 demonstrators covered a three-block area of a UW campus mall during what had been intended as a noon speech-making rally. Police dispersed the crowd to keep auto traffic moving.

100 Persons

A mile away, outside Madison's Federal Building an angry passerby quarreled with a placard carrier during a memorial for slain Kent State students, attended by about 100 persons. Some state government employes joined the protesters.

About 100 students occupied a Selective Service office near Stevens Point State University, but abandoned their sit-in when requested by Stevens Point police.

Only 100 persons assembled at Oshkosh State University for antiwar speeches. But the crowd swelled to 200 during a folk singer's performance.

In Madison, authorities said the day-night disorders had led to at least 15 arrests. At least six persons were treated for the affects of tear gas.

An estimated 700 young demonstrators clogged main thoroughfares in Milwaukee's business district after a comparably calm protest march by 2,000 persons. Police said six persons were arrested during efforts to get traffic moving again.

After the noon campus rally and Federal Building incidents in Madison, UW students called for an evening rally on the same dormitory plaza where Tuesday's disorders had begun.

Nixon Disappointed

Wholesale Prices Go Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rise in wholesale prices accelerated in April, handing the Nixon administration a setback in its effort to control inflation, the Labor Department reported today.

The department said its wholesale price index advanced by three-tenths of one per cent in April, with its key industrial commodities index going up by four-tenths of one per cent.

The increase was even larger on a seasonally adjusted basis, with the over-all index increasing by five-tenths of one per cent and industrial prices by the same amount.

The April increase followed a slackening in wholesale prices in March, when the index advanced by only two-tenths of one per cent on both an unadjusted and seasonally adjusted basis.

The department said farm products showed no change in April, while prices of processed foods and feeds actually declined by two-tenths of one per cent. But on a seasonally adjusted basis, prices of farm products increased by 1.4 per cent, with the cost of processed foods and feeds unchanged.

The department said the April advance brought the index to 113.3 per cent of the 1967 average, 3.1 per cent higher than the same month a year ago. This meant that it cost $113.30 to purchase the same amount of wholesale goods that $100 bought in 1967.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics blamed the increase in the industrials index on "renewed strength in prices of metals and metal products." Prices of these products had leveled off in recent months.

Fox-Winnebago Cleanup Forum Set

A public forum to organize local forces in the quest of federal funds for a Lower Fox River-Lake Winnebago management cleanup project is being sponsored May 27 at The Pioneer Inn, Oshkosh, by The Post-Crescent, in conjunction with station WLUK-TV.

Editor John Torinus said the one-day session will bring together local, state and federal officials and technicians, and provide a clearer view of what has been done and what can — and should — be done for the lake and river.

A major goal of the forum, Torinus said, will be the formation of local officials — probably top county officials in the Fox Valley — into a committee to put together a water management organization. This is essential if the area is to qualify for federal funds which may be available for anticipated federal management programs.

Initiate Program

The immediate goal is getting about $200,000 in federal Environmental Protection Agency funds of $800,000 made available to the Upper Great Lakes Basin. This money would be sought before the end of the fiscal year and would be used to initiate the management program.

Torinus has met in recent weeks with several Valley Technicians and officials in organizing the forum. A specific proposal outlining management procedures for the project also is being prepared.

The forum is in the final stages of preparation. Among the speakers will be Thomas Frangos, acting administrator of the State Department of Natural Resources environmental protection division; Dr. H. J. Day, professor of environmental control at the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay, and luncheon speaker Dr. Irving Fox, associate director of the Water Resource Research Center, University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Torinus said the afternoon session will include a panel discussion and open question-and-answer period, with emphasis on organizing for the management project.

The forum will be called "Water Pollution Management — A New Concept: Can the Fox River and Lake Winnebago Really Be Cleaned Up?"

Torinus said the management project probably would be handled by the five counties surrounding the surface water: Winnebago, Fond du Lac, Outagamie, Calumet and Brown. Officials from these counties, including county board members, municipal leaders and industrial and civic leaders, will be invited to the forum.

The state will be applying for the federal funds for this area, he said, but it will be essential

Dollar Crisis Could Affect U.S. Consumer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American consumer, traveler and businessman have a stake in the flurry of monetary speculation threatening the stability of European currency.

But experts foresee little immediate impact on Americans as a result of trading by speculators hoping for an increase in the value of the West German mark.

The long-term results—if German or other European currencies are revalued upward as the speculators hope—could affect U.S. foreign trade by encouraging exports and—through higher consumer prices on foreign products in U.S. stores—discouraging imports. And it could weaken international confidence in the dollar, the most serious possible result.

Following are some questions and answers to explain how the crisis developed, what the U.S. moves mean, and what the probable outcome will be:

Q. Why did the German, Swiss, Netherlands, Austrian and Belgian banks suspend trading in dollars?

A. Because they were hit with a flood of dollars which speculators wanted to change into West German Deutschmarks and—to a much lesser extent—other European currencies.

Q. Why do the speculators want marks?

A. They believe the mark soon may be revalued upward—that its value will be increased in terms of dollars. They think that the mark, now worth something over 27 cents, will soon be worth more.

Q. How could the value be changed?

A. The German government could declare a new and higher value for its currency, after consulting with international monetary authorities. Or it could let the mark "float"; that is, it could cut the mark loose from any stated value temporarily and let dealings in the world money markets decide what the new value would finally be.

Q. What would happen then?

A. Presumably, either way, the mark would wind up at some higher figure; the dollar would be worth less when used to buy marks or to buy German goods. The speculators who had got rid of dollars and obtained marks would chalk up a profit.

Q. Why is the dollar less valuable in Europe?

A. Because Europe is over-

Speculation Catches Pound

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar rebounded on European exchanges today, but the respite seemed temporary as the international monetary crisis continued.

American money was in short supply as speculators rushed to cover the dollars they had been selling for over a week without owning them.

The British pound was caught in the rush. A wave of selling sent the rate for sterling down 41 points, to $2.4155 during the first hour of trading in London.

The official rate of the pound is $2.40, but it has been above that on the exchange markets. The crisis dropped it 41 decimal points from $2.4191 or close to $2.42, on Wednesday. Exchange houses use decimal points to give them a more accurate quotation.

Major dollar trading remained all but suspended in West Germany, Austria, Belgium, Finland, the Netherlands, Portugal and Switzerland as the national banks of those countries still refused to buy dollars.

Spain joined those countries today in suspending foreign currency dealings. But tourists were not immediately affected. Financial sources said tourists were having their currencies changed into Spanish pesetas but with some limitations.

Led by West Germany, the central banks stopped buying Wednesday after two days of hectic selling by speculators switching to West German marks in anticipation that the German currency would be revalued upward.

The dollar gained strength on the open market in West Germany today after rumors that the government would postpone its decision to revalue until after a meeting of Common Market finance and economic ministers Saturday.

The West German Economics Ministry confirmed the rumor shortly before noon. But already on the strength of the rumors the dollar had risen to 3.59-3.61 marks on the open market after opening at 3.56. The official floor price is 3.63.

The West German Cabinet is meeting Friday to discuss the mounting pressure for revaluation of the mark to check inflation in Germany. But a decision was put off after the scheduling of the Common Market meeting in Brussels.

At it the ministers of the six nations—West Germany, France, Italy, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg—will try to work out a cohesive policy to follow in this first major international monetary crisis since the mark was last revalued in September 1969.

A German government spokesman said a special Cabinet meeting would be held after Saturday's session to decide on international and domestic measures.

Despite the delay, there was general expectation that the mark would be revalued and that the Swiss franc, the Dutch guilder and possibly other currencies would follow it upward in terms of the dollar.

Ground Broken for Privately Funded $45 Million National Gallery Addition

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the National Gallery of Art opened in 1941 with some 125 pictures donated to the nation by Andrew W. Mellon, many supposed it would take a century to fill the vast marble structure.

In the 30 years since, there have been gifts of other major and lesser collections, the number of visitors has reached 2 million yearly and an extension service reaches 3 million more in some 3,000 communities across the country.

To ease the resultant crowding, the gallery breaks ground today for a new $45-million annex which it hopes to have open to the public in 1975.

Across Street

The site, reserved for possible expansion when Congress accepted the original Mellon gift in 1937, lies directly across Fourth Street from the existing gallery in the direction of the U.S. Capitol. It is flanked on one side by Pennsylvania Avenue; on the other by the Mall.

The plot, in the shape of a trapezoid, confronted the architect with an unusual design problem, added to the desirability of planning a structure which would not clash with the existing gallery yet have a distinctive character of its own.

"It could not look as though the National Gallery had a little pup," Director J. Carter Brown told a news briefing on the plans by I. M. Pei, winner of many architectural awards.

Pei came up with an angular concept, devoid of outside ornament. It might be described as a trapezoid divided into two triangles.

One of them will accommodate the main entrance, which faces the old gallery across Fourth Street. The entrance leads into a glass-enclosed sculpture area, covered by a 15,000-square foot skylight.

Towering above this will be three diamond-shaped towers which will contain "house museums," distinct yet connected by bridges also suitable for exhibiting works of art.

The other triangle portion of the East Building will house the staff, a six-story library and the new Center for Advanced Study in the Visual Arts to be used by scholars and the staff.

The old and new buildings will be connected below street level by a concourse containing a 700-seat cafeteria, a print and book salesroom, and a shipping and receiving area. The plaza over this area will be dominated by a 100-foot diameter pool and fountain. Glass-sided, it will carry some diffused light to the underground concourse.

Facing of the new structure will be of Tennessee marble, the same material used for the existing gallery.

The new building is being financed privately rather than through federal funds. Paul Mellon and his sister, Alisa Mellon Bruce, gave $20 million in November 1967. Brown said there have been other gifts which he did not specify but indicated that not enough is now on hand to finish the building fully.

Nearly All Swordfish Tainted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration advised the public today to stop eating swordfish because 95 per cent of all samples examined were contaminated with poisonous mercury.

Government officials acknowledged the virtually unprecedented warning would probably destroy the swordfish industry.

It is "particularly important" that children and women of child-bearing age refrain from consumption of the seafood, the FDA said following completion of a three-month government testing program for mercury in swordfish. A group of American and Canadian medical experts endorsed its findings

"Despite extensive recalls by major distribution chains, despite FDA seizures totalling 832,000 pounds, and despite overall cooperation of swordfish brokers in withholding up to 4 million pounds from the market, the agency is still finding swordfish available to the public at or over the guideline," said FDA Chief Charles C. Edwards.

"On this basis and in view of full evaluation of test data by FDA and by outside experts, the FDA has no choice but to recommend at this time that the public not eat swordfish," Edwards said in a statement.

Of 853 swordfish samples examined by the government, only 5 per cent contained mercury below the FDA's safety guideline of 0.5 parts per million. The FDA said the average mercury level was twice the limit with 8 per cent of samples containing mercury higher than 1.5 parts per million.

Approximately 26 million pounds of the fish was consumed by Americans last year, with all but 4 million pounds imported from Japan and Canada. The remainder is caught in coastal waters off the Northeast and California

The Small Business Administration last week declared swordfish ship owners, processors and distributors eligible for economic disaster loans.

Reagan Claims Privacy Invaded by Press Reports of Zero Income Tax

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) —Gov. Ronald Reagan has accused newsmen of an invasion of privacy in reporting that he did not pay a state personal income tax this year. And he says whoever gave them the tax information broke the law.

"Aren't you guys ashamed enough?" the Republican governor snapped Wednesday when reporters asked whether he paid any federal income tax this past year. He told the newsmen it was none of their business and said:

"Frankly, I think the Capitol press corps yesterday demeaned itself a little bit by engaging in an invasion of privacy. They asked a question they already had the answer to."

Business Loss

Reagan said Tuesday he couldn't remember if he had to pay state income tax. His office later issued a statement saying he had not paid a tax because business losses offset his taxable income.

The source of the confidential tax information remains unknown. The report was first broadcast on the Sacramento State College radio station, KERS. Correspondent Rosemary King said she picked up the unverified report in Capitol hallways.

Reagan accused newsmen of knowing that someone illegally provided the information from the Franchise Tax Board.

The board's George Nelson said a check of the files showed that Reagan's returns had not been taken. "We have no reason to believe it came from here," he said. But he noted that "a lot of people" aid in processing the 5.5 million to 6 million returns received in April.

Reagan has always insisted that his personal wealth and his investments are his own business so long as there is no conflict of interest with his public position.

Jess Unruh, Reagan's Democratic opponent in the 1970 election for governor, insisted that no one could be sure if there was conflict or not unless Reagan made his financial affairs public as Unruh had. Reagan steadfastly maintained that was not necessry.

Neither Reagan nor his friends will comment in any detail on his investments or how he sustained enough losses during 1970 to offset tax obligation from his $44,100 salary as governor, let alone any other income he may have had.

But Capitol tax experts say it would not be unusual, particularly in a year like 1970 with its business slump.

No one has contended that anything was illegal. But Democrats in the legislature say it points out the "loopholes" in the state's tax laws that allow the affluent to pay less taxes than the middle class.

'Truth-in-Packaging' Law Misses Target

BY ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — The truth about the "truth-in-packaging" law is beginning to strike home with a vengeance.

The truth about the 1966 law is that it has done virtually nothing to reduce confusion in the super market. Most of the things it was designed to eliminate — such as odd package sizes, partially filled packages and deceptive labeling — continue to flourish.

Actually, not all consumer advocates were happy about the law as it finally passed Congress. Many were disappointed at the number of provisions struck from the bill or watered down to please business interests.

Others, led by Senator Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., the originator of the packaging bill, hailed the law as a victory for all shoppers. After battling for five years against heavy odds, he obviously was pleased to have any bill at all emerge.

Since the bill became effective nearly four years ago, minor improvements have been made in the labeling of many products. These include larger type sizes for disclosing net contents, better identification of the manufacturer and fuller information about the size of "servings."

The law also calls for voluntary adoption of standard sizes in order to reduce the confusing mixture of package sizes and shapes. The original bill would have made this mandatory.

With only the power of persuasion, the government has had only limited success in this field.

One consumer specialist in New York counted more than 150 different brands and sizes of breakfast cereals in one medium-sized super market. The same person found 63 sizes, types and brands of tuna, 27 toothpaste products, 48 potato chip products and 67 sizes and types of breakfast cereals.

Confusion Continues

Another consumer specialist, one who recently retired with that title from the Food and Drug Administration, says confusion in package sizes continues despite passage of the Federal law.

In a speech in St. Louis, Loretta Johnson accused a "major cereal producer" of lowering the net content of three products without changing the size of the box. She said the company changed the net content figure on the label accordingly but did not change the package size.

This is an old trick, one which the "truth" law originally was designed to eliminate. Another old trick is pricing "economy" and "king size" packages higher per ounce than smaller packages.

A recent statewide survey of 29 super markets in Connecticut by the Connecticut Consumer Association showed that this device still is common on staple products.

Smaller Size Cheaper

Shoppers found several detergent products that were cheaper in the smaller size despite promotional material implying the opposite. A cooking oil was cheaper in the 38-ounce bottle than in the 48-ounce size and catsup was less per-ounce in the 20-ounce bottle than in the 32-ounce bottle.

The Connecticut shoppers also found a confusing variety of sizes, making price comparisons especially difficult for cereals, instant coffee, canned fruits and vegetables, soft drinks and other products.

What these surveys mean to a careful shopper is a continuing need for checking labels, sizes and prices.

National Guard Getting First Black General

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Guard is getting its first black general.

He is Col. C. C. Bryant, 49-year-old World War II combat veteran who is adjutant general of the District of Columbia National Guard.

There are more than 140 generals in the Army Guard and the Air Guard, but none is black.

Maj. Gen. Winston P. Wilson, chief of the National Guard Bureau, said, "I am tickled to see a man of his quality promoted to star rank. It had nothing to do with his race."

Bryant was promoted last Saturday at the District of Columbia level, but he told a reporter he doesn't intend to put on the silver star of a brigadier general until federal approval is completed.

A regular Army board will consider Bryant's promotion later this month. President Nixon then is expected to send a formal nomination to the Senate.

Chamber Backs Charging Firms For Gaslights

NEW LONDON — Although the gaslight issue did not appear before the City Council Tuesday night, the issue is far from dead if action at Wednesday night's Chamber of Commerce meeting is any indication.

After a presentation on the lighting plan similar to the one [illegible] en to the planning commis[illegible], chamber members voted circulate a petition to all sinessmen and property owns in the downtown area.

Chamber President William Borchardt said the chamber would back the costs of purchase, about $5,500, while the Wisconsin Gas Co. would pay for the installation.

This would leave only the operating cost unpaid. The petition calls for assessment of that cost to the businessmen on a per-foot basis (about 50 cents per year per foot). Borchardt said, however, that the chamber would like to see the council approve paying the operation costs itself, but that this method would give them an alternative.

Preliminary Talks

"This is the only thing that has any possibility. If we aren't pushing it, we aren't doing anything," Borchardt said. He added that preliminary talks with the contractor showed that the project would not alter his contract and should not slow down progress on the reconstruction of the downtown streets.

Borchardt also pointed out that the chamber had not presented the issue to the council because it did not feel the downtown businessmen had been completely sold on the issue.

Mrs. Jeane Trauger urged the adoption of the lights, as well as a central theme for the downtown area. She told chamber members she had been looking at several communities before settling in New London and that the charm of the community was one of her reasons for settling here.

The city's plan, drawn by Max Anderson and Associates, was brought up with relation to whether the lights would fit into the scheme of that plan. I was pointed out that the Anderson plan was designed for traffic flow and parking and that the central theme could be any that was chosen.

Not Changing Face

Marlin Fuerst, cochairman of the improvement committee, summed up the present situation on the reconstruction of downtown. "We are redoing the streets, but not changing the face."

He noted that the city best lent itself to an Early American theme. "I would like to see us create a character for the downtown area," Fuerst said.

Borchardt said the lights had been proposed "because they appeared to have the greatest aesthetic properties and did not interfere with the contractor's bid."

Dean Buron, gas company district manager, explained how the lights would be maintained. He said the light would be checked daily and any broken glass and mantles would be replaced immediately. The glass would be washed at least once every two months. Dirty panels would be replaced.

Price Rise

He added that while the company would not guarantee any gas price, the cost of the gas had risen only 6 per cent in the time the company has been in New London.

Burton said there would be an average of seven poles per side on each block. The poles would be installed in collars and could be replaced, if damaged, without cutting into the pavement.

Authorization for the circulation of the petition followed the discussion of the gas lamp proposal. The New London Utility Department also will be invited to submit a counterproposal for decorative electric lights.

Clintonville to Have Youth Activity Center

CLINTONVILLE — A youth activity center will be established here in the Eagles Club building. It should be ready to open about June 1.

The City Council Tuesday night took action to create the center, as recommended by the recreation committee.

Committee members had investigated several buildings in the city before recommending the Eagles Club on Seventh Street. The first floor will be available to the city for the center for $115 per month plus utilities. The club will close off the door to the basement so that entry can only be made from the outside.

Vending Machines

Vending machines will be placed in the building, with any profit going to the city. Various civic organizations have been contacted to assist with voluntary supervision of the program.

The city will sign a one-year lease for use of the first floor. The building is expected to be ready by June 1, following remodeling which will be done by the club.

Plans are to have the center open four nights a week — Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday from 6 to 11 p.m. and also possibly two days a week.

Permission was granted the recreation committee to advertise for a recreation and activity director. The council agreed that it is essential to have someone with higher education, and with graduation in the very near future, now would be the best time for interviews.

The park board reported that Ray Phillips, park superintendent, will reach the mandatory retirement age in February, and it will be necessary to seek a replacement for him.

Truck Bids

Authorization was granted the board to advertise for bids on a three-quarter ton truck to be used in the parks.

Discussion was held on the possibility of eradication of weeds in the river bed, and the firm will be contacted that did this work in the Shawano Lake area.

The payment of expenses was approved for those who plan to attend a seminar on safe and sanitary operation of swimming pools to be held at Holiday Inn, Oshkosh.

A public hearing will be at 8 p.m. June 1 in the council room of the City Hall on a petition from several residents on E. Madison Street, requesting sewer and water installations out to the city limits.

The police and fire commission reported donations of $300 from the Town of Larrabee and $200 from the Town of Matteson to the Clintonville volunteer rescue squad. Fire Chief Ed DuFrane said the department plans to get additional raincoats and boots.

On Job Training

The council approved a commission recommendation for on-the-job training under a government program for four policemen who are veterans. They are Michael Schertz, James Krause, James Wockenfuss and Donald Kaphingst.

The commission also recommended extending the employment of Police Chief James Beggs for another year — to July 24, 1972. Beggs is of retirement age and state statutes state that police officers must retire at the age of 60, but may be rehired on a year-to-year basis until the age of 65. The recommendation passed by a vote of seven to two, with Ald. Don Thompson and Ald. Kenneth Suehring opposing.

The area on S. Main Street at the railroad tracks will be closed next week from Monday to Friday to enable the C&NW railroad company to remove several of the tracks. Discussion followed on the possibility of another traffic crossing east of Main Street to ease traffic to the swimming pool and possibly out to County Trunk I. The planning commission was asked to confer with the railroad company on this.

Council approved the recommendations of the board of public works on several low bids which were opened Monday night. Included were: Mantin Brothers, Clintonville, for curb and gutter, sidewalks, bulk cement and gravel; F. Hurlbut Co., Green Bay, for concrete pipe; and Murphy Supply Co., Inc., for asbestos cement gravity sewer pipe with couplings. The low bid for blacktop from Dey's, Shawano, was accepted at $7.95 per ton.

System Predicts Green Bay Will Need Reliever Airport

Post-Crescent Staff Correspondence

MADISON — A proposed "place classification system" for Wisconsin airports shows that by 1990 a reliever airport may be needed at Green Bay to reduce possible congestion at Austin Straubel Field.

The classification system now is undergoing thorough study, a Wisconsin Department of Transportation official said Tuesday, to determine the validity of the plan.

Arne L. Gausmann, director of the bureau of system planning, told delegates to the 16th annual Wisconsin Aeronautics Conference that five classifications of airports are being considered with a variety of criteria being used to determine what class of airport is needed in a particular community.

The airport classes, in order of importance, are: certificated transport, general transport, basic transport, general utility and reliever.

The object, Gausmann said, is to have at least a general utility airport within 15 miles of any point in the state.

Projections indicate, he said, that Milwaukee and Green Bay probably will need reliever airports by 1990. At present the plan does not provide for any specific location for a reliever field in the Green Bay area.

In the classification plan, population centers in the state are divided into classes of metropolitan, regional, district and local centers.

All of the specified metropolitan centers except one, Appleton, are shown in the plan as either having or being proposed for a certificated transport airport.

Gausmann said the Appleton and Green Bay metropolitan areas overlap.

A certificated transport airport is shown for Oshkosh which is listed as a regional center rather than a metropolitan center.

In addition to population, Gausmann said, physical relationship to other centers also is considered in the criteria.

Among other criteria considered, Gausmann said, are major university locations, major health centers, and recreation centers.

Under the plan, he indicated, there would be about 127 airports capable of handling present commuter airline airplanes and 58 airports capable of handling airplanes up to 60,000 pounds.

Louis Million, chief of the airports division of the Federal Aviation Administration's (FAA) Chicago office, reported that an approach radar control system is scheduled for installation at Green Bay sometime during 1973.

He also reported that an approach lighting system on the north-south runway at Winnebago County's Wittman Field, Oshkosh, is scheduled for completion in November, along with switching the instrument landing system from the east-west runway to the north-south runway.

New London Meeting

Chamber Weighs Duties for Fly-In

NEW LONDON — The Chamber of Commerce at its quarterly session Wednesday discussed its part in directing concessions at the New London Aviation Fly-In July 4.

According to Chairman Bill Borchard, the concessions will be daylong and the chamber will share in profits.

This year, he reported, there will be aerobatics and helicopter demonstrations and two bands to provide music. Airplane rides also will be conducted and the traditional pancake-sausage breakfast is planned.

It was announced that the New London Concert Association will become part of the Chamber but still will handle its own finances. The association features guest concerts during winter.

The chamber is expected to confront parking problems — possibilities for off-street parking and for arranging an authority to purchase property for such city facilities.

The group heard discussion on a proposal to change night shopping from Fridays to Thursdays in order to free clerks for Friday night high school athletics and to ease early weekend traffic congestion during summer.

The Chamber soon will investigate the Shiocton Street extension proposal. The project was defeated by the City Council in 1970, but it was felt that the defeat came because there was no construction date and not enough information.

Lorge Dislikes GOP Budget, Plans to Draft Own Version

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Sen. Gerald Lorge, R-Bear Creek, plans to introduce his own budget bill in the legislature, he revealed in explaining his failure to sign a budget proposal to be introduced by the Senate Republicans as an alternative to Gov. Patrick Lucey's spending and taxing plan.

Lorge said, in an interview following the release late Wednesday of the Republican's announced budget plan, that his budget will involve no tax increases and retention of the present tax schedule. Increased funding for state programs would be accomplished, Lorge said, by use of an expected $200 million growth in receipts over the last biennium from the present tax structure.

The Bear Creek Republican said that his budget would provide first and specifically for the needs of the elementary and secondary school districts. The balance of the state revenue would be apportioned on a need basis to the various departments and state agencies.

Separate Bills

The other Senate Republicans announced they would remove the major policy changes the governor proposes from the budget and submit the issues as separate bills, restore programs cut by the governor that were termed "worthwhile" and eliminate low-priority new programs and expansion of existing programs that are funded without federal assistance.

The Senate Republican proposal drafted by Sen. Jack Steinhilber, R-Oshkosh, who serves on the legislature's Joint Finance Committee, also provides for no tax increase while it includes measures to restore a number of programs cut from budget requests by the governor.

High priorities among the restorations include service "to the patients at the King Veterans Home," and programs for the blind, the mentally infirm in county hospitals, legislative scholarships for nurses and "other deserving students and farm youth programs".

Specific Programs

The programs referred to include expansion of the Grand Army Home at King the governor has proposed be cut back; retention of the library for the blind in Milwaukee the governor proposed be moved to and consolidated with the state school for the blind at Janesville; continuing present levels of state aid to county hospitals that the governor proposes be cut in favor of increasing aid to comprehensive mental health programs; and continued guarantee of state assistance to county fairs that might be victims, along with the state fair the governor has proposed discontinuing.

Lucey also proposed that funds earmarked for grants to nurses seeking training as nursing teachers be consolidated with other special aids and be distributed in smaller amounts than the present nurse education aids are distributed.

False Impression

"The governor's so-called austerity cuts deeply into programs affecting people who are least able to speak out for and protect their legitimate interests," the Senate Republican's statement says. It "starves Peter to feed Paul in order to create the false impression of economy and austerity while at the same time proposing to stifle economic growth and the creation of new job opportunities.

"It is time to stop just talking about austerity and start making it a fact of life," the statement said.

Lucey's proposed budget is being reviewed by the legislature's Joint Finance Committee. His fiscal plans were given closed-door consideration in a Republican caucus a week ago.

Republicans admitted their titular leader, Atty. Gen. Robert Warren, attended the caucus.

No Conclusions

Sen. Robert Knowles, R-New Richmond and the Senate's president pro tem, insisted the caucus had made no conclusions concerning Lucey's budget policies.

But the caucus chairman, Sen. Walter J. Chilsen, said the matter was handed over to Warren's staff for consideration of methods of avoiding tax increases.

Chilsen said the caucus agreed only to giving separate consideration to Lucey's proposals.

The governor said a week ago he had gotten wind of Republican plans to take apart his budget outline, although he already had chopped away $200 million in departmental spending requests.

The Republican decision, Lucey said, "has all the earmarkings of one reached on political grounds, not on sound financial policy grounds."

Highway Commission Will Back Oneida Span Priority

The State Highway Commission has pledged to support Appleton and Outagamie County in their joint request to place the Oneida Street high-level bridge on the state bridge-building priority list in place of a new Memorial Drive span.

B. E. Gehrmann, secretary of the commission, recently notified County Clerk Arthur Hoolihan of the commission's support.

Gehrmann's letter came in response to a notice from Hoolihan telling of the County Board's recent action joining the city in seeking the change in priorities.

Gehrmann also explained that the change must be made by legislative action, through the Joint Highway Advisory Committee of the Legislature.

Recommendation Promised

When that committee takes up the request, the highway commission will be asked for its recommendation, Gehrmann said, "and you can expect our recommendation to be in the affirmative, even though this will require increased finances over our original plans."

"We do want to be responsive to the local units of government whenever possible," he added.

Gehrmann said for the change to come before the legislative committee, he expects Rep. Ervin (Butch) Conradt, R-Shiocton, will introduce it. Conradt serves on the state committee as a member of the Assembly, and is a county supervisor and highway committeeman at the local level as well.

The legislature placed the Memorial Drive bridge replacement proposal on a list of 24 top-priority bridge projects in 1969, to be undertaken in the subsequent four years and financed in part by state bond issues that also were approved at that time.

Impossible Hardship

Appleton officials since then agreed that replacing the Memorial bridge would place an impossible hardship on the present Oneida crossing, which would have to bear the traffic burden while the other span was out of service.

An effort to have the county board agree to provide its one-third share of the Oneida Bridge cost was tabled, but the city's request for county support of the change in priorities passed on a 42-3 vote.

The county board also included in its resolution a request to the state asking to have a Fox River crossing at French Road on the Tri-County Expressway given second-priority status.

Conradt has said he believes the county is reasonable in asking for two bridges rather than one.

'Happy Birthday, Grandma!'

OGDENSBURG — "Every day is a good day when I wake up and the sun is shining," Mrs. Anna Larson, who celebrated her 104th birthday Wednesday, told neighbors as they came into her neat, white house to wish her well.

Her blue eyes danced alertly in a smooth round face which belies her years as she asked, "So, good to see you, now what is your name?" When told she immediately responded with, "My eyes are not so good any more, so I can't see you — but my ears are good and I'm so happy you've come."

Waving her hands expressively, she filed her only complaint these days: "Neighbors just don't come in to visit anymore like they used to years ago — and I do love to see them. We always loved to have our neighbors come to call and my mother always had coffee and a bite ready at 3:30 every afternoon — the long table was filled with good food and good conversation."

One reason she misses the visits, relates her daughter Mrs. Gladys Lytle, is because her changing vision no longer permits her to read or crochet. "She did both and spent many hours each day at it until last year. Mother was a real bird watcher, too, and she can no longer see their colors but spends hours watching them at the feeders."

"Now, Gladys, I can see those squirrels and I enjoy them," the Century topper interjected.

No Use for 'Tube'

Anna Larson loves to be read to every day, likes to get outside in her wheel chair and "hear what's going on." She likes to listen to sermons on the radio and TV — but "the tube" holds no great fascination for her.

Untroubled by what is going on in the world today, she finds her joy in remembering her father Daniel Danielson's philosophy for living. "Always share what you have with another and you will never want for anything. My Father did that and it worked. There were six boys and three of us girls and we never wanted for anything as we grew up in Elm Valley, under the huge hill, where the creek ran fast.

"I can remember as a child when the Indians came to our house and I would run and hide behind my Mother's skirts," she reminisced. "Mama would tell us not to be frightened,

Clintonville District Voters Agree to Buy 3 Properties

CLINTONVILLE — School district voters approved the purchase of three parcels of property on Waupaca Street, at a special meeting Monday night. The vote was 60 to 40.

The additions will be used for playground and physical education purposes.

The board of education at a special meeting later voted to buy the property owned by Jack Kaphingst, Lyle Becker and Mrs. Clara Bleck at a cost of $17,700. The properties are to be vacated by July 1.

A breakdown shows that the cost for the Kaphingst property, which is 60 by 150 feet, is $10,000; the Becker property, which is 50 by 120 feet, is $7,000 (these two properties have reisdences on them), and the Bleck lot, 60 by 120 feet, located directly behind the Becker property, is $700.

Dr. Harry Caskey was chairman of the special district meeting and presented the proposal to buy the three lots, which are contiguous to present school property.

The inadequacy of the present site was pointed out. State recommendations for sites are 10 acres plus an additional acre for each 100 pupils in elementary schools, which would be 16 acres for Longfellow school, and for junior high schools, 30 acres plus an additional acre for each pupil of ultimate enrollment, which would be 36 acres for junior high.

The recommended site for Longfellow and junior high schools would be 52 acres, and the present site is just over 12 acres. There are 560 pupils enrolled at Longfellow and 531 pupils enrolled at junior high school.

Rey Laske, principal of the junior high, gave his view of the limited space and the need for this property. O. Reed Newton, elementary supervisor, talked on the usage of the playground.

68 Complain

In other action at its meeting, the board of education endorsed Harland Kirchner, Clintonville, for re-appointment to the board of VTAE District 12.

A letter signed by 68 residents in the senior high school area registering complaints on student discipline was read. The administration will look into the matter and it will be taken up at the next board meeting.

Included in the letter (or petition) was that the residents felt there should be closer supervision of students driving cars during the noon hour; all drivers of cars should turn their keys in to the office at school; students should not be allowed to park their cars elsewhere, or hid them; drivers of cars not in school, such as drop-outs, should not be allowed on the school grounds; more of a direct effort should be made to enforce the present policy of the school; more police protection and routine checks, especially during the noon hour; and a 15 miles per hour speed limit on surrounding side streets in the area.

Parking Fines, Fees to Increase

NEW LONDON — With the reconstruction of N. Water and S. Pearl Streets will come some alterations in the parking meter fees and violation charges.

The health, welfare and safety committee was given approval on their plan to change the parking meters from one and five cents to five and 10 cents, at Tuesday nights council meeting.

At this time a penny will purchase 12 minutes of parking time, and a nickle will pay for an hour. The new meters will give a half hour for a nickle and an hour for a dime.

Parking Fines

The fine for expired meters will increase from 50 cents to $1.

Another increase will be in the fine for illegal parking, which will increase from $1 to $5.

Police Chief Jack Algiers noted that the parking meters presently charged the same as they did when they were installed in 1952.

Another change will be the placing of two meters on a single pole. The parking spaces will be enlarged from a 20 foot average, to about 23 feet. There will be 107 stalls 23 feet long, six 21 feet long and two 20 feet. A total of 16 parking stalls will be lost, because of traffic patterns and enlarging some of the areas.

The city will pay about $1,200 to place two meters on a post and alter the fees.

More signs, with total uniformity, also will be present on the street. Among these will be signs directing motorists to off-street free parking.

Revamp Lot

Also included will be the revamping of the parking lot behind the Grand Theater. At this time the lot, according to Mayor S. W. Krostue, "is the most inefficient in the State."

When it is reconstructed the city hopes to double the parking capacity of the lot.

The final results of the program are hoped to be more use of the off-street parking, increased revenue from the main street meters, and increased traffic flow for the benefit of the shopper.

Attending the conference from Waupaca County Day Care Services were Mrs. Tony Buhr, Marion; Mrs. Henry Kroll, Clintonville; Miss Margaret Miller, Waupaca, and Mrs. Alice Obertin, New London.

Under the conference theme, "Accountability in Title I Day Care Programming," Dr. Kenneth F. Rusch, assistant administrator, Wisconsin Division of Mental Health, emphasized the importance of increasing effectiveness in service to mentally handicapped persons.

Discussing "Identification of Client Strengths and Weaknesses," Dr. Louis Brown, University of Wisconsin, discussed the purposes of evaluating and training mentally retarded persons. He said it still is not known what or how much retarded students can learn.

"There are indications that the failures of retarded children to learn may be due to a deficient instruction and low expectations of achievement rather than to intellectual limitations of the child," Brown said.

Institute Participants became acquainted with resources for evaluating the potential of the retarded and how to develop behavioral objectives for individuals.

After this, each wrote objectives based on composite cases. Group leaders assisted in developing the objectives As a follow-up to this practical experience, assignments have been made which will be presented at the institute next month.

They Run Appleton Schools . . . 3

Johnston's Tasks Range From Negotiations to Budget

Dr. Kenneth Johnston has the responsibility for organization efficiency in the Appleton school system. "That doesn't mean saving money," he said. "That means using the money better, getting more for the buck."

Johnston is the director of administrative services — the daily nonacademic operations of the system — under the four-man administrative team approach.

This means he must keep a close watch over the purse strings, a challenging job in today's tight education financial picture.

But he has other duties — probably the broadest range of responsibilities of any of the four administrators, except for Dist. Admin. Orlyn Zieman. Johnston also is in charge of student affairs, such as transportation and census; supplies and materials acquisition; new construction and custodial activities and maintenance

Demanding Job

One of the major tasks is negotiations. Although he studied bargaining in his doctorate work, he admitted that doing the technical work for negotiations with teachers, clerical and other groups, including possibly principals in the near future, will be a demanding job

Everywhere you go in the school system, you hear about budget. Johnston, however, is the man who has the responsibility for preparing this massive document annually. He has a strong staff, he said, but the job still requires much personal deliberation as he is responsible for a properly propositioned and accurate document.

He has changed the budget format to make it easier for the layman to understand, per a request by the board of education. Confusion about it had been considered as one factor leading to severe cuts by the fiscal control board, the taxing body for the schools.

Budget preparation is the nine-month per year job.

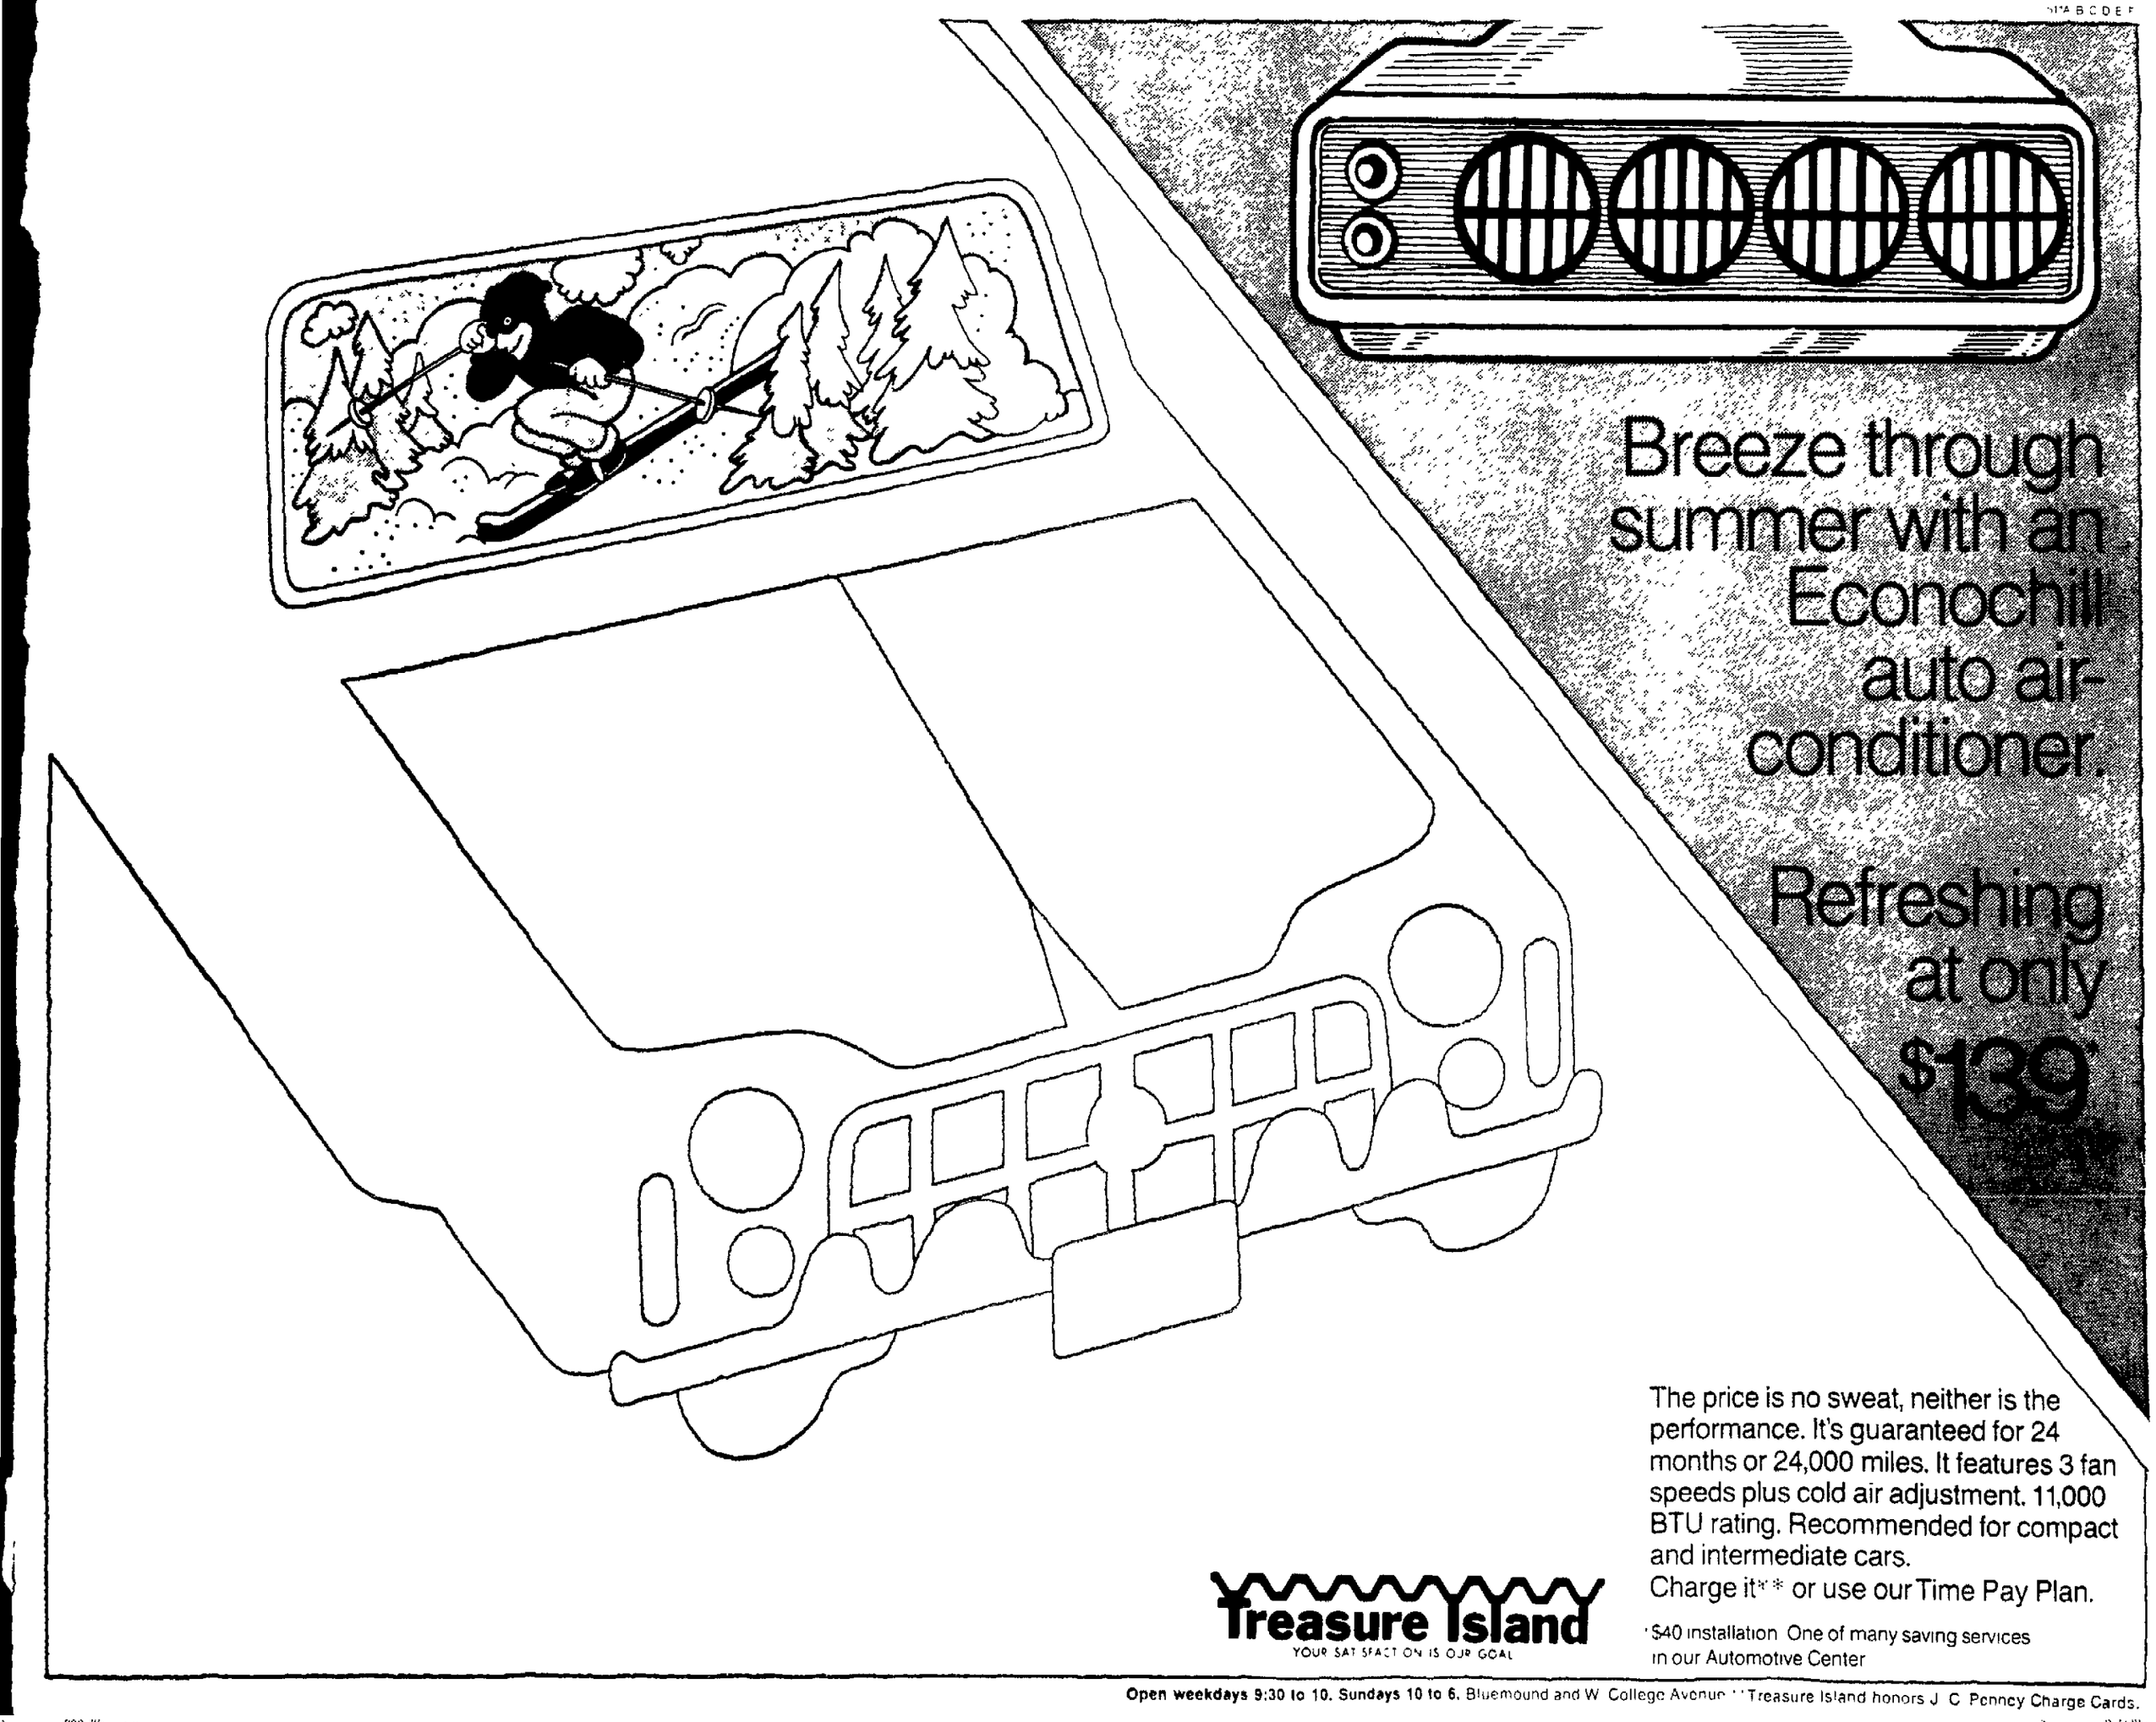
Johnston has another finances related task, and that is paying the bills. He must keep track of billings and inform other administrators and the board of education if there's money in the budget for something

Many purchases are through competitive bidding Johnston said he has altered the bidding procedures, bringing in more bids and better prices

The administrative services department's primary function is to carry out service-type functions related to the school operation, and to a lesser degree, to academic services, the consultant's report said

Johnston said he is farther from teaching and the student than he was as a junior high principal but he added he felt he must always think in terms of education — the primary function of the schools He noted however, that his department is part of a "checks and balances" in the system, balancing program offerings and expenditures

Whatever moves might be made, Johnston generally must be consulted and asked if there are funds available

In maintenance, he must set priorities in repair work for a limited staff, which hasn't grown with the increase in the number of buildings and students The maintenance staff has attempted to keep up with emergencies during the school year and will take on major projects, such as Jackson School work this summer he said


Johnston has separated his sections and clarified authority lines including putting new construction under one man and maintenance under another as was recommended by the consultant
